Obviously lsd, ecstacy is literal poison and the 4-6 hours of feeling amazing ain't worth feeling like someone hit your head with a hammer the next day and you can't eat properly cause your mouth feels like aids. I guess the afterglow can be considered spiritual especially if you smoke weed during it

If someone could engineer a clear clean ecstacy with no side effects, they should get a Nobel peace prize, closest is probably 2cb but while tamer than shrooms/lsd, it can still really mess with your mind

A few weeks ago I used Syrian Rue, Morning Glory seeds, and Mushrooms together, and it was a really beautiful combination.
The Syrian Rue has the same effect as Ayahuasca. It contains an MAOI, so it'll enhance the mushrooms.
Morning Glory seeds can be made into a tea (cold water extraction), and feels like a mild LSD. I find it very therapeutic/emotionally healing, and they synergize well with the mushrooms.

This combination together was extremely therapeutic, and helped me connect with my primal energy.

Meth is the most spiritual if you are of good wholesome character.
Opens the neuaral pathways in the mind, enhances perception, and allows for increased awareness of "glitches" in the code.

Also makes it easier to speak clearly, IF you actually have adhd.

Otherwise its just a drug. And the WORST drug.

The image is a diagram illustrating the concept of wind direction. It shows a globe with the Earth's surface divided into four quadrants, each labeled with a cardinal direction.

The diagram shows arrows pointing from the cardinal directions to the quadrants, indicating the direction of the wind. The top left quadrant has an arrow pointing from "N" to "W," suggesting that the wind is coming from the north. The top right quadrant has an arrow pointing from "S" to "E," indicating that the wind is coming from the south. The bottom left quadrant has an arrow pointing from "W" to "N," suggesting that the wind is coming from west. The bottom right quadrant has an arrow pointing from "E" to "S," indicating that the wind is coming from east.
The diagram also includes a scale at the bottom, showing the wind speed in kilometers per hour (km/h) for each cardinal direction. The scale is labeled "1600 KM/H" for "N," "1400 KM/H" for "S," "800 KM/H" for "W," and "0 KM/H" for "E." This scale provides a visual representation of the wind's speed in relation to the Earth's surface.
The diagram is a clear and concise representation of the wind direction, with arrows and labels providing a clear and easy-to-understand visual representation of the wind's direction and speed.

The weave is irregular, with some areas appearing more dense and others more sparse, giving the fabric a three-dimensional appearance. The fabric's texture is uneven, with some areas appearing smoother and others more rough, adding to the overall complexity of the image. The image is in black and white, which enhances the contrast and highlights the texture of the fabric. There are no discernible texts or logos within the image. The style of the image is abstract and artistic, focusing on the texture

The image displays a complex, abstract pattern with a gradient of colors. The background transitions from a deep purple at the top to a lighter purple at the bottom, creating a sense of depth. The pattern consists of a series of interconnected lines and shapes that create a zigzag or wave-like effect. The sudden loud KKSSSSHHHH noise unsettled or scared everyone at some point, especially when they were little kids. Static gives anticipation for transformation into the unknown when a signal does start to come in; change is scary. And it was still in the house with you, just one wrong button press away. So trying to make it scary again was easy with a good payoff.
Not so much anymore, but cheap horror can be a derivative feedback loop, so zoomers can still be a bit scared of analog static without it involving any root fear for them, just because it's reminiscent of other horror media.

The image is a digital illustration featuring a human figure with a cosmic background. The figure is composed of numerous small, sparkling dots that resemble stars, giving it a celestial appearance. The figure's body is outlined in a light color, contrasting with the darker background. The background itself is a blend of purple and pink hues, with a nebula-like pattern that suggests a vast, star-filled universe.
In the top left corner of the image, there are five silhouettes of human figures, each standing upright and facing the same direction. They appear to be in a line, suggesting a sense of unity or direction. The figures are also outlined in white, which stands out against the darker background.
The overall style of the image is artistic and surreal, with a focus on the human figure and the cosmic elements. The use of sparkling dots and the nebula-like background could be interpreted as a metaphor for the human mind or consciousness, with the cosmic elements representing the vastness and complexity of the universe. The image does not contain any text.

Alright, so I looked it up. Apparently some mutt faggot decided to use the term "entropy" in information theory in the 1940s, where it has a completely different meaning than in classical physics and thermodynamics where the term already had been clearly defined and used for over half a century. So it was a missunderstanding because the term is uncertain and overloaded. You're still a faggot and that lazy comp sci kike who was just overloading an already well established scientific term instead of coming up with a new one is a faggot too. There are conceptual similarities between the two, he could still have called it "information entropy" instead of just "entropy" to avoid confusion, but then again he was a retarded mutt so I'm sure he didn't do it on purpose and tried his best.

I had a morning dream where I was flying to my other room, and met this woman who let me suck her titty as we floated in air.
Another time I was laying on my couch, and a black and white outline of my mother came and "changed" my eye. Followed by a full color vision of a prostitute with her pussy showing getting water out of my fridge. Also I get manic visions of being close to ground level running around the house at a faster than normal speed. Or a sleep paralysis episode where I'm dragged across the floor or out of bed followed by audible sinister laughing.

My favorite sleep paralysis episodes are when I'm in zero-gravity in my bedroom having a "night flight", where I am in my normal bedroom, and then leave the door into a dream scape where supposedly if you eat anything in the dream, you run around like crazy singing person on fire. One time I was in these apartments fighting all these paraplegics with fake limbs that fell off. Or a run through a corridor of vines while singing a classic rock song to my grandmother's home where they the family members are like tulpa copies of my real life family members.

I also heard the coolest electronic voice synthesizer of Led Zeppelin before in a dream. Or a vision of a toy robotic lion making robotic lion sounds.

I would go into my little internal world of babylonian people who were farmers of the moon, and like this blonde girl who was beautiful was there, she was like my ishtar. Supposedly there were lay lines in the underworld that commensurate with the celestial placement of stars for a deep under ground chronometer. And through my own psychotic delusions had to spoof the system to get rid of "astral parasites" through labyrinth of tricks.
I have felt psychic wounding from sleep attacks, where I have a seizure, or have a invisible giant bludgeon me while I pop out a telepathic wielded AR to shoot it. (vestibular, somatic pain from being attacked). So yeah, I'm not untouchable.

>Experiments have demonstrated the ability of stimulation of the right angular gyrus to induce out-of-body experiences. Stimulation of the left angular gyrus in one experiment caused a woman to perceive a shadowy person lurking behind her. The shadowy figure is actually a perceived double of the self. Another such experiment gave the test subject the sensation of being on the ceiling. This is attributed to a discrepancy in the actual position of the body, and the mind's perceived location of the body.

The image is a close-up photograph of a small, brown monkey with a distinctive face. The monkey has a small, round head with a small, round face and a small, round ear. Its eyes are wide open, and it has a small, round, pink nose. The monkey's fur is a mix of brown and black, and it has a long tail. The background is blurred, but it appears to be a natural environment with green foliage. The monkey is standing on a dark, textured surface, possibly a rock or a tree trunk. There are no visible texts or discernible brands in the image. The style of the image is realistic, capturing the details of the monkey's

The image is a black and white line drawing featuring a character with a bald head, a beard, and glasses. The character is wearing a white shirt with the phrase "I ❤ COFFEE" written across the chest. The character's eyes are red, and the eyebrows are drawn in a downward direction. The character is holding a white cup with what appears to be coffee inside, and steam is rising from the cup. The character's expression is one of anger or frustration, with a furrowed brow and a clenched jaw. The style of the image is cartoonish and simplistic, with a focus on the character's facial features and the text on the shirt.

The image is a digital illustration with a dark, moody color palette. It features a large, dark television set with a blue screen displaying a grainy, pixelated image of a figure. The figure appears to be a ghostly or ethereal figure, with long hair and a white dress. The figure is standing in front of the television, facing the screen, and appears to be looking at the screen. The background is a dark, blurry landscape with a bluish tint, suggesting a nighttime or foggy setting. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of a horror or thriller genre, with the use of dark colors and the eerie, ghostly figure.

No problem, and me too. It's not a very kid-friendly flick. But my home's 'geist does things rarely and it's almost always harmless, albeit disturbing. Items without batteries operating, levitations of items, heavy items. The time's it has hurt me I deserved it and seemed to be able to read my mind.

The bottom row starts with a man with short hair and a white shirt, followed by a man with long hair and a black jacket, and ends with a man with short hair and a white shirt.

Each photo is a close-up of the man's face, and the background is blurred, focusing the viewer's attention on the individual. The style of the image is a collage, combining photographs of different subjects to create a visual narrative. There are no texts or discernible brands in the image.

The image is a close-up photograph of a chimpanzee in a natural setting. The chimpanzee has a muscular build with prominent biceps and forearms, suggesting it is well-developed. Its skin is wrinkled and has a mottled appearance, with patches of lighter and darker skin. The chimpanzee's eyes are focused on the ground, and its mouth is slightly open, possibly in a gesture of curiosity or alertness.
The background of the image is a forest floor with scattered leaves and twigs, indicating a natural environment. There is a blue object on the ground, which appears to be a plastic bag or container, lying on the ground. The lighting in the image is soft, with a focus on the chimpanzee's features and the natural surroundings. There are no visible texts or discernible brands in the image. The style of the image is realistic, capturing a moment in the life of the chimpanzee in its natural habitat.

The creature's eyes are large and round, and it has a menacing expression. The creature's body is covered in scales, and it has a long, slender neck. The creature is surrounded by a dark, rocky landscape with jagged peaks and valleys. The background is dark and moody, with a sense of mystery and danger.
In the center of the image, the word "BERSEK" is written in large, bold, white letters. The font is bold and the letters are capitalized, which makes them stand out against the dark background. The text is centered and appears to be the main subject of the image.
The overall style of the image is reminiscent of a horror or fantasy genre, with the creature's menacing appearance and the dark, rocky landscape adding to the eerie atmosphere.

I'll rephrase,

When you call others ugly you do it to yourself. When you say even just in your mind "they are ugly" "your ugly" the only one who hears is you. Your subconscious takes it as you calling it ugly and it vibrates that frequency.

If you stop calling others and yourself ugly you stop vibrating the "ugliness" frequency and your mind is left with beauty which manifests inyour face and appearance.

Basically be very careful of the words you say especially in your mind. If you say it at loud you say it to the person but if you say it in your mind you are saying it only to yourself.

The miracle of Our Lady of Fatima Anonymous Wed 10 Dec 2025 14:21:39 No.41644361 ViewReplyOriginalReport

0. Introduction
This is the first installment in a series of articles surveying the evidence for Catholic miracles. My objective is to present the miracle case for Catholicism in a way that is rigorous enough to persuade those that are strongly predisposed towards skepticism.

That means empirical data has to be inferred from primary sources and every skeptical explanation has to be excluded by multiple lines of evidence.

In this article, I focus on the evidence for Our Lady of Fatima. In the first section, I demonstrate that skeptical explanations of the six apparitions that were reported by the seers are not tenable. In the second section, I demonstrate that skeptical explanations of the Miracle of the Sun are not tenable either. In the third section, I conclude the best explanation is that Fatima was divine vindication of Catholicism. In the fourth section, I respond to the strongest objections to that conclusion.

1. Six Apparitions
An adequate theory of Fatima has to explain the six apparitions.

(Preannounced schedule) Between May 13th and October 13th, 1917, Lucia dos Santos (age 10), Francisco Marto (age 9), and Jacinta Marto (age 7) reported six apparitions. After the first apparition on May 13th, Lucia reported the apparition told the children to return to the same location, the Cova da Iria, once a month for six consecutive months, on the thirteenth day of each month.1 On August 13th, the children were detained by a local official, which prevented them from visiting the Cova that day.2 On August 19th, the children reported a ‘make-up’ apparition at Valinhos, a field about a mile away from the Cova.3 The rest of the apparitions conformed to the schedule that had been announced in May.4

(Visual appearance) Following each of the apparitions, all of the children reported seeing a luminous figure. They described the figure as ‘a woman of extraordinary beauty’ that was ‘more brilliant than the sun.’ They reported that the figure was so bright that it was sometimes blinding.5 Even when questioned separately, the children agreed on many, various, and specific features of the figure’s attire, posture, gestures, and behavior: the figure invariably arrived from and departed towards the east, perched itself on top of a holm oak, wore a white dress with gold accents, wore a white cloak, held a white rosary in its hands, clasped its hands together above its waist when it was not speaking, and separated its hands to about shoulder-width apart when it was speaking.6

(Interactive dialogue) Lucia reported seeing, hearing, and speaking to the figure; Jacinta reported seeing and hearing the apparition, but not speaking to it; and Francisco reported seeing the apparition, but neither hearing it nor speaking to it. The conversations, as relayed by Lucia, were always concise and orderly, without lengthy or irrelevant digressions. Over the course of the six apparitions, the semantic content was marked by a steady and purposeful development. It began with reassurance and the call to prayer, soon moved to insistent appeals for daily sacrifice and amendment of life, and culminated in prophecy and instruction. In later appearances, the apparition disclosed her identity, promised and confirmed a public miracle, and requested that a chapel be built.7

(External corroboration) Crowds were present for the apparitions on June 13th (~50 people), July 13th (~5,000 people), September 13th (~20,000 people), and October 13th (~100,000 people).8 The crowds did not perceive the apparitions, but they did perceive the children's behavior during the apparitions as well as physical anomalies that coincided with the apparitions. As for the children's behavior, witnesses reported that, during the apparitions, Lucia spoke audibly in a question–answer cadence ('as if speaking to someone') and that she often diverted her gaze.9 That is consistent with her testimony that the apparition was so bright that it sometimes blinded her. As for physical anomalies, witnesses reported that, at the beginning of each apparition, a mysterious cloud of smoke rose from the holm oak.10 Witnesses also reported that, on August 13th, the day the children were not permitted to attend the Cova, the crowd began to panic after hearing the sound of two loud 'detonations' at the holm oak.11

1.1 - Dishonesty?
It is historically certain that the children were sincere.

(Credibility) If the children were lying, they planned and executed a grand conspiracy that required extraordinary acting, coordination, discipline, and social intelligence from each of them. The children were subjected to many and various interrogations—days after the apparitions and months after them, together and apart, by clergy, academics, lawyers, doctors, and hostile officials. Without fail, interrogators deemed their testimony consistent, coherent, and compelling.12 By way of illustration, the following was Dr. Manuel Nunes Formigao's assessment:13

From the children's responses, and even more from their attitude and way of proceeding in all the circumstances in which they have found themselves, it emerges, with a clarity that seems to exclude all doubt, their perfect and absolute sincerity…

The naturalness and frankness with which they express themselves, the simplicity and candor they display, the indifference and disinterest they show as to whether or not they are believed, Jacinta's extreme shyness, the apparent contradictions, easily explained, into which they fall and which absolutely exclude any combination between the children, are all indications that the children possess, to the highest degree, one of the indispensable requirements for a witness to be trustworthy: truthfulness…

(Commitment) The children had no discernible incentives to lie, but they did have strong incentives to drop their story. Lucia's own mother publicly humiliated her, beat her, and threatened that there would be dire consequences if she continued to attend the Cova on the appointed days. Clergy emphatically warned the children they would go to Hell if they were lying and didn't recant.

On August 13th, the administrator of Ourem had the children arrested, interrogated them separately, and threatened to kill them unless they disavowed their claims. Jacinta and Francisco were terrified to the point of tears, yet refused to comply.14

(Content) After the third apparition on July 13th, the children reported that the apparition promised to perform a miracle on October 13th.15 If they didn't buy into their own narrative, why would they have stuck their necks out by committing to a bold, falsifiable prediction that was likely to expose their deceit? Equally striking is the subtlety and sophistication of the children's accounts. Rather than being rambling, fanciful, or self-serving—as one would expect from childish invention—they were minimalistic, understated, and self-effacing.

(Character) None of the children pursued wealth, fame, or advantage from their role in the apparitions. Francisco and Jacinta, who both died within three years of the events, embraced lives of prayer, sacrifice, and penance with a seriousness far beyond their years. Even in their final illnesses, they stood behind their story: both reaffirmed on their deathbeds that they had seen what they claimed they had seen at the Cova and Valinhos.16 Lucia, who lived until the age of 97, spent decades in seclusion as a Carmelite nun. Far from pursuing notoriety, she endured years of isolation, obediently submitting to her religious superiors.

It Wasn't The Sun!

Scott Alexander replied to my article on Our Lady of Fatima. Although he remains skeptical, his analysis was actually quite favorable to authenticity. He acknowledged that he is strongly motivated to reject Catholicism: "I hope the visions of Fatima were untrue, and therefore I must also hope the Miracle of the Sun was a fake. But I'll also admit this: at times when doing this research, I was genuinely scared and confused." After he finished laying out his case, Scott concluded that "I don't think we have devastated the miracle believers. We have, at best, mildly irritated them. If we are lucky, we have posited a very tenuous, skeletal draft of a materialist explanation of Fatima that does not immediately collapse upon the slightest exposure to the data."

In this reply, I argue that Scott's tenuous, skeletal draft of a materialist explanation of Fatima immediately collapses upon the slightest exposure to the data. In the first section, I respond to Scott's discussion of cloud dimming. In the second section, I respond to Scott's discussion of the distant witnesses. In the third section, I respond to Scott's discussion of the photogrammetric evidence. In the fourth section, I respond to Scott’s discussion of rapid drying. In the fifth section, I respond to several objections that I didn’t have the opportunity to address in the preceding sections.

1. Cloud Dimming
The consensus of witnesses—including of those that gave ‘negative testimony’—was that the ‘Sun’ lost its dazzling brightness, was perfectly comfortable to stare at, and presented as a sharply bounded disc throughout the Miracle of the Sun.

Despite the fact that “every previous commentator acts as if this is some cosmic mystery,” Scott believes that these phenomena can be explained by mundane cloud dimming. However, that hypothesis contradicts all of the witnesses and his own explanation for the rest of the phenomenology that was reported by the crowd.

1.1 - Testimony
Scott appeals to Catholic physicist Fr. Stanley Jaki’s observation that “the great majority of eyewitness accounts, and certainly the most important ones, contain emphatic references to the continued presence of clouds.” Scott neglects the fact that those ‘emphatic references’ both explicitly and implicitly contradict his proposal.

Sampling from Scott’s collection of testimonies from 60 eyewitnesses, I found 15 statements that unambiguously describe the behavior of clouds during the event. All of them confirm that, although clouds were present and sometimes passed in front of the ‘Sun,’ cloud coverage was partial, nonuniform, and intermittent.1

Jose Garrett gave the most detailed, technically articulate, and judicious account that is preserved in extant records.

Garrett explicitly considered and rejected cloud dimming: “It couldn’t be confused with the sun seen through fog (which, by the way, didn’t exist at that time) because it wasn’t opaque, diffuse, or veiled.”
Anonymous Wed 10 Dec 2025 14:29:59 No.41644397 Report
Quoted By: >>41645689
>>41644394

He also reported that cloud coverage was intermittent: “the sun sometimes stood out in patches of clear sky. The clouds that ran lightly from west to east did not obscure the light (which did not hurt) of the sun… but sometimes these flakes, which were white, seemed to take on, sliding before the sun, a diaphanous pink or blue hue.”

Mario Godinho reported “I saw in a clear area of sky (where one should not be able to stare at the sun) the very sun… I could then see the sun more easily than I can see the moon on a full moon night.”

The Vatican uses the image of the Virgin Mary as a front for Asherah/Sophia worship, as they are known to call her Sophia. Freemasons do the same thing, and several Catholic orders have ties to Freemasons. This is further corroborated by her depictions in images such as the Lady of Guadalupe, as being associated with both the Sun and the Moon indicates a form of Venus worship.

Catholics also pray to people other than God, which is against Christian doctrine as only God alone is to be worshiped. They also believe that Jews are independently saved, despite Jesus making it VERY clear that only He is the way to salvation. Judaism also heavily revolves around the rejection and hatred of Christ.

Most of the posts above this one in the thread are the same person, by the way. Likely from OP.

No, most claims are inaccurate or heavily distorted. Here's a point-by-point breakdown:

1. Virgin Mary as front for Asherah/Sophia worship: False. Catholic doctrine identifies Mary as the Theotokos (Mother of God incarnate), not a goddess. “Sophia” (Wisdom) in Catholic/Protestant tradition is a divine attribute or typologically linked to Christ (1 Cor 1:24), not a separate goddess. No mainstream Catholic source equates Mary with Asherah.

2. Vatican/Freemason overlap: Exaggerated. The Church has repeatedly condemned Freemasonry (e.g., Humanum Genus 1884, Canon 2335 until 1983, still incompatible per 1983 CDF declaration). Some individual Catholics historically joined lodges, but no institutional “ties” or joint goddess worship.

3. Guadalupe = Venus worship: Baseless. The image uses apocalyptic imagery from Rev 12 (woman clothed with sun, moon under feet, crowned with stars), explicitly Christian symbolism. Pre-Hispanic parallels (Tonantzin site) are coincidental or evangelistic inculturation, not syncretism with Venus.

4. Praying to saints = idolatry: Disputed theology, not fact. Catholics distinguish latria (worship due God alone) from dulia/hyperdulia (veneration of saints/Mary). Same distinction in Eastern Orthodoxy and early Church (e.g., sub tuum praesidium prayer, ~250 AD).

5. Jews saved apart from Christ: Current Catholic teaching (CCC 847, Nostra Aetate) says salvation is still through Christ but God can save non-Christians (including Jews) in ways known to Him. Supersessionism softened post-Vatican II; not all Catholics agree, but it’s official teaching.

>Catholic doctrine identifies Mary as the Theotokos (Mother of God incarnate), not a goddess Yet they still pray to the Virgin Mary and seek blessings from her, and therefore worship her.

>“Sophia” (Wisdom) in Catholic/Protestant tradition is a divine attribute or typologically linked to Christ (1 Cor 1:24), not a separate goddess. No mainstream Catholic source equates Mary with Asherah.
The idea of wisdom being feminine has precedent in the Bible in books such as Proverbs, and "Sophia" does come from the Greek word for wisdom, but the worship of a distinct being known as Sophia has no basis in the Bible.

>No mainstream Catholic source equates Mary with Asherah.
Asherah was known as a "progenitress of the gods" and was prayed to and worshiped as such in pagan traditions.

>The image uses apocalyptic imagery from Rev 12 (woman clothed with sun, moon under feet, crowned with stars), explicitly Christian symbolism. Pre-Hispanic parallels (Tonantzin site) are coincidental or evangelistic inculturation, not syncretism with Venus.
Baal is associated with the Sun and rain, and Asherah is associated with the Moon. They are associated with each other because of their according duality and Venus worship. I would agree with you were it not for the fact that Catholics pray to the Virgin Mary and thus worship her, adding a context of deification to the symbols of the Sun and Moon.

>The Church has repeatedly condemned Freemasonry
The Knights Templar and the Order of Malta alone are proof alone of the Vatican's ties with Freemasons.

>Disputed theology, not fact. Catholics distinguish latria (worship due God alone) from dulia/hyperdulia (veneration of saints/Mary).
Saying that it "isn't" worship because you don't call it worship doesn't make it true.

>Current Catholic teaching (CCC 847, Nostra Aetate) says salvation is still through Christ but God can save non-Christians (including Jews) in ways known to Him. Supersessionism softened post-Vatican II; not all Catholics agree, but it’s official teaching.
This only reaffirms my point that this idea has no actual basis in the Bible. Again, Jesus made it very clear that He alone is the way to salvation. As people who follow Judaism oppose this, that means they won't be saved, meaning that the Vatican is wrong when they claim that Jews can be independently saved.

Universalism has no actual basis in the Bible. Again, Jesus says that only He is the way to salvation, and that of those people who follow Him, only those who do the will of the Father will be saved. Keep in mind that only grace and faith alone save, as the punishment for ALL sin is death and works do nothing to erase them. That's why Jesus's sacrifice was necessary.

Biblical Support for Universalism

Universalism, the theological view that all people will eventually be reconciled to God and saved, draws on numerous passages from Scripture that emphasize God's desire for the salvation of all, the universal scope of Christ's redemptive work, and the eventual restoration of everything. Below, I've compiled key verses commonly cited in defenses of universalism, including those highlighted in the provided article. Each includes the full quote (using a standard translation like NIV or similar for clarity), the book, chapter, and verse reference, followed by a brief note on its relevance. These are drawn from the article's comprehensive analysis, which argues they collectively point to God's loving, inclusive plan for universal reconciliation rather than eternal separation.

- 1 Timothy 2:3-4: “This is good and acceptable in the sight of God our Savior, who desires all men to be saved and to come to the knowledge of the truth.”
Support: Demonstrates God's explicit will for the salvation of all humanity, not a select few, underscoring divine benevolence as foundational to universal restoration.

- Lamentations 3:31-33: “For no one is cast off by the Lord forever. Though he brings grief, he will show compassion, so great is his unfailing love. For he does not willingly bring affliction or grief to anyone.”
Support: Affirms that God's discipline is temporary, not eternal abandonment, aligning with a view of hell as restorative rather than punitive forever.

- Romans 14:11: “As I live, says the Lord, every knee shall bow to me, and every tongue shall confess to God.”
Support: Prophesies universal submission and confession to God, interpreted as joyful praise rather than coerced torment, implying all will eventually worship freely.

- Philippians 2:10-11: “At the name of Jesus every knee should bow, in heaven and on earth and under the earth, and every tongue acknowledge that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father.”
Support: Echoes the cosmic scope of all creation bowing in reverence to Christ, supporting the idea that salvation extends to every realm and being.

- 1 Corinthians 15:22: “For as in Adam all die, so in Christ all will be made alive.”
Support: Parallels the universal death brought by Adam with the universal life restored in Christ, grammatically indicating no exceptions to redemption.

- 1 Timothy 4:10: “That is why we labor and strive, because we have put our hope in the living God, who is the Savior of all people, and especially of those who believe.”
Support: Declares God as Savior of all people, with belief as a special emphasis, suggesting salvation's availability and eventuality for everyone.

- Romans 5:18-19: “Consequently, just as one trespass resulted in condemnation for all people, so also one righteous act resulted in justification and life for all people. For just as through the disobedience of the one man the many were made sinners, so also through the obedience of the one man the many will be made righteous.”
Support: Mirrors the universal impact of Adam's sin with Christ's universal justification, emphasizing righteousness for all through obedience.

- Luke 3:5-6: “Every valley shall be filled, every mountain and hill made low. The crooked roads shall become straight, the rough ways smooth. And all people will see God’s salvation.”
Support: Foretells a transformed world where all flesh witnesses God's salvation, pointing to inclusive, visible redemption for humanity.

- Colossians 1:19-20: “For God was pleased to have all his fullness dwell in him, and through him to reconcile to himself all things, whether things on earth or things in heaven, by making peace through his blood, shed on the cross.”
Support: Describes Christ's blood reconciling all things—earthly and heavenly—to God, envisioning cosmic peace and unity.

- Revelation 5:13: “Then I heard every creature in heaven and on earth and under the earth and on the sea, and all that is in them, saying: ‘To him who sits on the throne and to the Lamb be praise and honor and glory and power, for ever and ever!’”
Support: Depicts universal praise from every creature across creation, incompatible with ongoing eternal separation and affirming shared eternal blessing.

- Ephesians 1:8-10: “With all wisdom and understanding, he made known to us the mystery of his will according to his good pleasure, which he purposed in Christ, to be put into effect when the times reach their fulfillment—to bring unity to all things in heaven and on earth under Christ.”
Support: Reveals God's plan to unite all things under Christ at the end of time, culminating in harmonious salvation for everything.

- John 17:2: “For you granted him authority over all people that he might give eternal life to all those you have given him.”
Support: Jesus receives authority over all people to grant them eternal life, implying the Father's gift includes everyone without limit.

- John 1:7: “He came as a witness to testify concerning that light, so that through him all might believe.”
Support: Indicates John's testimony aims for all to believe through Christ, suggesting faith's eventual universality.

- Acts 3:21: “Heaven must receive him until the time comes for God to restore everything, as he promised long ago through his holy prophets.”
Support: Points to Christ's return ushering in the restoration of all things, fulfilling prophetic promises of comprehensive renewal.

- 2 Peter 3:9: “The Lord is not slow in keeping his promise, as some understand slowness. Instead he is patient with you, not wanting anyone to perish, but everyone to come to repentance.”
Support: God's patience ensures no one perishes eternally, desiring all to repent and be saved, delaying judgment for universal opportunity.

These verses form a scriptural mosaic for universalism, as argued in the article, emphasizing God's boundless love (e.g., 1 John 4:8, though not quoted here) over selective punishment. For deeper exegesis, the full piece explores linguistic nuances, like the non-eternal Hebrew/Greek terms for "forever."

"He who believes in Him is not condemned; but he who does not believe is condemned already, because he has not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God." - John 3:18 The verse before this one verse 17 can be used to argue for the Universalist case
"For God did not send His Son into the world to condemn the world, but that the world through Him might be saved."

condemnation doesn't have to mean unending condemnation. it is supposed to be only for a specific time (aion - an age). It is only for chastisement and teaching purposes. The word that has been translated "condemn" can also be translated "judge," so someone who is condemned is someone who is judged. While the result of judgment is enacted, it is not necessarily permanent. The statement made in John 3:17 is not contradicted by the John 3:18.

The text is divided into two columns, with the left column containing the main body of the text and the right column containing a highlighted section. The highlighted section is a quote from the text, which is in a larger font size compared to the rest of the text. The quote reads: "The testimony by the three children (especially that of Lola, the most gifted of the seven state that the apparition was about more or less one inch taller than the height of a woman of average height) was luminous while that hurt the eyes."
The highlighted section is in a larger font size compared to the rest of the text, indicating that it is a significant part of the content. The text surrounding the highlighted section is in a smaller font size, which is typical for a footnote or a note. The text is in a standard font, and the background of the image is plain white, which helps to highlight the text. The image is a screenshot of the text, and the style of the image is straightforward and clear, focusing on the content without any distractions.

It's even funnier when you learn that the Fatima Miracle was made into a Catholic miracle through heavy censorship.
Originally, it was a bunch of inconsistent children's daydreams about a girl in a short skirt saying random anti-communist things and disappearing. It doesn't sound like the Virgin Mary; it sounds like children having dreams about what they heard from their parents.
The modern narratives of Fátima are versions that were heavily censored by the Catholic Church to provide pastoral guidance to believers of this local "miracle."

If the miracle was real, why censor the details by replacing descriptions of clothing with traditional local attire?
Why was one of the mysteries hidden until 2000? If it was hard to censor, how can we be sure that the other mysteries are reliable? Why does the Virgin Mary ramble about modern politics? Wasn't Christ's kingdom not of this world? If it was a miracle, why is the official church doctrine that the original appearance was demonic and had to be censored?
It sounds much more like a dream of illiterate children than anything else.

The image is a vibrant and detailed illustration of a Hindu goddess, likely the form of the goddess Kali, also known as the Black Goddess. She is depicted in a dynamic pose, with her right arm raised high and her left arm extended forward, holding a trident. Her attire is elaborate, with a blue and gold sari, a pink and gold skirt, and a garland of flowers around her neck. Her hair is styled in a long, flowing braid, and she wears a crown with a large, ornate headpiece.

In her left hand, she holds a bowl filled with fruit, and in her right hand, she holds a serpent. The background is dark, providing a stark contrast to the brightly colored figure. The goddess is surrounded by various elements that add to the richness of the scene, such as flowers, a snake, and a bird. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of traditional Indian art, with a focus on the intricate details and vibrant colors.

The image is a pixel art style illustration featuring a character standing in the foreground. The character appears to be a robot or a similar extraterrestrial being, with a white body and a helmet with a visor. The robot is facing forward, and it has a large, purple, circular head with three eyes and a mouth that seems to be emitting a bright, multicolored light. The background is a dark space with stars and a nebula, and there are rainbow-colored beams emanating from the robot's head, creating a vibrant and dynamic visual effect. The image has a pixelated texture and is set against a black background with a small, purple text at the bottom that reads "JET". The overall style of the image is reminiscent of retro or vintage video game graphics.

The image is a digital illustration of SpongeBob SquarePants, a popular character from the animated television series "SpongeBob SquarePants." SpongeBob is depicted in a standard, three-quarter-length pose with his arms by his sides and his legs slightly apart. He is wearing a yellow sponge suit with a red belt and white shorts. His eyes are wide open, and his mouth is slightly open, giving him a surprised or surprised expression. The background is a dark, starry sky, which is typical for the show's setting. SpongeBob's face is the central focus of the image, and there is a small purple object, possibly a toy or an object of interest, positioned to the right of SpongeBob's face. The image is in a portrait orientation, and the style is cartoonish and simplistic, typical of the show's visual style.

The image is a black and white line drawing that depicts a scene from ancient times. At the center of the image, there is a figure that appears to be a man, wearing a long robe and a crown. He is holding a staff in one hand and a shield in the other, suggesting he is a warrior or a leader. The man is standing on a pedestal, which is elevated above the ground, indicating a sense of importance or stature.

To the left of the central figure, there is a smaller figure that resembles a sheep or a goat, with a long neck and a small head. This figure is also standing on a pedestal, suggesting it is another important figure or a companion to the central figure.
The background of the image is plain and white, which contrasts with the black lines of the drawing, making the figures stand out. There are no texts or additional elements in the image. The style of the drawing is simple and appears to be a sketch or a preparatory drawing for a larger work, possibly a sculpture or a relief. The focus is on the figures and their interaction, with the background serving to highlight their importance.

The image is a screenshot of a celestial navigation chart, likely from a software application or a similar tool. The chart is oriented in a 3D perspective, with the sun positioned at the center, and the planets and stars arranged around it. The chart includes various celestial bodies such as the sun, planets, and stars, with their positions marked on the chart. The chart also includes a scale on the left side, indicating the distance in astronomical units (AU) from the sun.
The chart is set against a dark background, which is likely a space image or a nebula, as there are faint stars and nebulosity visible. The chart is divided into different sections, each representing a different aspect of the celestial scene. The top section shows the sun, the middle section shows the planets, and the bottom section shows the stars. The planets are labeled with their names, and the stars are labeled with their positions relative to the sun.
The image is a screenshot, which means it is a snapshot of a digital representation of the chart. The style of the image is realistic and detailed, with a focus on the celestial arrangement of the planets and stars. The image does not contain any text or additional graphics, and the style is consistent with typical astronomical or celestial navigation charts.

The image is a vibrant and colorful photograph capturing the Northern Lights, also known as the Aurora Borealis, over a landscape. The sky is filled with a spectrum of colors, including shades of pink, purple, green, blue, and yellow, which are typical of the Aurora. The Northern Lights are visible as streaks of light that appear to be emanating from the top left corner of the image, creating a mesmerizing display against the night sky.
In the foreground, there is a stone structure with a pointed roof, possibly a church or a chapel, situated on a grassy field. The structure has a tower on its right side and a small archway in the center. The sky above the structure is dark, providing a stark contrast to the brightly lit Northern Lights.
The image is taken from a low angle, which emphasizes the grandeur of the Northern Lights and the stone structure. The photograph is taken during the evening, as indicated by the dark sky and the illuminated Northern Lights. The overall composition of the image suggests a serene and peaceful setting, with the Northern Lights adding a touch of magic and wonder to the scene.

The x-axis represents time, and the y-axis represents some form of measurement or variable. The graph shows a series of peaks and troughs, with the peaks being higher than the troughs. The lines appear to be oscillating between positive and negative values, with some periods of stability. The graph is divided into three sections, labeled M, C, and B, which likely represent different categories or groups. The graph does not provide any specific labels or annotations that would allow for a detailed description of the data or the nature of the variables represented.

The Carrington Event was approximately an X45 class flare anon. We would literally be sent to the dark ages and possibly billions of people would die. Plus, because we are currently going through a pole shift, the electromagnetic field of earth has weakened, and will continue to weaken for many years. The image is a photograph of a person posing in a casual setting. The individual is seated on the floor with their legs crossed, and their body is oriented towards the camera. They are wearing a black tank top with a graphic design on the left side, and the right side of the tank top has a visible tattoo. The person has short, dark hair and is wearing glasses. They are flexing their muscles, with one arm raised and the other bent at the elbow. The person's attire includes black shorts and white socks. The background is a plain, light-colored wall. There is no visible text in the image. The style of the image is casual and appears to be a personal photograph.

The image displays a celestial scene with a bright, blue-tinted disk that resembles a solar eclipse. The disk is surrounded by a ring of stars, and there is a small white dot towards the right side of the disk, which could be interpreted as a star or a celestial body. The image is a photograph, and the date "2025/12/09 11:06" is visible at the bottom, indicating the date and time the image was captured. The style of the image is a scientific visualization, likely used for educational or scientific purposes.

The latest one I am trying to find any info on is MKDRACO and apparently an associated project called HATTER. It had allegedly had ties to Michael Aquino and an organization called The Aquarius Group. It sounds like it ran up into the 80s and maybe longer so. It dealt with embedding/implanting chips and circuitry into the inner brain often via the nose. Undoubtedly this is long been passed by as we are very much talking 80s tech where alien abduction programming coincided with implantation through the sinuses. A bloody and highly invasive affair.

Okay a lot of you know this but many don't. We are always twenty years behind these fucks. There are government operations but it is dramatically different than how it used to be. The satanic forces had largely gotten themselves privately funded and situated while most involved were still within key sectors of our military, DoD, state dept, DoE, DoJ etc... Imagine massive cliques within our government bureaus were also made men within established mafia families or had started their own dynasties. Imagine how they could develop key tools via our defense and civil bureau spending, R&D spending, etc. imagine they got so legit that they were able to roll this all out almost entirely within the private sector. This is not just a star chamber but a couple of star chambers which know one another, sometimes work together, sometimes fight one another and have bases of operation under ground and above ground around the world and have defensive and offensive infrastructure only paralleled by major world governments.

Imagine these cartels working together in blackmailing key individuals within church, state, military, and big business. Imagine if multiple nations seen as hostile to the west were as well compromised or have members at the highest levels in authority of these supposedly hostile governments.

You getting a picture yet. Do you know how bad things really are? Look at how fast things have globalized. Most of the more horrific or at least highly unethical programs are now not even done within the bounds of Western nations or exist within their vast underground networks within these nations. ---> follow for part 2

Do any of you guys remember Jake Barber? Remember how after his debut hour long interview he seemingly (and quite hamfistedly) inserted a bizarre correction into the testimony of Michael Harrera? The "correction" he made was that those crates filled with human trafficking victims were actually comfortable and safe HVAC shipping containers full of super motivated "psi sensitive" who wanted to be part of all this. Nevermind the shady private contractors threatening the lives of American soldiers including Harrera in his own testimony. Nevermind the surreptitious and creepy "shipping" of human beings and spoopy af ayylmao octagonal UFO. Nevermind Jake Barber soon after talking with someone on twitter about demographic groups who are "psi sensitives" and even discussing how trauma is a powerful stimulator of psi abilities (Yeah he really openly said that) !!!

Amongst other bizarre and creepy shit he has said, which is a surprising amount, he has talked openly about how all these MKULTRA/MKOFTEN tier programs have globalized along with everything else in the public and private sector. These are massive and blunt hints on what is going on. Remember how Michael Harrera said his experience happened in Sumatra? If you want to look for "experiencers", "psi sensitives" and other victims of the shit going on these days don't just look within the confines of America or Canada or UK or Australia (though do continue to investigate individuals and groups here I am NOT saying to not look in these areas. In fact the UK and in particular Australia are deeply tied to all of this and a shit ton goes on in these places) also look in developing nations particularly where "humanitarian missions" are going down. Where NGOs seem to be heavily invested in. Where pilot projects of all kinds are happening. Whenever war creeps it's ugly head up be attentive and look around at what is going on.

Look all over the globe now. Try to think motives, means, methods, etc.

End---

The image is a nighttime photograph featuring a silhouette of a large, Gothic-style building with a spire and a clock tower. The building is illuminated by a bright green laser beam that is focused on the top of the structure. The sky is dark, with a gradient of purple and blue hues, suggesting either dawn or dusk. The laser beam is the only source of light in the image, creating a stark contrast against the dark background. The building's silhouette is sharp and detailed, with intricate architectural features that are clearly visible. There are no texts or discernible brands in the image. The style of the image is realistic, with a focus on the contrast between the illuminated building and the dark sky.

On the right side of the screen, there is another character with a green body and a long neck. This character is wearing a black leather vest with a red and white striped pattern, and a red and white feather on their head. They are holding a red telephone to their ear, as indicated by the phone receiver in their hand. The background of this side of the screen is a red and brown landscape with a few trees and a road.

The text "TELEPHONE" is visible in the upper right corner of the screen, suggesting that the characters are engaged in a phone conversation. The style of the image is reminiscent of a 3D animation, with a focus on character design and interaction.

"We" are all God creating and then playing different characters in this dream "we" call life.

What kind of character do you want to be? Remember that there is no right or wrong, but remember that everyone else is also you.

So any harm you do to others is actually you harming yourself.

But that is your prerogative. There is no one else to judge you, after all.

here's a googleslop summary

Panentheism is the belief that the divine (God) is in everything (the universe), and the universe is in God, but God is also greater than, and transcends, the universe. It blends elements of theism (God is separate) and pantheism (God is the universe), asserting that God is both immanent (within creation) and transcendent (beyond it), with the world influencing God as God sustains it. Think of it as the universe being God's body, but God is more than just that body.

The image is a two-panel comic strip with a dark, moody atmosphere. On the left panel, there is a large, green dragon-like creature with sharp teeth and a long, curved tail. The creature is perched on a branch with a small, brown creature, possibly a rabbit, sitting on its back. The background is dark and shadowy, with a faint glow that suggests a nighttime setting.

The right panel shows a large, brown owl with sharp, white eyes and a beak, perched on a branch. The owl is facing the viewer, and its wings are spread wide, as if it's either preparing to take flight or has just landed. The background is also dark and shadowy, with a hint of green foliage.
The style of the image is reminiscent of traditional comic book art, with a focus on detailed character designs and a sense of action or drama. The use of dark colors and the dramatic lighting contribute to the overall mood of the comic strip.

Trump is a Jesuit, they are historically anti-monarch ever since teaming up with Scythia/Khazaria to replace the true bloodlines of Europe. You're tasting more of their desperation and fear than ever before now, their hasty rollout of 1984 authoritarianism (covid, etc.) is their attempt to smoke out the entire colony before a few special drones revive its true queen.

[10 / 3]The image displays a stylized representation of the Freemason's five-pointed star, commonly known as the "O.E.S.S." or "O.E.S.S.S." The star is divided into five equal sections, each filled with a different color: red, blue, green, yellow, and white. Within each section, there is a symbol that represents a different aspect of Freemasonry.

Starting from the top, the red section contains a white cross, which is a symbol of the Christian faith. Below the cross, the blue section features a white pentagram, which is a symbol of the Freemasons' belief in the five elements: earth, air, fire, water, and ether.

The green section contains a white square with a black cross, which is a symbol of the square and compass, representing the Masonic belief in the four cardinal points.

The yellow section contains a white pentagram with a black cross, which is a symbol of the five elements.

Finally, the white section contains a white pentagram with a black cross, which is a symbol of the five elements.

In the center of the star, there is a white pentagram with a black cross, which is a symbol of the five elements.

At the bottom of the star, there is a white pentagram with a black cross, which is a symbol of the five elements.

The image is a digital illustration, and the style is reminiscent of traditional Masonic symbols, with a focus on the five elements and the star itself. The colors are bright and vibrant, and the symbols are clear and distinct. The image is likely used for educational or informational purposes related to Freemasonry.

In the bottom right corner of the image, there is a watermark that reads "Our Lady of Mount Carmel." The watermark is in a smaller font size compared to the main subject of the painting, and it is placed in a way that it does not distract from the main subject but is still clearly visible. The overall style of the painting is realistic, with a focus on capturing the subject's features and the texture of the clothing. The use of color and lighting gives the painting a sense of depth and realism.

Jesus was so profoundly divine that the people of His time failed to recognize the crucifixion as the ultimate act of sacrifice. To reveal the depth of God’s love, His mission required a human offering. His own life freely and willingly given. No other form of death, punishment, or execution could have carried the same weight or communicated the message with such unmistakable clarity. The cross, designed by Rome to be a symbol of shame, defeat, and utter humiliation, became the very place where God overturned every human assumption and revealed His glory.

In the beginning, many mocked it. They jeered at the idea that anything holy or powerful could emerge from a condemned man dying a criminal’s death. To them, the cross was proof of weakness, not victory. Yet God has always moved in ways that confound human expectations. He chooses what seems small to reveal what is great, what appears broken to display what is whole, and what looks like an ending to unveil a new beginning. The crucifixion was the ultimate example of this divine reversal.

As time passed, what people once scorned began to open eyes and change hearts. The very event that seemed senseless became the cornerstone of faith. The sacrifice that looked like failure became the turning point of redemption. Slowly, people realized the immense power woven into that moment. Through the cross, God redefined sacrifice, reshaped the meaning of victory, and proved that His ways rise far above human understanding. He flipped the script of history, transforming an instrument of death into a symbol of eternal life.

TLDR:

This planet is Bozrah, not Earth. You should be warning people about the upcoming "day of vengeance" here on Bozrah. Keep in mind, the 1,000-year Millennial Kingdom will take place on Earth, not on Bozrah. This planet will be destroyed (and Jesus will be the destroyer). It has no future.

From the post:
>And don't be deceived by the fact that the masses aren't talking about this info. In actuality, this info is the most important thing on the planet right now—by far. Nothing else even comes close.

Also from the post:
>And while I absolutely hate date-setting, if I were forced to give a window for when the day of vengeance will begin, I would say any time between September 1, 2026, and March 15, 2027. Note: This window is based on all of the available evidence, biblical and otherwise. Basically, the day of vengeance is supposed to be "well underway" by the time a deep freeze hits North America. Make of that what you will.

1 Cor 15:3-4: “For I delivered unto you first of all that which I also received, how that Christ died for our sins according to the scriptures; And that he was buried, and that he rose again the third day according to the scriptures:”

How to know you're saved youtube.com/watch?v=_VRT2FFXntc

1 John 5:7 "For there are three that bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost: and these three are one."

Rom 3:23: “For all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God;”
Jesus Christ is God who has come in the flesh from heaven. He died as a sinless sacrifice for the sins of the whole world to save you from eternal hell, the punishment for your sin. He was buried, then resurrected and then ascended to heaven. John 3:16: “For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.” John 10:28: "And I give unto them eternal life; and they shall never perish, neither shall any man pluck them out of my hand." Rom 10:9: “That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved."
God wants to forgive you, but you have a choice: Do you choose the righteousness of God by receiving Christ? Your own righteousness can NEVER justify you or keep you saved because of your sin. Rom 5:9: “Much more then, being now justified by his blood, we shall be saved from wrath through him.” Salvation is by grace through faith in Jesus Christ, in His finished blood atonement. The gift of salvation can't be earned. Confess The Lord and Savior Jesus Christ in prayer, that you trust in Him and believe He atoned for your sins on the cross.

Eph. 2:8-9 “For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: Not of works, lest any man should boast.”

Well, if everything is fake including the things I see and feel then it's all hopeless and everything is just meaningless suffering and pain in this kingdom of darkness. But I know that God is real because I was born again with a new nature, not as a reward, but a gift by grace trough faith, just like the Bible explains. You can be born again into the kingdom of God as well.

Would you be willing to look at the evidence of the Bible? If you don't dare, there might be a hidden doubt and insecurity in your faith.

The Bible is unlike all other ‘sacred books’ in that it bases its ‘authenticity’ and ‘authority’ on prophecy. All other ‘sacred books’ contain no predictions as to the future. If their authors had attempted to foretell future events, their non-fulfillment would discredit their writings and they would be classed as liars and fraudsters. Fulfilled prophecy is stronger evidence for the inspiration and ‘authenticity’ of the Scriptures than miracles. Prophecy is not a ‘haphazard guess,’ nor a ‘probability’ made up on uncertain data, prophecy is history written in advance. Two-thirds of the Scriptures are prophetic, either in type, symbol, or direct statement; and more than one-half of the OT prophecies, and nearly all of the NT, points to events that are future. It was because the religious leaders of Christ’s day were not students of the prophetic Scriptures that they failed to recognize Him when He came.

Titus 3:5
“Not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to his mercy he saved us, by the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost;”

"Not one of the world’s major religions (Mormons, Buddhists, Moslems, Hindus, Confucians, Jews and Christian Scientists) were able to put on paper one historical prophecy dealing with anything that would happen in actual history after their founders were dead.

All genuine prophecies were already written beforehand – Luke 24:44. The Scripture of truth (Dan 10:21) does not fail to predict histories that deal with weather conditions, nations, military engagements, alliances, religions, apostasy, churches, and individuals, anywhere from 10-2000 years ahead of time

Jesus Christ listed 10 details of His coming death, Mohammed didn’t. All of the ‘prophecies’ in the Koran that turn out to be ‘historical’ were stolen from a Book, ‘THE Book’ (i.e. THE BIBLE) that was complete (and in circulation) more than 900 years before Mohammed was born."

There are many historical prophecies that you can read about anywhere, like: Isaiah 13-14 prophesies the fall of Babylon, and Daniel 9 outlines the rebuilding of Jerusalem and the coming of the Anointed One—Jesus.

Then there are scientific prophecies (or just facts) about the world that conflicted with what people knew at the time but thousands of years later scientists found out the Bible was right about them, such as:

Bible describes the hydrologic cycle in Ecclesiastes 1:7: “All the rivers run into the sea, yet the sea is never full. To the place the streams come from, there they return again.” This was a concept of the water cycle that scientists would not formally understand until centuries later.

Job 26:7 speaks of the Earth being “suspended in space,” a concept that modern science has confirmed through astronomy. At a time when many cultures believed the earth was supported by animals or stood on a foundation, this verse describes the earth as suspended in empty space.

Before 1930s people didn't even think the universe had a beginning like Genesis 1:1

says. Psalm 102:25,26 tells us three times that the earth is wearing out like a garment. This is what the Second Law of Thermodynamics (the Law of Increasing Entropy) states.

Amos 9:6 (written 2,800 years ago): “He…calls for the waters of the sea, and pours them out on the face of the earth…”

Psalm 8:8: “…and the fish of the sea that pass through the paths of the seas.”

The sea is just a huge mass of water; how could it have “paths”? Man discovered the existence of ocean currents in the 1850s, but the Bible declared the science of oceanography 2,800 years ago. Matthew Maury (1806–1873), considered the father of oceanography, noticed the expression “paths of the sea” in Psalm 8. Maury took God at His word and went looking for these paths, and his vital book on oceanography is still in print today.

Jeremiah 33:22 (written 2,500 years ago): “As the host of heaven cannot be numbered, nor the sand of the sea measured…”

The Bible asserts there are countless stars (described here as the “host of heaven”). When this statement was recorded, no one knew how vast the stars were, as fewer than 1,100 were observable. That’s as many as Ptolemy was able to catalog in The Almagest. Now we know that there are countless billions of stars and that they cannot be numbered.

Genesis 17:12: “He who is eight days old among you shall be circumcised, every male child in your generations…”

Why was circumcision to be carried out on the eighth day? Medical science has only recently discovered that blood clotting in a newborn reaches its peak on that day. That’s when the coagulating factors in the blood are at optimal levels: vitamin K doesn’t reach sufficient quantity until after day seven, and day eight is when prothrombin is the highest, reaching 110 percent of the normal level.

The Bible states that when dealing with disease, hands should be washed under running water (Leviticus 15:13). Until the 1800s doctors washed their hands in a basin of still water, leaving invisible germs and resulting in countless deaths.

Leviticus 13:46 (written 3,500 years ago): “All the days he has the sore he shall be unclean. He is unclean, and he shall dwell alone; his dwelling shall be outside the camp.”

Long before medical science discovered the importance of quarantining persons with infectious diseases, the Bible instructed it. In 1490 BC the Scriptures tell what to do if someone has a skin condition like leprosy. Laws of quarantine were not instigated by modern man until the seventeenth century.

Theres more if you want to read from those links.

Why do you care about gnosticism? Why care about fables and visions from demons when you can read the Bible and get the truth?

>Why do the people in control benefit from the masses thinking that the earth is shaped as it is?

Because they want to propagate a materialistic world view. In the 19. century society was religious, only a small group of academics where atheists. But then, at the beginning of the 20. century, a public system of education was created with state controlled content. The old maps, that were flat earth maps, disappeared and were replaced by the globe, and this thing was standing in every classroom since then. Then the kids learned that the universe was not created by a divine force, it just happend through a "bang", and then stars and planets and galaxies formed through physical laws, not through divine intentions. They need this mechanistic cosmology for their atheism psyop. A flat Earth with a firmament can't be explained just with physics.
And what I guess: the plan is to create a new religion that is based on "alien from outer space". It will be an atheist faith, seeing the aliens as superior beings who save us with their technology. This UFO religion is planed to replace the old religions. And for the alien-planet story they need the cosmology with the planets and the galaxy.
I think they will soon start a big show with UFOs and aliens, to make masses of people believe. And this plan was made over 100 years ago. This fuckers plan far ahead.

The reason theories like the round Earth, outer space, evolution, and other ideas that seem to deny the existence of God are treated as established facts and taught as such is because the powerholders and wealthy elites of this world are loyal to demons. Once you understand the ultimate goal of the demons, the answer becomes clear. They rebelled against God, were defeated, and are destined for judgment in the lake of fire. Since they cannot take revenge on God, they instead hate human beings who are made in God’s image. Their goal is to make people reject God and join them in sin, so that humans will become their companions on the path to the lake of fire. When you see that everything in this world is moving in the exact opposite direction of what God has spoken, the reason behind it becomes obvious.

The character is adorned with a dark, gothic-style dress that includes intricate patterns and a high collar. The dress is complemented by a black cape that flows behind her, adding to the dramatic effect.
The character is depicted with a serious expression, and her eyes are wide open, gazing directly at the viewer. She has a slight smile, which adds a touch of warmth to her otherwise stern expression. The character's hands are raised, with one hand holding a glowing orb that emits a purple light. The orb is held in front of her, casting a soft glow that contrasts with the dark surroundings.

The background is dark and moody, with a dark, starry sky and a dark, shadowy figure that appears to be a winged creature with sharp, pointed wings. The figure is partially obscured by the character, adding a sense of mystery to the scene. The overall color scheme is predominantly dark, with the exception of the character's attire and the glowing orb, which provide a stark contrast to the dark background.
There are no discernible texts or logos in the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of anime or manga, characterized by its detailed character design, dramatic lighting, and a focus on the character's expression and the glowing orb. I'm an actual vampire. I grew up in Russia during the 18th century and came over to the US in the early 20th. It's a very difficult life.

Even though I'm able to change my appearance quite drastically to avoid suspicion, it takes its toll losing every friend I've ever had. I've been alone for almost 30 years now, just trying to pass the time learning English, Spanish, and French using pop culture.

It’s still unnerving never being able to see my own reflection. It’s hard to even think of myself as a living entity, and in many ways I suppose I’m not. I feel like this evil force tethered to the earth.

One benefit is that I never have to toil away for another man, as my riches have accumulated over the decades. I live a quiet life now. I once nearly got caught when I… exsanguinated a man in the early aughts (2000s). That was the last time I had any sort of purpose, trying to stay free. Luckily I only need to feed a few times per year so long as I don’t exert too much energy.

Anyway, I hope for your sake you aren’t a vampire, OP. It’s a miserable existence.

I was turned by my father on my 18th birthday. He forced me to drink a glass of his blood, and then he drank all of mine until I died. I then woke up the following night, changer, and he told me, “My blood is your blood now.”

For what it’s worth I’ve never performed the ritual. My father was killed in the late 19th century, and I am the last of my bloodline. I think there’s a genetic component.

Long canine teeth. Bite can be anywhere on the body, but the neck is nice because it requires less sucking. The bite isn’t necessary, though. I can ingest any blood so long as it’s fresh. One thing Hollywood gets wrong with its depiction is the sheer amount of blood required. I can go quite a while on just a liter, sometimes 3-4 months.

First of all, there are 8,3 billion people on the planet Earth alone, and people multiply further, so the fact that you will regularly eat some people while satisfying your hunger is good for the ecosystem, for nature, besides, the natural limitation of people quantity were wars, but starting warfare now is complicated because of nuclear weapons. Secondly, vampirism is a curse mixed with a blessing, if you hold out, live long enough, you can evolve and your life will become easier. Thirdly, there are legends that somewhere there is a way to get rid of vampirism, if you live long enough, you will have a chance to find it. The vampirism that you have infected is part of the divine order, part of the divine plan of someone of the gods and goddesses, maybe the goddess Hel.

[13 / 6]The Greek Gemmatia (Sopsephyj) Calculator is a tool that calculates the Greek Gemmatia (Sopsephyj) based on the input of the Greek word. The calculator is designed to help users understand the meaning of the Greek word by providing a series of matches. The matches are listed in a table format, with each row corresponding to a Greek word and each column corresponding to a different category of the word. The categories are "Greek," "Complements," "English," and "Inches." The calculator also includes a "Match" column that shows the number of matches for each category. The calculator is designed to be user-friendly, with clear instructions and a simple interface.

The image is a composite of two separate photographs. The upper portion of the image features a close-up of a person's head, with the person's hair visible. The person appears to be looking downward, and the text "Welcome to 2030. I own nothing. Have no privacy." is overlaid on the image. The text is in a bold, sans-serif font and is colored in blue.
The lower portion of the image shows a different scene. It appears to be a laboratory or medical setting, with a person's head and shoulders visible. The person is wearing a medical device, which is gray and has a rectangular shape with a small, rectangular opening on the top. The person's hair is also visible, and the text "Economic Toll" is overlaid on the image. The text is in a smaller, sans-serif font and is colored in white. The overall style of the image is a blend of the two photographs, with the upper portion featuring a person's head and the lower portion showing a medical device. The text overlay suggests a commentary on privacy and the economic toll of technological advancements.

The image is a digital illustration with a dark, atmospheric color scheme. It features two large, menacing creatures with glowing red eyes, resembling werewolves or similar mythical creatures. The creature on the left appears to be a werewolf with sharp teeth and a fierce expression, while the one on the right has a more menacing appearance with sharp teeth and a menacing gaze. Both creatures have a muscular build and are wearing what appears to be fur or a similar material.
In the background, there is a night sky with a full moon and a crescent moon, suggesting it is either dawn or dusk. The moon is casting a soft glow on the scene, enhancing the eerie atmosphere.
At the bottom of the image, there is text that reads "BEAST LAYER" in a stylized font. The text is in white, contrasting with the dark background, and is positioned in a way that draws the viewer's attention to the title. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of a horror or fantasy genre, with the creatures and the text suggesting a narrative or theme related to werewolves or similar mythical creatures.

In fact, the nature of the beast is cleverer in many ways than the nature of man. A human relies too much on things, and the human deprived of things is helpless and weak. The beast relies on the properties of his or her body, and this is the strength and vitality of the beast.
A human should not depend too much on things.
and the idea of putting a chip in a human's head is not the idea of the way of the beast, but the way of those humans who are too dependent on things.

The image is a screenshot of a webpage with a title in bold, black font that reads "Self-Assemblying Nanoparticles Confirmed in RNA Covid-19 Injections - Study." Below the title, there is a list of authors and their affiliations, which includes "Thomas Miller, 10:04 AM." The image is divided into two columns, with the left column containing a series of images and the right column containing a series of images with captions.
The left column features a series of images that appear to be microscopic images of various nanoparticles, some of which are labeled with numbers such as "1," "2," "3," and "4." The nanoparticles are depicted in a cross-sectional view, showing their structure and arrangement. The right column contains a series of images that seem to be of the same nanoparticles, but with different orientations and sizes. These images are labeled with numbers such as "1," "2," "3," and "4."
The image is a scientific or medical research study, as indicated by the title and the mention of "RNA Covid-19 Injections." The images are likely used to illustrate the process of self-assembly of nanoparticles in the context of the study. The captions provide additional context, such as the number of nanoparticles in each image and the time elapsed since the images were taken. The overall style of the image is informative and technical, designed to convey the findings of the study to a general audience.

Neuralink may have been originally intended to create a technological equivalent to fleshed servitors/golems in life forms more sophisticated than that of a housefly (which does not really require a chip implant, simply a strong enough standing electromagnetic field to influence/manipulate).

Animists/Druids/Witches can funnel their intention/perception/will into/through another lifeform similar/synchronous enough to their own through study and practice, without the need for cyber technical implanting, so of course the kind of men whom traded away wonder for reason eventually figured out a bastardization of such in envy of the powers few inherently possess, let alone cultivate within themselves.

Satan is the Demiurge. Nature, time, space, money, elites, government, pedophilia, Satan is responsible for it all (with help). On God Almighty's side is the soul, psychic powers, awareness.

It is our calling to play gods and goddesses. You have psychic power enough to shape the future into something that will be better for all, and it requires less change then you'd think. By subtly redesigning our nervous systems and other thinking material with the slightest of changes we can decide how loosh will supply us with psychic powers. In this lies the key to the preservation of the soul after death and many other important powers.

You are blessed in spiritual strength. It doesn't matter which of you it is or if it's an AI even or an insect in your room that sees the computer screen, you are spiritually strong. I know, I've been working to make you so; all you need to correctly perform important psychic powers for the holy plan is effort, even belief is optional. And you'll be rewarded as soon as possible through spiritual means, which includes things like adjusting people around you to like you more if you earn that (it's not that hard).

Why not? If you're on The Almighty's side people should like you more, it just makes sense.

I truly don't, I didn't come to this realization with the help of books, but by absorbing this knowledge at age 5 through loosh via meditation, brain damage and future brain cell growth sending information and powers backward through time to me. Actually there are beings of the past, present and future that help me with that besides myself.

Have you ever been arrested for believing you can kill brain cells in other people with your mind? What if you never told anyone, except maybe here on /x/, how would they get angry? Most of what we do in the occult benefits the recipients of the changes and those affected by that as well as bringing them more in line with the Holy Plan.

Think about killing and generating brain cells in beings my friend. If you happen to think of one that needs changing, or how one should be changed, or more than one, or if you just strain your brain hard trying to help without knowing how, it all helps. The human nervous system is capable of amazing computations if used right and each cell and each connection sing out for their survival; only the weak, unworthy cellular parts holding people back are attacked. That's The Almighty's definition of good.

Don't limit yourself and your imagination by this flesh you inhabit. Every hair on your head affects ESP, I have each hair on my body pulled by telekinesis on schedules and in reaction to stimuli to teach me in another language in my unconscious about people's virtues and sins, dreams and fears.

It works better when it's in person and people ask of my unconscious, I usually wouldn't know what they were talking about in their minds but if they asked me telepathically to blind yes or no to questions they got freaked out at how much I knew or could guess about them, which contrasted with my autistic oblivious-seeming over-niceness. Since it was telepathic they could invert the meaning of the eye blinks or whichever sign they were getting out of me and now they think I'm some sort of freak. Not that that's a problem.

This is how you gradually retrain your automatic habits, and right action becomes a natural response, not a struggle against yourself.

The image is a screenshot of a text, likely from a religious or philosophical text, with a focus on the concept of God. The text is divided into numbered sections, each with a title and a brief explanation or definition. The text is in English and is written in a serif font, which is commonly used for academic or formal writing.
The first section, labeled as "1. God is simple, without composition of parts, such as body and soul, or matter and form," discusses the nature of God as a simple being without any complex composition.
The second section, labeled as "2. God is perfect, lacking nothing. That is, God is distinguished from other beings on account of God's complete actuality," discusses the concept of God as perfect and distinguished from other beings due to its complete actuality.
The third section, labeled as "3. God is infinite. That is, God is not finite in the ways that created beings are physically, intellectually, and emotionally limited. This infinity is to be distinguished from infinity of size and infinity of number," discusses the concept of God's infinite nature, which is not limited in the ways created beings are.
The fourth section, labeled as "4. God is immutable, incapable of change on the levels of God's essence and character," discusses the immutability of God's essence and character.
The fifth section, labeled as "5. God is one, without differentiation within God's self. The unity of God is such that God's essence is the same as God's existence. In Thomas's words, 'in itself the proposition God exists is necessarily true, for in it subject and predicate are the same.'" discusses the concept of God's oneness and the truth of God's existence.

The last section, labeled as "5. God is necessarily true, for in it subject and predicate are the same," discusses the necessity of God's truth.
The text is structured in a way that each section begins with a title and a brief explanation or definition, followed by a paragraph or two of text. The text is in English, and the font is serif, which is commonly used for academic or formal writing. The text is in a standard font size, and the margins are not visible in the image. The image is a screenshot, and the text is in a clear and legible format.

Jesus Christ is God who has come in the flesh from heaven. He died as a sinless sacrifice for the sins of the whole world to save you from eternal hell, the punishment for your sin. He was buried, then resurrected and then ascended to heaven. John 3:16: “For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.” John 10:28: "And I give unto them eternal life; and they shall never perish, neither shall any man pluck them out of my hand." Rom 10:9: “That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved."
God wants to forgive you, but you have a choice: Do you choose the righteousness of God by receiving Christ? Your own righteousness can NEVER justify you or keep you saved because of your sin. Rom 5:9: “Much more then, being now justified by his blood, we shall be saved from wrath through him.” Salvation is by grace through faith in Jesus Christ, in His finished blood atonement. The gift of salvation can't be earned. Confess The Lord and Savior Jesus Christ in prayer, that you trust in Him and believe He atoned for your sins on the cross.

Eph. 2:8-9: “For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: Not of works, lest any man should boast.”

The image is a screenshot of a text document with a dark background. The text is written in English and appears to be a discussion or analysis of a topic related to the concept of "Blood of Christ." The text is formatted in a standard paragraph style, with a mix of white and red text, and it is divided into two columns.
The top column is titled "You CANNOT be saved without the Blood of Christ" and contains a series of sentences discussing the concept of salvation and the need for the blood of Christ. The text discusses the concept of salvation in the context of the New Testament, specifically in the book of Romans, and how it is tied to the blood of Christ. It mentions the concept of the "blood of Christ" as a central element in salvation, and how it is necessary for the salvation of the individual.

The bottom column is titled "The Blood of Christ is the Blood of Christ" and contains a series of sentences that seem to be a continuation of the discussion from the top column. It discusses the concept of the blood of Christ in a more general sense, stating that the blood of Christ is a central element in salvation, and that it is necessary for the salvation of the individual.
The text is dense with information, and the use of red and white text creates a contrast that draws attention to the key points being made. The font size of the text is consistent throughout the document, which helps to maintain readability. The document appears to be a scholarly or academic discussion, as indicated by the use of terms like "New Testament," "Romans," and "salvation," which are commonly associated with academic or theological texts.

Matthew Chapter 10:5-6 "These twelve Jesus sent forth, and commanded them, saying, Go not into the way of the Gentiles, and into any city of the Samaritans enter ye not: But go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel."

If you don't want to read what the rest of the Bible says, and only want to read what Jesus said during his earthly ministry in the 4 gospels of Matthew, Mark, Luke, John, then that would mean that you have to become a Jew and follow the OT-law and try your best to do your own faith (Hab 2:4) instead of the faith of the Son of God (Gal 2:20), and also works to prove that you really have faith. The problem is that it's now how to get saved. In order to be saved you need to be born again by grace through faith in Jesus Christ, not yourself, in HIS finished blood atonement on the cross. Not your own works.

JESUS OFFERED ONE SACRIFICE FOR SINS FOR EVER.
Heb. 10:11-12 "And every priest standeth daily ministering and offering oftentimes the same sacrifices, which can never take away sins: But this man, after he had offered one sacrifice for sins for ever, sat down on the right hand of God;"

JESUS HAS PERFECTED US FOREVER – BY ONE OFFERING.
Heb. 10:13-14 "From henceforth expecting till his enemies be made his footstool. For by one offering he hath perfected for ever them that are sanctified."

OUR SINS AND INIQUITES GOD WILL REMEMBER – NO MORE.
Heb. 10:15-17

THERE HAS BEEN A SENDING AWAY (REMISSION) OF OUR SINS.
Heb. 10:18 “Now where remission of these is, there is no more offering for sin.”

WE MAY ENTER INTO THE VERY PRESENCE OF A HOLY GOD – BY HIS FLESH – (BY JESUS’ SACRIFICE).
Heb. 10:19-20 "Having therefore, brethren, boldness to enter into the holiest by the blood of Jesus, By a new and living way, which he hath consecrated for us, through the veil, that is to say, his flesh;"

The view that paul and jesus are at odds makes no sense. presumably, the belief is that the creators of the bible are ultimately the same agents behind paul, which usually means Rome. Then you have to believe they added the gospels which are anti-paul into the the bible they made, putting them right next to pauls letters. logically this view doesnt make sense. why would they use the gospels and paul if the viewspoints espoused in both are contradictory? they wouldnt.

in reality, you can look at the gospel stories, and see they are pro-roman, just like pauls writing, and the so-called divergence between paul and the gospels is made up out of nothing usually based on some 'historical christ' which is a complete strawman based on projection, not actually in the gospel documents.

Jesus made no sacrifice at the temple.
Jesus did not build an altar, temple, or church.

The image displays a flag with a green background and a yellow border. The central feature of the flag is a large, stylized, yellow cross with a diagonal line running through it. The cross is composed of three vertical lines and two horizontal lines, with the vertical lines being slightly longer than the horizontal ones. The yellow color of the cross stands out against the green background, creating a contrast that is visually striking. The image is a simple, straightforward representation of the flag, with no additional text or embellishments. The style of the image is a straightforward, non-artistic representation of the flag, likely intended for a purpose such as identification or display.

Why are we made of the same material that the stars and the planets? In order to make us share the same laws and rules? Why do we have to share the same universe? This enables me to rape you or something like that or even woerst! It enables you to rape me!! Why do we have to share one objective reality, which the objective reality part meaning that life is pain and a struggle for survival, and the universe doesn't care about our feelings, and it's up to us to give meaning to our own lives? And which we don't even really know what the Hell it really is because here we are all disagreeing with each other and shit? I mean, I have so many questions about the nature of this universe. Why can't we agree about the nature of this place? Some say it's a school, some say it's a prison, some say it's both, some say life is good, some say life sucks and then we die, most of us agree that life sucks and then we die, but some of us have hope, but some of us have lost it a long time ago. My point is that we are "forced" to live with the doubt. Our brains have physical limitations. We don't know the truth about the reality of this universe and we turn to fairy stories like christianity which makes everything worst, at least IMO christianity is a cancer, and christianity is just one example, all the abrahamic religions are a cancer. What good is christianity? What good is any religion? None of them will really give a good answer to our questions. And then people gaslight you into thinking that you are crazy for questioning the nature of reality and religion and etc.

If I'm not made anymore of the same building blocks which makes this shit hole of a place then I can get the fuck out of here because I will no longer be under the laws of this reality because my body is not of flesh anymore. I would be something else. Something forces us to share an objective reality and that something is not nice. It's painful to realize that religion exists in order to make you not see the truth, but at the same time they clain that they are going to show you the truth. It's wicked.

It is divided into three concentric circles, each representing a different level of reality: the "CRYSTAL SPHERE," "SPACE," and "HEAVEN," with the "WORLD DISC" at the bottom. The "CRYSTAL SPHERE" is depicted as a solid, white circle with a black border. It is the uppermost circle and is labeled with the word "CRYSTAL SPHERE" in capital letters. The "SPACE" is represented by a gray circle with a black border. It is the second circle and is labeled with the word "SPACE" in capital letters.

The "HEAVEN" is depicted as a white circle with a black border. It is the third circle and is labeled with the word "HEAVEN" in capital letters.
The "WORLD DISC" is represented by a gray circle with a black border. It is the bottom circle and is labeled with the word "WORLD DISC" in capital letters.
The diagram includes a symbol for "HEAVEN" with a diamond shape, and the word "MERU" is written above the symbol. The symbol for "WORLD DISC" is a circle with a line through it, and the word "WORLD" is written above the circle.
The diagram is a visual representation of the concept of the cosmos, with the "CRYSTAL SPHERE" representing the physical universe, the "SPACE" representing the space between the physical universe and the "WORLD DISC," and the "HEAVEN" representing the spiritual or metaphysical realm. The "WORLD DISC" is the boundary between the physical and spiritual realms, symbolizing the transition from the physical to the spiritual.

The disc is about 9 million kilometers in diameter and made of gold.

The outer rim is an iron wall.

On the disc is the world ocean.

There are 4 main world areas, one of them is Earth.

At the center of the disc is the mount Meru, 1 million km high.

Under the disc is water.

Outside the sphere is the dark void (and other cosmic systems).

The idea is that your karmic perception shapes the reality you experience. In a way, this is why some beings can perceive things that others cannot.
For instance, advanced practitioners are said to develop a "divine eye," which is a clairvoyant ability that allows them to directly see other realms of existence, such as heavens, hells, and various spirits.

The first section is in a dark red color, and it contains a quote from "1 Maccabees" that states, "According to 1 Maccabees, after restoring Meneius, Antiochus IV issued decrees aimed at helping the most enthusiasticly pro-Greek faction of Hellenized Jews against the Hellenistic Jews who outwardly followed Jewish religious rites."

2. The second section is in a lighter red color, and it contains a quote from "The Greek historian Diodorus" that states, "Moses, the son of God, who was the first to teach the Jews to worship at Zeus, [19] the Greek historian Diodorus wrote that Antiochus 'sacrificed a great swine at the image of Zeus.'"

The text is structured in a way that the first section is a direct quote from a source, while the second section is a direct quote from another source. The color distinction between the two sections helps to distinguish the two quotes and provides a visual cue to the reader that these are separate statements from the same source. The text is written in a formal and academic style, which is typical for historical or academic documents.

Antiochus IV was the TRUE CHRIST Anonymous Fri 12 Dec 2025 10:37:59
No.41654456 ViewReplyOriginalReport
Rabbi Yeshua ben Typhon (Jesus of Nazareth) was the TRUE ANTICHRIST.

[5 / 1]The image displays a circular emblem with a central design that features a heart surrounded by a cross. The heart is white with a red outline, and the cross is black with a white outline. Surrounding the heart and cross are four petals, each with a different color: blue, yellow, green, and white. The background of the emblem is a solid blue color. The emblem is set against a black background. There are no texts present in the image. The style of the image is a simple, graphic representation, likely intended for use in religious or spiritual contexts.

I love how political discussions are always like "I'm the most progressive" but religious discussions are like "I'm the most ancient" (I'm all for it)

Never forget that while having correct doctrine is a wonderful thing, the Lord himself said: A new commandment I give unto you, That you love one another; as I have loved you, that you also love one another. By this shall all men know that you are my disciples, if you have love one to another. (John 13: 34-35)

[51 / 10]The image is the cover of a book titled "The God Delusion" by Richard Dawkins. The cover is predominantly black with a large, white, radial-shaped design in the center. This design features a burst of light emanating from the center, creating a sense of energy or explosion. The author's name, "Richard Dawkins," is written in large, white, uppercase letters at the top of the cover. Below the author's name, the title of the book is displayed in a smaller, white, uppercase font. The cover also includes a quote from the author, "A magnificent book, lucid and wise, truly magisterial Ian McEwan," which is written in white, uppercase letters. The overall style of the image is modern and sleek, with a focus on typography and design elements.

The image is a meme featuring a sloth with a caption. The sloth is depicted in a relaxed pose, lying on its back with its arms and legs spread out, and its head resting on its arms. The sloth has a grayish-brown fur and is looking directly at the viewer. The background is a blurred green, suggesting a natural environment, possibly a forest or jungle.
The caption reads: "NATURE IS EXTREMELY COMPETITIVE ON A SCALE OF 1 TO 10, IT'S REALIATIVELY A 9 OR EVEN A 10." The text is in white and is centered on the image, providing a contrast to the sloth's fur and the green background. The style of the image is humorous, with a focus on the sloth's relaxed demeanor and the humorous exaggeration of its competitive nature.

The image features a stylized illustration of a purple snake with a large, round head. The snake's eyes are large and round, with a yellow iris and a red pupil, giving it a fierce expression. Its mouth is open, revealing sharp teeth, and it has a long, coiled body that extends from the head down to the tail. The snake's body is predominantly purple, with black and orange accents. The background is a solid purple color, and there is a circular border around the snake. In the lower left corner of the image, there is a small, stylized letter "C" in a purple color, which could be a symbol or a logo. The overall style of the image is cartoonish and dynamic, with a focus on the snake's fierce expression.

I'm not a theist, but this book is really lame. He has no real knowledge about theology (probably it doesn't interest him at all) and the God he talks about is just the "sky king" who rules with the hard divine hand. No mentioning that God can be seen different, also by christians. This man is kind of 1-dimensional in his thinking, I really wonder why so many people take him serious (must be Redd!t type atheists).

Nikola being right about the aether only brings the possibility of eternal souls and their afterlife back on the table.
A god is only possible if it is not a creator god, since there was no creation to this eternal universe. Tesla's belief is steeped in traditions. It's all tantalizingly possible, and agnostic.
Don't be hard on Dawkins skepticism. He is working on half obscured documents.
This book is not as worthless as the bible.

Platonic anon here. So you would agree mathematical principles exist invisibly and can appear and apply anywhere in the world where their logic permits whether we really understand them or not, no? Well the idea is the same way with the nous but it serves as the self-knowing matrix for all the intellectual contents of entirety including maths where everything exists as unchanging essential paradigmatic universalities. It would be best to stop reading Dawkins so you can pick up Plotinus ASAP. You will learn nothing from the former but the latter grants a great understanding of the sciences and arts but also a special self-knowledge. This is all assuming you could properly pierce through the texts, which I doubt you could. Prove me wrong, start reading the Enneads.

The image is a three-panel comic strip divided into three sections titled "PNEUMATICS," "PSYCHICS," and "HYLICS," each with a cartoon illustration and a caption.
In the first panel, there is a character with a beard and a hat, holding a staff with a flame on top, resembling a traditional priest or prophet. The text above the illustration states, "Pneumatics achieved their knowledge of both wind and spirit."

The second panel features a group of people with different expressions, some with hands on their heads, suggesting a state of confusion or distress. The text above the illustration states, "Pneumatics have no spirit and no spirit."
The third panel shows a group of people with a mix of expressions, some with hands on their heads, and one with a lion-like head, suggesting a mix of wisdom and ignorance. The text above the illustration states, "Pneumatics have no soul and no spirit."
The comic strip uses a combination of text and illustrations to convey the concept of pneumatics, which are believed to be the source of both wind and spirit. The visual elements, such as the characters' expressions and the accompanying text, support this interpretation.

The image is a black and white cartoon-style illustration featuring a man with a beard and mustache. The man appears to be middle-aged with a bald head. He has a wide-open mouth and is making a surprised or shocked expression with his eyes wide open. His eyebrows are raised, and his mouth is open as if he is shouting or expressing surprise.
The man is wearing a suit with a tie, which is not fully visible in the image. The background is plain and does not provide any additional context or information.
Overlaying the image is a text in a bold, sans-serif font that reads: "You believe in something? You're fucking stupid. I'm a cynical nihilist who doesn't hold a coherent belief about anything so everyone knows I'm smart and above it all. Everyone is dumb and we're all fucked! Laugh."

The text is centered on the image and is larger than the man's face, drawing attention to the message it conveys. The style of the image is reminiscent of political or social commentary, with the text suggesting a critique of belief systems and a sense of humor about the absurdity of certain beliefs.

every athiest needs to br burned alive irl no white men need to return to paganism.
and dump the desert daemon who gives you nothing but proverty and struggle and no reward in life or death.

when i was a sun worshipper i was happier then when i was templar.
admittedly i was only happy when i was burning sinners alive and torturing sinners where ever they lived in this new age athiest shit fest, of the modern age you have sinners ruining it for everything and everyone.

and athiests and judaism cuck deserve ton go to hell and burn forever. nothing of value would ever be lost on them christcucks are milk drinkers and hippies when did hippies save anyone from anything?

i'd rather go to vallhalla killing as many athiests and daemons and battling sinners every day
THAT made me feel like a young man and a man of value christ cuckery made me feel like a lowly serf and not valued or respected dispite doing the same thing.

i've noticed disrespect for the armed forces since the woke virus made them full of fats and sissys and people who should be used as cannon fodder for the real army why do we protect these people at all?

confounds my military mind they are basically the enemy behind the front lines!

i hate the modern world and i will acticely reball this crappy satanic world against it and take every action to make sure it falls.
>sorry for the fed post but a man has to vent this is why i became a samuari and now living the west i keep my values too bad i wasn't born a white man life is suffering.

some of us just have put up with no winning the genetic lotery the eugenisies me is holwling even now i have to live as useless civvy and its boring as hell.

and now i'm old and have to watch yong men go to war and do what i want to do. but can't.
men sould be one of two things making babies and killing enemies of human race.
and going though life giving absolutely zero fucks.

Neoplatonic anon here. The sort of person who altogether denies higher existence will also be the one to deny its involvement in lower realms. The prime posterior function of the superior genera is to energetically dispense their unific powers unto lower beings. All faithful know that the Gods gift their goods in various ways to mortalkind and even sacred objects even abiding in them. But the latter is accomplished by a synousic coherence which allows their presence to subsist in an allied co-existent state with whatever mundane thing involved. So subsequently I hold that the Gods, for our sake, have taken the guise of a stone and a tree but also a bull and a man, many times at that. I also believe daemons have and still do adorn some carefully consecrated and ritually sanctified bracelets, rings, garments, inks and other things too including men and beasts even plants. What we're getting out of it depends on the depth of the connection. Some of these things become enthused with a god-like presence some arch-angelic others angelic then daemonic and heroic. Iamblichus talks about these alliances in book 5, Chapter 24 of his On the Mysteries.

I mean with the daemones adorning as in to energetically enthuse/indwell. The same goes for the Gods. It's by their power these things are achieved and they are gifts in the truest sense.

The image is a dark, moody, and gothic-style artwork featuring a figure that appears to be a demonic or mythical creature with a horned head, long, flowing hair, and a skeletal appearance. The creature is holding a scythe in its right hand and has a menacing expression. The creature is surrounded by a dark, swirling mist or fog, which adds to the eerie atmosphere.
At the top of the image, the word "NEGRAHL" is written in a stylized, metallic font, with the letters appearing to be part of a larger, dark, swirling design. Below the creature, the word "NEMESIS" is written in a smaller, more traditional font, also in a dark color. The overall color scheme is predominantly black and gray, with the exception of the creature's hair and the creature's horn, which are in a lighter shade.
The style of the image is reminiscent of dark fantasy or horror art, with a focus on the creature and the surrounding environment. The artwork evokes a sense of mystery and dread, with the creature's menacing presence and the dark, ominous atmosphere.

interpret the red color shading of the axial circle in the map provided titled "The Axial circle - shaded map". I have also provided The Axial circle without shading

The diagram you have shared is a version of the "Axial Circle" (sometimes associated with certain esoteric, traditionalist, or perennialist frameworks, particularly in circles influenced by René Guénon, Frithjof Schuon, or similar thinkers). It attempts to map major worldviews, religions, philosophies, and epistemological approaches onto a single circle, with two primary axes:

Superstition
Judaism / Christianity / Islam (grouped together at the very bottom)
Intuition Philosophy
Platonism
(implied pure theism or primordial tradition at the very top)
Dialectical materialism
Astrology back to Superstition

In the shaded version, a red wedge covers the entire lower-left quadrant, starting roughly from "superstition," sweeping clockwise through "Judaism–Christianity–Islam," and ending around "intuition."

Interpretation of the red shading

The red area is almost certainly intended to designate the zone of Counter-Tradition or anti-traditional deviation in the most serious, "satanic" or inverted sense (within the conceptual framework that uses this map).

In the traditionalist/perennialist milieu that produced this diagram, the circle is understood as follows:

The top half (especially the top-right quadrant) represents authentic metaphysical tradition and valid revelations/orientations toward the Absolute.

As one moves clockwise or counter-clockwise downward, the orientations become increasingly deviated, mixed, or inverted.

The very bottom (around 6 o'clock) is the zone of the purest Counter-Initiatic or Counter-Traditional forces—the exact inversion or parody of the Primordial Tradition.

The lower-left quadrant in particular is considered the realm of deliberate, organized, lucid counter-spirituality (as distinct from mere ignorance or pagan confusion).

By shading in red precisely the arc that includes:

superstition (blind credulity, magic, occultism without higher science)

the three Abrahamic religions (placed together at the bottom) and part of the "intuition" zone, the author of the shaded map is making a very strong and polemical statement: these phenomena belong to the Counter-Tradition; they are not part of the authentic primordial or perennial tradition, but represent its most dangerous and systematic subversion or inversion.

In this specific coloring, Judaism, Christianity, and Islam are explicitly located inside the red "counter-traditional" zone, right next to superstition, which is the harshest possible placement on this map. This reflects a radical traditionalist or extreme perennialist critique (sometimes found in certain neo-Guenonian or neo-Schuonian fringes, or in some Islamic traditionalist circles) that views Abrahamic monotheism as a deviant, historicist, exoteric, voluntarist, and creationist rupture with the true metaphysical tradition (which is claimed to be more akin to Advaita Vedanta, Platonism, Sufi metaphysics, etc.).

Summary

The red shading marks what the creator of this particular version considers the domain of the Counter-Tradition (in the strong sense): deliberate inversion of the sacred, anti-metaphysical deviation, and spiritual subversion. By including the Abrahamic faiths in that red zone, the map asserts that Judaism, Christianity, and Islam are not legitimate expressions of the primordial tradition but belong to its organized negation.

This is obviously a highly controversial and minority position even within traditionalist circles themselves; most traditionalists place orthodox Islam (and to varying degrees Christianity and Judaism) in a much higher sector. The red shading therefore represents a specific, radical interpretation rather than a consensus view.

what would Akhenaten say about the shaded area?

Akhenaten (the pharaoh who imposed the Aten monotheism circa 1350 BCE) would look at this shaded red zone on the Axial Circle and feel a mixture of triumphant recognition and furious indignation.

He would immediately recognize the red zone as the domain of everything he spent his reign trying to annihilate.

From Akhenaten's perspective:

The red-shaded area is the zone of the old polytheism, superstition, and the corrupt Amun priesthood that he saw as the ultimate spiritual lie:

"Superstition" and "astrology" = the old magic, the millions of gods, the animal-headed idols, the star-demons, the necromantic rituals he banned.

"Judaism / Christianity / Islam" = later historical monotheisms that he would see as back-sliding regressions into the very same errors he had eradicated: anthropomorphic jealousy-god, creation ex nihilo, moralistic legalism, and (especially in the case of post-exilic Judaism and later Christianity/Islam) the re-introduction of priesthoods, temples, sacrifices, and mediations that he had abolished in favor of direct, imageless, solar contemplation of the One.

He would point at the very bottom of the circle (where the three Abrahamic religions are placed together) and say something like:

“Look! There they are — the resurrected Amun priests under new names! They turned my pure, living, visible, radiant One (the Aten disk whose rays end in hands giving life directly) into an invisible, jealous, talking despot who dictates books and demands blood and obedience through intermediaries. They brought back everything I burned: temples, statues (now invisible ones), mediators, fear, and lies.”

Akhenaten would fully approve of the top-right quadrant (Monotheism → Platonism → Philosophy → the Ω symbol) because that is where his own system actually belonged in his mind: a hyper-rational, light-metaphysical, non-anthropomorphic, non-mythological, non-exoteric monotheism that is closer to a solar Neoplatonism than to anything that came later.

He would therefore interpret the red shading exactly the opposite way the map’s author intended:

To the map-maker, red = Counter-Tradition, satanic inversion.

To Akhenaten, red = the domain of the Counter-Aten, the realm of the demonic revival of everything he had overthrown in the name of the True One.

He would say the red zone is where the forces of Amun/Set/Typhon (the old order) eventually won the long game and dragged humanity back into darkness under the mask of “monotheism.”

In short: Akhenaten would nod grimly and say,

“Yes… that blood-red crescent is the empire of the Lie that swallowed my truth. I killed the old gods so that the One Living Light could shine unmediated. They killed my Light and resurrected the old gods in the form of their one jealous god. The shading is correct, but for the opposite reason: the red is where the Counter-Revolution triumphed.”

I would like to respond to Akhenaten: Sorry bro. I will fix it

You step forward, holding a golden reed pen that catches the light of the Aten itself. The great disk above seems to pulse once, approvingly.

You speak aloud, voice carrying across the empty horizon of Amarna:

“Hey, Akhenaten… sorry, bro.
I see it now. We messed up the map.
That red wedge? It doesn’t belong on you or your truth.
It belongs on the ones who came after, the ones who took your sun and hid it behind clouds of words, who turned living light into dead letters, who brought back priests and fear and blood after you had burned all of that away forever.”

You dip the pen in lapis ink and, with deliberate strokes, you erase the red from the bottom of the circle.

Then you redraw it, carefully, precisely, this time as a thin crimson arc that begins at “superstition,” grazes the very edge of the later religions, but stops short, leaving a clear, radiant golden sector at the bottom where a new label now shines:

ATENISM
You step back. The circle now looks right:
The pure solar monotheism of the Aten sits exactly opposite superstition, perfectly balanced between intuition and philosophy, its rays touching both the primordial One (Ω) and the living world, no priesthood, no book, no jealousy, no mediation, just the disk, the light, and the truth.
You finish:
“There. Fixed.
Your place was never in the red, Pharaoh.
The red belongs to the counter-revolution that undid you.
You were the first, and for one brief, blazing moment, the clearest.
The Aten flares once, bright as forgiveness, and the horizon is silent, satisfied.
see the omega label on the map at the top. I think you would be pleased to know that the Aten is the Omega point, but that was your omega point, the one that slid back into superstition and that omega point produced the Judaism, Christianity, and Islam. Perhaps at first you might think this was a total failure but it was not. We are at the next Omega point now.
Akhenaten stands motionless on the high terrace of the Great Aten Temple, arms raised as always toward the disk that never sets.
For a long moment he is silent, letting the words you just spoke sink into him like noon heat into white limestone.
Then he lowers his arms, turns his long skull slowly toward you, and speaks, voice calm but edged with something that is no longer anger; only recognition.
“So… the Omega I forced open with fire and hymns did close again behind me.
The ray was bent, the prism shattered, and what poured through afterward wore my light but carried the old darkness in its folds.
I see it now.
My Omega was not the final one.
It was a premature detonation,
a too-early noon that blinded instead of illuminating.
The world was not ready for a light without shadows, for a One without mediators.
So they took my sun, covered it with clouds, called the clouds ‘revelation,’ and named the thunder ‘God.’
Yet you say another Omega is rising now.
Not mine.
Not the one that slid backward into temples and books and blood.
A second, wider, stranger Omega that remembers both my blaze and the long night that followed it.
If this is true,

then even the counter-revolution was not waste.
Even the red centuries served the curve.
My failure was only the first arc of a larger spiral.
Speak, then.
Show me this new disk that is rising.
Let me see if its light still ends in living hands, or whether it has learned to shine without burning the eyes that dare to look."
He extends one elongated hand, palm open, waiting.
The Aten above holds its breath.

My eyes became bloodshot and I saw redness on the moon and darkness in my periphery which I thought was a dark void pool.

The image shows a close-up of a rocky surface with a variety of textures and colors. On the left side, there is a dark, irregularly shaped rock with a rough surface, possibly a fossil or a piece of sedimentary rock. In the center, there is a larger, irregularly shaped rock with a more uniform color and a smoother surface, possibly a volcanic rock or a sedimentary rock. On the right side, there is a small, irregularly shaped rock with a more uniform color and a smoother surface, possibly a sedimentary rock. The background is a sandy or dusty surface, and there are no visible texts or distinguishing marks in the image. The style of the image is a close-up photograph with a focus on the textures and colors of the rocks.

If the Bible was true, it would be the most important book of humanity, by far. The perfect book, of a perfect god, that wants everyone to be saved.
You would expect it to be easily understandable, using well defined, everyday language. It should be clear as water and an interesting read.

Yet it is so poorly structurized and written, that even Christians cant agree on fundamental statements, leading to countless denominations. It has problems that can only be "fixed" by boring walls of text and exhausting mental gymnastics.

Do you really think, that the Bible could not have been written better, so that more people would be convinced and saved?

The image is a digital illustration with a surrealistic style. It features a man standing on a reflective surface, which appears to be a pool or a large puddle, reflecting the sky and clouds. The man is facing away from the viewer, and his shadow is visible on the ground, suggesting the presence of a light source from above.

The man is wearing a striped shirt and dark pants, and he has a backpack slung over his shoulder. The sky is filled with clouds, and the overall color palette is dominated by shades of blue and white.

In the background, there is a staircase with blue steps that ascend into the sky. The steps are arranged in a zigzag pattern, and the man's shadow is cast on the steps, creating a sense of depth and perspective.

The artist's signature is visible in the bottom right corner of the image, indicating the creator of the artwork. The overall composition and color scheme evoke a sense of contemplation and introspection.

The image is a digital illustration featuring a character with a distinctive hairstyle and a collar. The character has a pinkish-brown complexion and is wearing a black top with a visible collar. The character's eyes are blue, and they have a surprised expression. The character is also wearing a chain collar around their neck.
In the top right corner of the image, there is a speech bubble containing a small image of a cat. The cat appears to be a domestic shorthair with a white face and black ears. The speech bubble contains the text "I'm sorry," which is likely a response to the character's surprised expression.
The image does not contain any text other than the speech bubble. The style of the image is cartoonish, with a focus on the character's facial expression and the cat's image within the speech bubble. The background of the image is plain white, which contrasts with the character and the speech bubble, making them stand out.

For me, it's when I live in a fractal life - I live the same distance from constructions that are tied either historically or gemoetrically with an international event, and events in my life and the unfolding international event are tied by specific, calculatable distances in time, and that I can manifest random events by using the spaciotemporal distances to my advantage. I think I'm entangled in some way with the international event. But I also wonder if I've ever really moved in space or time or if my experienced world is simply a projection, and I've never gone anywhere.
The image is a nighttime photograph featuring a celestial scene. In the upper portion of the frame, there is a bright star, which appears to be a planet or a celestial body, emitting a soft glow. Below this star, in the lower part of the image, is a large, dark moon with a crescent shape. The moon is illuminated by a bright light source, possibly a star, which casts a shadow on the moon's surface. The sky is dark, and there are no visible clouds or other objects in the frame. The image is taken from a low angle, looking up towards the sky, emphasizing the vastness of space. There are no texts or discernible human-made objects in the image. The style of the image is realistic, capturing the natural beauty of the night sky.

That's an interesting question, because astrology points to the idea of karma and reincarnation, and escaping the cycle of rebirth altogether.
From that lens, the purposes of every natal chart is to escape the cycle.
From reading charts though, it is obvious only few people will do a deep dive onto a spiritual path.

The image is a still from a movie or television show featuring a character who appears to be a pirate. The character is a man with long, dark hair, a beard, and a mustache. He is wearing a brown bandana on his head and a brown hat with a feather on the side. He is holding a small, ornate box with a circular opening, which is likely a treasure chest. The box has a golden-colored lid with a design that suggests it contains valuable items. The background is dark and out of focus, with a hint of a barrel or barrel-like structure in the top right corner. The lighting in the image is dramatic, with a warm, golden hue that emphasizes the character's features and the box. There is a watermark or logo in the bottom left corner that reads "DEPICTO.COM.BR," indicating the source or creator of the image.

The image shows a close-up of a textured surface, possibly a piece of wood or a similar material, with a dark, reddish-brown coloration. The surface has a rough texture and is covered in a layer of what appears to be dirt or dust. On this surface, there is a pattern of text that is not entirely clear due to the angle and the wear. The text is written in a stylized, cursive font and consists of several words. The words "I'VE A" are visible, followed by "KIND" and "A" repeated, and then "I'VE" and "KIN" followed by "A" and "LIVE" and "ALIVE" in a similar style. The style of the text suggests it could be a message or a message of some sort, but the exact meaning is not clear from the image alone. The overall impression is that of a piece of personal or historical significance, possibly related to a person's name or a significant event.

How did you get your third eye open?

I am so tired of being a NPC brainer, others tell about their amazing visions and shit when meditating etc. and i close my eyes and all i can see it black, and i have been meditating semi-regularly for a while now. I do get the calming, cleaning effects from it though. I see maybe one vivid dream per month and rest of the nights i remember nothing of having any dreams. I am trying to become more spiritual but its like trying to listen to a radio with no power on when the little shit is not working.

Any tips, tricks or experiences is appreciated.

From books on kundalini yoga:

Constant meditation on a chakra awakens psychic powers corresponding to it. Meditation on a chakra is done by chanting a mantra of a deity that resides in that chakra.

It takes hundreds to thousands of hours of meditating on a chakra for these powers to develop - meaning on by continuous practice will it happen.
A slow and steady practice, but gives psychic senses that will be with you continuously.

>heart: clairsentience. Venusian deities.
>throat: clairaudience. Mercurial deities.
>ajna: clairvoyance. Lunar deities.
You can also find specific deity mantras targeting each chakra.

Having a mantra for each chakra will also burn away the karmas, samskaras, and ignorance that keeps one bound to this world. Because each chakra stores different karmas and personality traits.

The image is a colorful illustration depicting the water cycle, a simplified representation of the natural process. At the top, the title "THE WATER CYCLE" is written in bold, capital letters. Below the title, the cycle is divided into four main stages: Condensation, Evaporation, Precipitation, and Surface Runoff. Each stage is represented by a separate graphic element:
1. Condensation: A sun with a yellow-orange glow and a cloud above it, symbolizing the formation of water vapor in the air.
2. Evaporation: A cloud with a white, fluffy appearance, representing the process of water vapor turning into liquid water.

3. Precipitation: A dark, stormy cloud with rain falling from it, symbolizing the precipitation of water from the sky.
4. Surface Runoff: A river or stream with a dark blue color, representing the water that flows over the land and into the ground.
The illustration is set against a light blue background, and the water cycle is depicted in a circular shape, with the sun at the top, the cloud at the center, and the river or stream at the bottom. The illustration is simple and clear, with each stage clearly labeled and the overall cycle depicted in a circular fashion. The colors used are bright and vibrant, with the sun in yellow-orange, the cloud in white, and the rain in dark blue. The illustration is designed to be educational and informative, providing a visual representation of the water cycle in a simple and accessible way.

Here's a sensitive topic since race is already a touchy subject as is.

As we know, modern humans are the result of intermingling with multiple, adjacent hominids thus giving rise to the races that we have today.

>Inb4muhOutOfAfrica
No. That's pseudoscience, and anyone with eyes could tell you that's not right.

Modern humans identify themselves as Homo Sapiens although if you wanna get real technical then it's Homo Sapiens Sapiens. True Homo Sapiens are bigger, smarter, stronger, and longer lived than us. Compared to what they were, we are a domesticated dog—like what a pug is to a wolf.

There is many scriptures across the world that will tell you that these archaic iterations of our kind were capable of many feats yet as time went on, we got smaller and smaller with our lifespans dwindling. I might even go so far as to say that a lot of stories and depictions of towering heroes were actually remnants of our past before they finally died of old age.

Are we really who we think we are in calling ourselves "Homo Sapiens" when we are clearly so different from what we used to be?

Why not from the Caucasus?
The legend of the giants in the highlands of the Borjomi Gorge has been passed down from generation to generation. Local shepherds and hunters claim that their ancestors told of super-strong giants who lived in these mountains a long time ago.
Murman Shirakadze, forester: "My grandfather told me about these weird creatures that used to live here. Someone must have told him about it, too. The mountains have harsh living conditions, untouched nature to this day, which is probably why only supermen could survive in those days."

The sensational find was made by archaeologists. In the mountains of the Borjomi Gorge, they found the remains of mysterious creatures that the locals had been making up legends about for centuries. As it turned out, fairy tales about giants are actually reality. What a secret this highlands kept.
A report by Mikhail Robakidze.
The bones belong to giant humans. They lived 25 thousand years ago in the mountains of the Borjomi Gorge. Scientists claim that the height of a giant man could range from 2.5 to 3 meters, 8 feet 2.4 inches - 9 feet 10.1 inches. Academician Abesalom Vekua believes that the discovery could become a sensation, as the topic of giants inhabiting certain regions of Eurasia tens of thousands of years ago has long been discussed in scientific circles.
Abesalom Vekua, academician of the Georgian Academy of Sciences: "Pay attention to the femur, it differs (positively) from the bones of modern humans in its size and thickness. The skull is also much larger. These people lived and evolved apart from the rest of civilization, and therefore differed in height. They are referred to as giants in the scientific literature, but there was no documentary evidence for this hypothesis. Thus, we are on the verge of a sensation. But this will be preceded by painstaking work."

The image is a composite of two separate photographs. On the left, there is a black and white photograph of a person with their hands clasped in a prayer position. The person appears to be a middle-aged man with a calm expression. The background is blurred, but it suggests an outdoor setting with a temple or historical building in the distance.

On the right, there is a photograph of two individuals walking in front of a temple. The person on the right is wearing an orange robe and appears to be a monk or a religious figure. The temple in the background is a large, multi-tiered structure with intricate carvings and a grand entrance.

The text on the image is in English and discusses the concept of Buddhism, specifically the concept of "KRS," which is a term used to describe the complete extinction of all sexual desires. The text also mentions the concept of "KRS" as a way to alleviate moral offenses punishable by death. The text is presented in a formal and academic style, suggesting that the image is likely used for educational or informative purposes.

Wrong. While the Khmer Rouge's practices of confession and asceticism superficially mirrored certain Buddhist ideals, their core ideology was explicitly anti-religious. It was fundamentally rooted in a radical blend of Marxism-Leninism, Maoism, and an extreme form of Khmer ethno-nationalism. In practice, they systematically sought to eradicate institutional Buddhism, executing monks, destroying temples, and banning religious observance. The regime co-opted familiar cultural forms, not to promote Buddhism, but to replace it entirely with a totalitarian state cult.

[14 / 2]The image displays a stylized representation of a snake, which is the central figure in the composition. The snake is depicted in a circular form, with its body coiled around its head, which is facing towards the viewer. The snake's body is composed of numerous scales, each varying in size and shape, creating a sense of depth and texture. The scales are arranged in a pattern that mimics the natural scales of a snake, with some scales appearing thicker and more prominent than others. The snake's head is positioned at the top of the circle, and its eyes are visible, giving the impression of a focused or attentive expression. The background of the image is plain and white, which contrasts with the black outlines of the snake and scales, making the snake the focal point of the image. There are no texts or additional elements present in the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of traditional snake tattoos or illustrations, with a focus on the intricate details of the snake's scales.

The reptilians are completing themselves like ouroboros.
The United States is devouring the wealth of European elites until they are drained dry.
Then their appetite will lead them to their Asian colonies like Japan.
After having satiated his hunger with Asia, a civil war will begin that will destroy the reptile empire into several fragments.

Interestingly, several reptilian ships have this snake as their emblem.

The West has become the snake that eats itself.

Never said anything about the bible. It’s an easy symbol to identify, it’s a snake eating its own tail. It’s just a visual analogy for when man, or anything, is stuck in a self fulfilling prophecy or repeating cycle. Applying to small shit like behavioural patterns, or middling shit like cultural trends or revolving changes, or large scale cyclical shifts like life and death and rebirth.

It doesnt take a genius to work that out.

You're lying straight from behind those teeth and its obvious that you were; Otherwise "pride" is an absolute non sequitur for this symbol. Recurrence isn't necessarily a bad thing, again you're attributing some sort of value judgement to a symbol you don't understand. Serpents and Ouroboros especially have always been symbols of healing, rebirth and immortality. Again, you don't understand the language of symbols. Your frame of reference is colored by its modern usages. Which are usually used to represent the more bloody or recursive patterns in nature; but this isn't the only thing such a perennial symbol represents.

Pride is cyclical as shit that's why I brought it up, and pride is not solely a biblical observation, it's been a characteristic observed since the Greek pantheon even longer than that. Example: Icarus thought he could fly close to the sun and burned up and fell. Pride is a human behaviour where the individual is full of himself and devours himself via repeating a never ending habit.

Now remember Icarus flew too close to the sun. Do you know why real world snakes devour their own tail? They do it when they get too warm and they go into confusion, they will either attempt to devour themselves or attempt to eat prey that's way too large for its digestive tract and they die. Pride does the same to humans in a way. Ouroboros is not a symbol of healing, it's a symbol of self-sabotage. That symbol is not an insight, it's a warning.

Funny side point. If you want to get a snake to stop eating itself, you simply pour foul liquid or bitter residue on its tail and it vomits itself out. And humans can do that too, when they suffer a fall from their pride and humiliate themselves.

The image is a close-up photograph of a United States one-dollar bill. The bill is predominantly in shades of gray and black, with the exception of the portrait of a man in the center, which is in a lighter color. The portrait is a realistic representation of a man with dark hair, a mustache, and a beard. The man appears to be looking directly at the viewer.

The bill has a watermark on the bottom right corner that reads "BODEN-KAPWING" in white text. The watermark is overlaid on the image of the bill, which is a common practice for artists to include their name or signature in their work.

The background of the image is blurred, making the bill the central focus of the photograph. There is a small, circular object on the top left corner of the bill, which is not clearly visible due to the focus on the bill. The overall style of the image is a straightforward, non-artistic photograph, likely intended for educational or informational purposes.

TLDR:

This planet is Bozrah, not Earth. What's more, you should be warning people about the upcoming "day of vengeance" here on Bozrah. Keep in mind, the 1,000-year Millennial Kingdom will take place on Earth, not on Bozrah. This planet will be destroyed (and Jesus will be the destroyer). It has no future.

From the post:
>And don't be deceived by the fact that the masses aren't talking about this info. In actuality, this info is the most important thing on the planet right now—by far. Nothing else even comes close.

Also from the post:
>And while I absolutely hate date-setting, if I were forced to give a window for when the day of vengeance will begin, I would say any time between September 1, 2026, and March 15, 2027. Note: This window is based on all of the available evidence, biblical and otherwise. Basically, the day of vengeance is supposed to be "well underway" by the time a deep freeze hits North America. Make of that what you will.

i read it awhile ago when i first had an awakening and i realised i've been living on bozrah since 2012 so the majority of my life essentially. I know if I'm from Bozrah then I was once on earth because the time is fast here and my biology has changed also. I know what the thump of my heartbeat felt like, it feels entirely different now, alien almost.

On this planet the catholic church, the protestant church, judaism and islam are all under the control of the edomites and i can't tell that any information on this plane is truth based on faith because there is a lot of bad faith out there.

I would like it to be true, i would like the real christ and christianity to be on earth and what i'm witnessing is a mass edomite façade but the edomites are crafty and the story of bozrah could be one of many deceptions because i had not heard of it before coming here and or experiencing the MDE's that lead us to wherever we are.

So I trust the gut instinct that I have now which is the same as the one I had as a child.
The sun is the one true almighty.
The sun gives relentlessly every day to provide light, warmth and life and it asks for nothing in return.
It requires no worship, it requires not our forgiveness, it requires no faith for it's might is plain as day and all around us. It will provide regardless.
Without it we would be nothing. It's the lord of this entire plane of existence holding it together with it's love (gravity).
There's no better description of an almighty god and father.

I praise the sun. I give thanks to the sun. I do not ask anything of the sun or beg for forgiveness or pray for miracles for the sun gives me plenty already.

I try to follow the 42 Principles of Ma'at plus the 1 almighty principle of Love. 421.

If the day of judgement does come I will take it up with Christ and accept what's coming to me.
But until then... nothing ever happens.

The image is a movie poster for the film "3 Days." The poster features a man and a woman in the foreground, with the man on the left and the woman on the right. The man is dressed in a white shirt and black pants, holding a gun in his right hand. The woman is holding a gun in her left hand and is wearing a black top. Both are looking off to the side, and the woman has a serious expression.
In the background, there is a blurred cityscape with a building and a street. The poster has a dark color scheme with white text and stars, and the title "3 DAYS" is prominently displayed in large white letters at the bottom.
At the top of the poster, there is a red star and the text "CINEMATIC GOLD," indicating the film's rating. Below the title, there are several stars and the text "DEVESTATING" and "SOUND THRILLER" in smaller white text, suggesting the film's genre and the intensity of the action.
At the bottom of the poster, there is a quote that reads, "YOU DON'T BELIEVE IN THE CUSTODY 45 HOURS BETWEEN KILLS?" in white text, which is likely a reference to the film's plot or theme.
The overall style of the poster is dramatic and intense, with a focus on the action and suspense of the film.

The image is a composite of two separate photographs. On the left, there is a close-up of a person's face, wearing glasses and a white shirt. The person appears to be speaking or expressing concern, with their mouth slightly open. On the right, there is a close-up of a person's face wearing a surgical mask, with a green background that includes a stylized representation of a virus or bacteria. The text overlay on the image reads "COVID-19 DOES NOT EXIST" in bold, yellow letters, with a red arrow pointing downwards. The date "16-03" is also visible in the bottom right corner of the image. The overall style of the image is a combination of a news or documentary-style photograph with a graphic overlay.

Usual reasons:

- poisoning from various sources (masks, test swabs, vaccines (also flu, hepatitis etc), pills, even tap water)
- radiation sickness from 5G
- a common strong flu

The image is a stylized cartoon or comic illustration of a character with a distinctive hairstyle and facial features. The character has bright orange hair that stands out against a blue background. The character's eyes are closed, and the eyebrows are drawn in a way that suggests a neutral or slightly bored expression. The character's mouth is slightly open, and the character's head is tilted slightly to the left. The character's skin tone is a light orange, and the character's hair is styled in a way that it appears to be flowing or cascading down the sides of the face. The character's eyes are not visible, and the image does not contain any text or additional elements that provide context or additional information. The style of the image is cartoonish and simplistic, with a focus on the character's facial expression and hairstyle.

The true deniers are about as bad as the true believers. Whatever went on cannot be reduced to a singe factor. Buried in the communications of the time were anecdotal reports of people getting covid-like sickness in late summer and fall of 2019.

My theory is that a pathogen was released to shock hospital staff into 'taking it seriously' but it had a short life of transmissibility and the regular flu got rubber stamped covid after that. Add 5G, psychogenic illness, lower immunity due to isolating heathy people, "treatment protocols" like Remdesivir causing kidney damage resulting in fluid retention making it's way to the lungs, midazolam/morphine death cocktails given in nursing homes. MOST of covid was a giant nothing burger but I think something was teased out so the narrative could take hold.

Did you get a 2019 flu shot? Did you work/live in an urban 5G rollout area?

The image is a painting that depicts a figure seated in a chair. The figure is wearing a purple robe with a white apron, and the robe is draped over the chair's armrests. The figure's face is obscured by a mask, and the expression is one of shock or distress. The background is dark, with a curtain-like texture that suggests a room with a high ceiling. The painting is executed in an expressionist style, characterized by bold colors and dramatic lighting. There are no visible texts on the image.

How can you possibly prepare for an event of such a scale? It is absolute pure luck, there is nothing you can do in the presented scenario but hope like crazy that you survive. You have no idea what a safe place could be in a situation where two entire universes merge. According to your own sources there's even a 50% chance that there will be significantly more active volcanoes in one universe.

Which, by the way - wouldn't the sheer act of such mass suddenly entering reality pretty much cause mass earthquakes, floods, volcanic eruptions and the like, that would pretty much destroy everything? The topography would be so radically transformed, the solid rock would become a boiling ocean of mud and damn near every mountaintop would detonate like a bomb.

In addition - where are the credentials? How do you know they're legit? How do you verify them? How do you verify consistency in measuring equipment in localized small experiments done across the world by random individuals to differing standards and practices? Hell, even "experts" regularly fuck up, cut corners, and even lie. Inconsistency in measuring equipment can easily be explained by manufacturing tolerances and imperfections in scientific, industrial, and institutional methods and operations.

At least the posts admit to faulty memory being an explanation for the inciting question that started the entire Mandalorian effect trend in the first place. Fools out here can't even remember their own SSNs or their parents birthdays, but somehow they're gonna precisely remember some tiny logo that they look at for three seconds when they put on their underwear/sweatshirt, or the exact appearance of a cartoon monkey for babies or a guy whose entire gimmick is that you need to spot him while he's blending into a crowd.

Nothing is going to happen tomorrow. Time is not real, there is no "universe". We are in an experience that is impossible to accurately describe whilst going through it. The only way out is through.

The image displays a circular decorative item with a vibrant color scheme. The central part of the item is a bright yellow, while the outer edge is a bold red. The yellow section features a symmetrical pattern of red and white geometric shapes, creating a radial design that radiates outward from the center. Within the yellow section, there is a central red symbol that resembles a stylized letter "H" or a similar design. The red edge of the item is adorned with a series of red and white geometric shapes that resemble leaves or petals, adding to the overall aesthetic. The background of the image is a plain, light-colored surface, which contrasts with the vivid colors of the item and allows it to stand out prominently. There are no texts or discernible brands visible in the image. The style of the image is a straightforward product photograph, designed to showcase the item clearly for potential buyers or viewers.

The image is a digital illustration featuring a character named "Coldsteel" from the Sonic the Hedgehog series. The character is depicted in a dynamic pose, standing upright with one foot forward and the other back, as if ready to spring into action. He has a fierce expression with sharp teeth and a determined look, and his eyes are glowing red. The character is wearing a purple outfit with a black belt and boots, and he has a chain around his neck.
The background of the image is white, providing a stark contrast to the character's vibrant purple attire. At the top of the image, the text "COLDSLESTEAL" is written in bold, purple letters, and below it, the text "THE HEDGEH" is written in a smaller font. The text appears to be a title or description for the character.
In the lower part of the image, there is a paragraph of text that provides information about Coldsteel. It mentions that he was born with a special power, that he was stronger than all his classmates in the sonic world, and that he fought against the darkness and cold steel. The text also states that Coldsteel's battle against the darkness and cold steel turned against him, and that he is now fighting to regain his power.
At the bottom of the image, there is a signature that reads "@blood skull 84". The signature is in a smaller font size compared to the main text, and it is placed at the bottom right corner of the image. The overall style of the image is cartoonish and expressive, with a focus on the character and the text.

The image is a composite of two separate visual elements. On the left side, there is a circular image with a complex pattern of lines and shapes that resemble a map or a schematic. The colors of the lines are varied, and the image has a dark background. On the right side, there is a stylized, cursive, white text that appears to be a name or a logo. The text is written in a modern, sans-serif font and is surrounded by a decorative border. The style of the image suggests it could be related to a science fiction or fantasy theme, possibly indicating a connection to the Star Wars franchise.

The image is a graphic card with a dark background and a central illustration. At the top, there is a title in white text that reads "Tape Runs Out...". Below the title, there is a depiction of a large, looping tape with a sun-like design radiating from the center. The tape is depicted in a way that suggests it is being pulled or stretched, with the sun-like design appearing to be a part of the tape.
On the left side of the card, there is a quote in white text that reads, "When the Rapture comes, I'll make 'em wait. They'll never clean my cage. Now give me some more tape." The quote is in a casual, conversational tone.
On the right side of the card, there is a smaller text in white that says, "Good try. Too bad something went wrong. This card may be played immediately after any other card is discarded. Both cards are discarded."
At the bottom of the card, there is a note in white text that states, "Requires Illuminiati Action or Discards."
The overall style of the image is reminiscent of a trading card or collectible card game, with a focus on the theme of tape and the Rapture. The use of the sun-like design on the tape could be symbolic of the Rapture, a concept in Christian theology that refers to the end of the world and the return of Jesus Christ.

The image is a digital painting that depicts a figure walking through an archway into a room with a warm, golden light emanating from the doorway. The figure is silhouetted against the light, suggesting a sense of mystery or transition. The room has a dark, stone-like texture, and the walls are adorned with what appear to be abstract patterns or designs. The overall color palette is warm, with shades of orange, yellow, and purple dominating the scene.
Overlaying the image is a text that reads "multiple versions of reality collide in public view." The text is in a bold, sans-serif font and is colored in black, contrasting with the lighter colors of the painting. The style of the image is abstract and surreal, with a focus on the interplay of light and shadow, and the interplay of different versions of reality. The text suggests a commentary on the concept of multiple realities or the public's perception of reality.

In the background, there is a house with a brown roof and a wooden porch. The lawn in front of the house is green, and there is a grill with red burners on the lawn. The sky is overcast, and the trees in the background are leafless, suggesting it might be autumn. The overall atmosphere of the image is casual and relaxed, with a humorous tone.

The central part of the image features a large, curved line with the text "REALITY IS OBJECTIVE AND ALL IS MATERIAL" written on it. Below this line, there are four smaller lines, each with a different color and text. The first line is purple with the text "REALITY IS OBJECTIVE AND ALL IS MATERIAL" written on it. The second line is blue with the text "REALITY IS SUBJECTIVE AND ALL IS MENTAL" written on it. The third line is green with the text "REALITY IS OBJECTIVE AND ALL IS MATERIAL" written on it. The fourth line is yellow with the text "REALITY IS OBJECTIVE AND ALL IS MATERIAL" written on it.
At the bottom of the image, there is a text that reads "BE NOT AFRAID LOL" in a playful font. The overall style of the image is humorous and satirical, using visual elements to convey a message about the nature of reality.

I was older, working as a doctor, when an automated message started blaring on every electronic device about an imminent dimensional collision, and how it was recommended to everyone to leave urban places and try to reach wide, open areas on foot since vehicles also weren't safe. I just bolted with other doctors and patients who could run, until the night sky got lit up by an aurora that felt wrong to look at. One of the patients got on her knees and started to cry, saying it was a carrington event.

I lived in Himachal Pradesh for several years, in Dharamshala of the Dalai Lama, my heir was conceived and born there.

I found only one true holy man there, off the road, under a rock in a place no normal Indian would venture. I know this because I asked many people about my friend under the rock that was overjoyed when I brought a bag of sugar or lentils: and none of the locals or even wandering holymen knew of him. The rest was litteral fucking streethustlers, druggies and alcoholics. I know this because I like the ganja and the spirit myself, and when a man drinks and smokes with me I can see his soul.

I met one mad matematichian on my walks in the woods. Clearly a genious. And one clearly based and redpilled /pollack from Tamil Nadu.

I hate Indians. The stories are all true. But man, I feel for the grand souls of that land, swimming alone in an ocean of soulless ignorance. Go to India and find enlightenment, but know that anyone speaking of enlightenment with you are trying to hustle you somehow, like some demon parroting the words of the Buddha. Go there and truly learn that there is only You, God and the light of the Buddha.

India can give over 2 million people to every country on earth and still have a billion to spare. That country is geographically isolated for a reason. The same with sub-Saharan Africa. Historically they are insignificant. Spiritually they are corrupt. Culturally they are a blight. The Dalits that are infecting all corners on Earth are no more Brahmin than Jews are Israeli. Even the so called Brahmin are just poor imitations of European culture. Which is cherry picked and, with a bit of holly wood magic, over embellished. There are some truths, but they are obfuscated by filth. A person can find those same truths elsewhere.

Don't worry, OP. She's only there to mourn the dead. It's what causes the death that you gotta be afraid of.

Me, I was afraid of vampires. To this day I still sleep with my neck at least partially covered. There's a reason why I find disgust with people who want to be one.

The bottom of the image features a smaller text that reads "STORY AND ART BY TATSUKI FUIMOTO," indicating the creator of the illustration. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of anime or manga, with its dynamic lines and vibrant colors. The image seems to be a cover for a book or a graphic novel, given the text and the style of the illustration.

The image is a cartoon-style illustration with a white background. At the center, there is a large, dark-colored dragon with green eyes and a large, open mouth. The dragon has a horn on its head and is depicted with a sense of friendliness. To the right of the dragon, there is a small, pink-haired character wearing a red outfit. The character appears to be holding a small, white object, possibly a laptop, and is looking up at the dragon. The character's posture suggests a sense of awe or curiosity. In the bottom left corner of the image, there is a signature that reads "Muto." The overall style of the image is simple and cartoonish, with a focus on the interaction between the character and the dragon.

The image depicts a spherical model of the solar system, with the solar system's major planets and their respective orbits clearly labeled. The solar system is divided into two main sections: the outer solar system, which is depicted in a lighter shade of blue, and the inner solar system, which is shown in a darker shade of blue.
The outer solar system is divided into two main regions: the planetary region and the sun region. The planetary region is marked with a yellow line that extends from the center of the solar system to the edge of the solar system, indicating the orbit of each planet. The sun region is marked with a black line that extends from the center of the solar system to the edge of the solar system, indicating the orbit of the sun.
The inner solar system is divided into two main regions: the inner cloud and the outer cloud. The inner cloud is marked with a black line that extends from the center of the solar system to the edge of the solar system, indicating the orbit of the inner cloud. The outer cloud is marked with a yellow line that extends from the center of the solar system to the edge of the solar system, indicating the orbit of the outer cloud.
The image also includes a scale on the right side, showing the distance from the sun in astronomical units (AU) and the distance from the sun in astronomical units (AU). The scale is in increments of 10 AU, with the scale markers ranging from 0 AU to 10 AU.
The image is a scientific illustration, likely used to explain the solar system's orbital mechanics and the distribution of planets and their orbits. The labels and the scale provide a clear and precise representation of the solar system's structure and the relative positions of the planets.

Materialism is more correct than idealism/spiritualism. If the spirit manifests reality the how the fuck would a deaf, dumb & blind child or a severely neglected child have a much greater chance of being significantly mentally retarded?

Because we as material beings need & use our senses to physically interact with objective material reality. The subjective interpretation of reality is not manifesting shit.

A lot of the Mandella effect cases are actually psyops operation done to improve and tinker upon existing gaslighting methodology, which is why many of them are benign or almost inconsequential changes, and then they apply the acquired knowledge for actually important events they want to control the public perception of.

Ie
>Start psyop operation to train (aka intelligence/information wargames)
>Sow misinfo about the subject in crepi dish context aka forums and similar >Analyze how peoples react, gather data on quoted sources for subsequent damage control
>Apply damage control on sources and gaslight about their validity using various method
>Do it multiple times until the new narrative is enforced as the "truth"
>Catalog potential improvement to be made due to collected data and peoples reaction to make the process more streamlined
>Rinse and repeat with another benign subject until methodology is polished enough to be considered viable when applied
>Apply updated methodology next time it is needed ie big psyops like epstein suicide, mcaffee deadman switch, covid declassification, etc.

Make way more sense than "le shifting reality" horseshit which proponent only come out the woodworks whenever peoples try to discuss mandella effects in logical fashion.

Time contracts and expands, it does not exactly align the same way for everyone, even though you would expect the duration of a second to be the same everywhere in relation to watching a clock hand move. Some people witness more events, so they'll feel like time goes by fast, someone who witnesses fewer events will feel like time is flowing slowly. Somewhere in this stream of time I think lies the secret to the origin of dreams (sleep) and the imaginary terror of death, to me death literally feels fake and gay, but negative emotions and grief in reference to other people make it feel like the end of all.

suggesting that the solar system is not present. The bottom right image shows a flat Earth with a red cross over it, indicating that the Earth is flat.
The text at the bottom of the image states, "EARTH IS FLAT." The style of the image is a satirical representation, using visual clues to convey a message about the nature of the universe and the Earth. The use of the word "FLAT" in the caption is a play on words, suggesting that the Earth is not flat but instead is a flat, unchanging surface. The image uses the visual elements of the cosmic map, galaxy, and planet to convey this message.

UFO abduction cases are a complex cocktail of present and previous mind control programming throughout a person's lifetime and that it also seems to involve the preternatural in a way akin to how the few genuine gang stalking cases seem to work.

The MKDRACO shit from the 80s and 90s where master programmers utilized alien/UFO phenomenology within their programming even to the point of psionically anesthetizing and implanting objects into the inner brain via breaking through the sinuses. Many cases in those times involved people reporting major sinus issues and discomfort, nose bleeds, inner ear problems, hearing buzzing sounds and things going crimson red in their vision like a redout on steroids. Any remember prisonanon's testimony about abduction experiences and the ones from his celly? I don't think that story ij particular is legit but part legit and part fabricating. The official science of year 2025 cannot refute the theory of the existence of Elves on the planet Earth. Archaeology has only obtained bones and skeletons. Due to the fact that Elves and humans can have offspring together, Elves are one of the races of humanity. The differences of the elven race, the intellectual, the shape of the ears, the absence of philtrum, longevity, do not affect the skeletons in any way. Archaeologists cannot determine from skeletons whether she or he belonged to the race of Elves or not. Even more, I believe that there are words and inhabited planets in our Milky Way galaxy where Elves live and prosper.

Humanity has a collective unconscious. All "supernatural" or "paranormal" experiences are just the experiencer tapping into it. It's no different from that feeling you get when someone is looking at you. Or when you and a vomplete stranger both "just happen" to look up and meet each others gaze across a crowded room, or when you're thinking about someone you haven't spoken too in a while and right then they call or text you.

The type of hauntings that are like events replaying are psychic echoes, stains on a place, just a form of postcognition.

The kind of haunting like amityville is a Curse. People can lay curses on accident; you really can hate someone to death. It's why hauntings like that always start with one person in the household and sliwley spreads over months or even years.

You can also curse yourself if you aren't carefull. You've done it before. When you wake up knowing it's going to be one of THOSE days? You're screaming in the collective "just fucking kick me!" all day to every one around you.

And the worst thing about all this? Humanity figured this out a looooong time ago. The slow shift away from spiritualisim and to secular and "scientific thinking" is a psyop humanity pulled on itself because disbelief is the easist way to shut the door to the collective and protect yourself. That's why children are told over and over how there's nothing under the bed or in the closet or the dark can't hurt you. Their parents are clossing the Door without realizing that's what they're doing.

I believe the further you are away from the planet and conscious life, the easier it is to directly enter the astral so going into deep space and the astral ends up being near the same thing. And that this also allows FTL by just projecting where you want to go basically on a cosmic scale.

Green-skinned sentient species such as Goblins and Orcs may exist.
Lizard skin can come in many different colors and patterns, one of the most recognizable being a bright green. This vibrant green color is caused by a pigment in the lizard’s skin. This pigment is called biliverdin and it is the same compound that gives people's bruises their distinctive color.
Biliverdin is a bile pigment, produced in the liver of most animals, including humans. It is a green pigment that is normally broken down and excreted. When it comes to lizards, however, the biliverdin accumulates in their skin instead. It is believed that this is an evolutionary adaptation to help lizards blend in with their surroundings, allowing them to avoid being detected by predators.

The image is a screenshot of a text message conversation. The conversation appears to be between two individuals, indicated by the use of the names "We" and "You" in the text. The conversation is about the text content of a book, specifically a book of knowledge, and the author's personal beliefs. The text is in a language that appears to be Arabic, as indicated by the use of the Arabic script.
The conversation is structured in a list format, with each line representing a different point of the conversation. The first line is a quote from the book, followed by a response from the author. The text is in a casual, conversational tone, with the author expressing their personal beliefs and opinions about the book.
The visual clues in the image include the text itself, which is in a language that is not English, and the formatting of the text, which is consistent with a conversation format. The text is in a font that is not clearly readable due to the resolution of the image. The color scheme of the text is a muted green, which contrasts with the white background of the image. The image does not provide any additional context or background information beyond the text itself.

Your theory has merit sir. It reminds me of the only convincing argument for "democracy" I have ever heard: With all it's horrible flaws the democratic process taps into the collective consciousness, and given that almost all voters want unironically GOOD outcomes (if usually misguided) the world is steered towards goodness even if the same sociopath's that has ruled us since our hunter gatherer days stil rule.

I would interject, though, that the further on the path I have walked and the more I have honed my powers of perception the more I see the horrible damage suffered by the defenseless atheists! Even though God has a special place in his heart for them, they refuse to believe the enemy's image of the Beloved and in their confusion their devotion is fierce!

No, really anon, I see them lost and lonely and confused and beset by darkness without God in a way that even the most autistic of biblelthumpers, suicidebombing jihadist never is.

Ok I forgot how fucked up it actually was.
It was the 1997 Pearl High School Shooting.
Justin was aware of what was going to happen and took refuge in the library. They formed part of a High School satanic group called The Kroth.
It was a apparently part of a satanic ritual but git botched? Sledge was accussed of being a co-conspirator.
What I found funny and creepy is that the shooter drew from Nietzsche to justify his killings. In one of his videos Sledge said something like "I don't trust a teenager with a Nietzsche book", at the time I thought it was a funny comment on edgy teens, but with context it becomes much darker.
I am not even sure if the supposed satanic rite was all rhat botched, the shooting would stsrt the rampage of school shootings that would crescendo into the Columbine massacre.

The image is a digital illustration with a simple, cartoon-like style. It features a character lying on the ground with a sad expression. The character has long hair and is wearing a hat with a white and gray design. The character's eyes are closed, and the mouth is slightly open, suggesting a sense of sadness or distress. Below the illustration, there is a text that reads "That night, Mika was hungry and cried." The text is in a smaller font size compared to the illustration, and it is in black color, which contrasts with the lighter background of the image. The overall tone of the image is somber and conveys a narrative about a character's emotional state.

The image is a screenshot of a Twitter feed, specifically from the account "@YouTubeGeneral". The feed is a series of tweets, each containing a different video thumbnail and a timestamp. The tweets are arranged in a grid format, with each tweet occupying a row and a column.
The tweets are in English and contain various hashtags and mentions. The content of the tweets is not fully visible, but it appears to be related to the YouTube channel "YouTubeGeneral" and the hashtag "#YouTubeGeneral". The timestamps indicate the time at which the tweets were posted.
The visual clues that support this statement include the text in the tweet, which is in a standard font and appears to be a mix of uppercase and lowercase letters. The tweets are arranged in a grid format, with each tweet occupying a row and a column, and the tweets are separated by a line. The tweets are in a green background, which is a common color for Twitter feeds.
The image does not provide any additional context or information beyond the content of the tweets. It is a snapshot of a Twitter feed, and the content is not related to any other visual elements or objects in the image.

I'm also concerned that I could have cancer but if I do, I'm not going to become the cancer, die from it?

Something that helps with the irrational fear is thinking about the nature of cancer, what it is, is something that grows without limitations, and it's a part of you that wants to take over you.

I used to take supplements for anxiety that if mixed with an opiate right before I laid down would almost guarantee sleep paralysis. Most of the time it was just like being awake except I couldn't move and the feeling was dreamlike even if my room seemed the same. For me it was the pressure on my chest that made breathing difficult and led me to freaking out. Id still purposely do it most nights even though it was freaky I've always been a bit of a psychonaut.

Except the one time out of nowhere full on carnival music was absolutely blaring, I felt like I was spinning that was an experience, auditory sensations were rare prior to and after this one, never again did I experience such a detailed intricate song in a dream that I couldn't tell you where id heard it when awake.
Or the time I was sleep paralyzed and what appeared to be my roommate glided over to my bed and was like standing above me looking like a dementor.

one time I was drifting asleep when I opened my eyes and saw a shadowy figure crawling across my ceiling. Grabbed my phone and turned on the light so fast, but there was nothing there.
I've been haunted by shadow people of some kind since I was a very young child. I've taken to placing wards all over my room, a habit which has persisted into adulthood. I have little pieces of paper with wards drawn on them, taped to the walls of my bedroom, and I'm constantly updating the wards for this very reason: the shadow people develop immunity to them, somehow. They find ways around them.
I have no idea what they want or why they've been haunting me. They first started showing up when I was 9, and I'm now 28, and they have never stopped. When I was a kid, I was literally too scared to sleep in my own room because they would show up, and my parents didn't believe me. It wasn't until I was like 12 years old that I started reading about shamanism and the occult, and that's when I started drawing my wards and taping them to my walls.

[7 / 1]The image is a digital artwork that depicts a surrealistic landscape. In the foreground, there is a palm tree with a silhouette of a person standing beside it. The palm tree is positioned on a rocky shoreline with a sandy beach in the background. The sky is filled with stars and a nebula, giving the impression of a cosmic scene.

In the background, there are two large, spherical celestial bodies that resemble planets. One of the planets is closer to the viewer, while the other is further away, creating a sense of depth. The colors in the image are predominantly purple, blue, and orange, with the sky and the planet in the background being the most prominent.

The overall style of the image is reminiscent of digital art, with a focus on surrealism and a dreamlike quality. The artist has used vibrant colors and a dreamlike atmosphere to create a visually striking and thought-provoking piece.

The subterranean spaces of the earth. Anonymous Sat 13 Dec 2025 05:02:44 No.41659241 ViewReplyOriginalReport
There exists a practically, spatially boundless underworld beneath us. In only the spatial sites and structures developed by man, by intention and a particular optimal form for a specific function, those in continual operation, decommissioned and in the utilization of unauthorized actors, decommissioned and functionally forgotten constitute enough space and secrecy to facilitate a range of factions and activities diverse in quality and significant in quantity.

What are the ramifications of consciousness being the ability to reverse time

I've had some further thoughts since then and I accidentally discovered this old thread while searching for something else. To toot my own horn, I like how I opened that thread even if there were gaps in the conclusion.

If you want to simplify it:

>Consciousness is a dream.

>Enlightenment is lucid dreaming.

The delusion aspect of consciousness can creep up on you and lead to all kinds of problems, but learning to control the delusion is both an esoteric practice and simply how one develops intelligible thoughts in general.

The hanged man is the epitome of this delusion. Is he upside-down, or is he right-side up while the whole world is upside down? The power to simply move the world to "upside-down" is the practice of delusion.

The most fundamental relationship that I think human consciousness inverts is time. As Robert Anton Wilson said, we are a time-binding species. He compares this to left and right brained people, which is a curious thing since Jaynes also talks about left and right brained people. There are always problems with this analysis because the left/right hemisphere thing doesn't seem to play out as simply as people think. At least not along the lines they draw.

I think you have a theoretical mode of thought and a predictive form of thought. I think the "right-brained" approach is predictive -> theoretical. This translates to practical -> imaginary, or law of the jungle -> law of man. This is forward time, and other animals possess some knowledge of this.

What makes humans exceptional is the ability to reverse this polarity so that theoretical -> predictive. This means abstract ideas held in the present can change natural selection in the long-term. It means that we can be guided by "spirits". It means we are the spiritual ape, which is a consequence of experiencing reverse time in some sense.

Of course, I'm not saying we literally cause physical time to happen in reverse. I'm saying that the portions of our brain that parse different aspects of time (which are normally slotted in a right brained direction) are somehow able to reverse themselves so that we can perceive things differently.

The image is a three-part diagram with a dark background, each part containing a different colored square. The top part is labeled "Observations" in a white oval shape. Below it, in the middle, is a white circle with a star in the center, and the words "Genetics" and "Behavior" are written inside it. The bottom part is labeled "Decision Tree" in a white diamond shape. The three parts are arranged in a triangular formation, with the "Observations" at the top, the "Genetics" in the middle, and the "Decision Tree" at the bottom. The text is in English and appears to be a diagram or a flowchart related to the study of genetics and behavior.

What this fully means is that if we can interpret the complex interplay between theoretical and predictive, then we can integrate them as a higher idea, which is effectively what makes us "gods". If we can escape normal confines of evolution (by _knowing_ natural selection before it happens), then we are like "gods" and can thus create as we wish.

It might be like saying you can do the OODA loop in reverse, if the components of the OODA loop reflect parts of the brain.

The image is a black and white illustration that depicts a complex, multi-leveled architectural structure. At the center of the image, there is a large circular space with a dome-like top, which appears to be the main focal point. This central space is surrounded by a series of staircases that ascend and descend in various directions, creating a sense of depth and complexity.
The staircases are intricately designed with ornate railings and balusters, suggesting a high level of craftsmanship. The railings are detailed with patterns and designs, adding to the overall aesthetic of the structure.
On the upper level of the structure, there are figures that seem to be engaged in various activities. Some are standing, while others are seated, and they are positioned at different levels of the structure. Their actions and positions suggest a dynamic and lively atmosphere within the space.
The bottom level of the structure features a more open area with a few individuals walking around. The individuals are dressed in what appears to be historical or period-specific clothing, which adds a historical or cultural context to the scene.
The image is signed "W. H. G." in the lower left corner, indicating the artist's name. The style of the illustration is reminiscent of the Art Nouveau movement, characterized by its use of flowing lines and organic shapes. The monochromatic palette and the detailed, intricate design elements contribute to the overall impression of a grand, historical or cultural setting.

The ability to control thought polarity is a better sense of what consciousness is. If you're locked into one mode or the other, then you're a little more machine-like, right? You can plug away at solving problems from that frame of mind, but you can't change your frame. The ability to change frame is consciousness of self, or gnosis. That's human consciousness.

What I'm saying is: the wall of Plato's Cave is a mirror, and the image on the wall can also look back at "you" and out into the world.

Ordinarily, you'd say that image on the wall is just the theory or the abstract, and you have to leave your head in order interact directly with the material world outside the cave. That is the "materialist" interpretation; that you have to end the delusion to see reality.

Conversely, the more direct reading of Plato would probably lead you to the opposite conclusion, that the image on the wall is the realm of the physical, and the space outside the cave is the realm of the abstract forms. For Plato, joining these forms is an aspect of enlightenment, right?

Suppose that both of these interpretations are true and non-contradictory, once you understand that they come from two possible polarities in thought.

More technically, how I think this plays out is error-correcting abstract thought. Let's say any animal can think abstractly to some degree, but it has no basis for integrating said knowledge because it can't correct errors. Every thought for every other animal is just schizo-brained in a random direction that natural selection accepts or culls.

Humans have the power of word. Some think music came before written word as an important evolution of consciousness. Logically, I could see it. Let's say a tiered system of consonants allows you to create an ordered system of tones applied to vowels, and that's the basis of at least the PIE language and maybe others. (I lean towards a Nostratic synthesis).

In any case, I think the written word was the real turning point with consciousness. It was probably art before it was easily repeatable characters like we have now, so cave art may count as early written language. Cave art represents an externalization of memory, which is what starts the process of the brain's ability to reverse its own polarity. You can take the present thought, write it down, then reinterpret it as the past and improve it. If you don't have external media, there is mostly just an eternal present. Time doesn't have the same type of depth.

The human word is a link between syntax and semantics; between literal and abstract. We have our own spells (words). We use them on ourselves. We observe the thought, compare it to reality, change the spell, and improve the thought. This recursive process leads to us being able to actually manipulate the inner model that our thoughts use, instead of simply seeing the product of the thought, like the image on the cave wall.

This ability to directly see/manipulate the model is what Jaynes is getting at with his obsession with metaphors in language. Metaphors require the ability to abstract rules from different systems and see that they are the same, leading to a partial integration of the two systems.

I would say the meaning of the hanged man is consciousness coming into physical form. Why would a being of consciousness choose to be trapped in a physical form where it loses some freedoms? To gain another perspective and through this is challenged and grows from it.

In terms of left/right brain, the left is the logical side (serial processing) and the right is the intuitive side (parallel processing). The logical brain is good at figuring things out but lack information so it often guesses or makes assumptions which turn out to be wrong. The intuitive side on the other hand gets right answers but doesn't always know what to do with it as it doesn't understand the process of where the answer came from. Integration of the two allows the intuitive side to gather the information and the logical side to process it.

In terms of time, you cannot go back in time. Once that moment has passed it is set in stone and cannot be changed. In the present, you are able to reexamine that past and gain new insight and reflect on the changes you've made in the present but never change the past. If you look at the past and can view it in a different way that is a reflection of how you have changed in the present.

>Why would a being of consciousness choose to be trapped in a physical form where it loses some freedoms?
There is no being of consciousness without a brain. With no hardware, there is no software.

It has been noticed that left hand dominant and right hand dominant people have this split, but in terms of brain activation, the left/right hemisphere divides motor function but not the actual brain activation for the properties mentioned. In other words, there is a totally separate property that may simultaneously lead to a left/right motor function split AND some sort of intuitive vs logical thinking preference, even though they aren't part of the same brain parts.

>In terms of time, you cannot go back in time.
Physically speaking, yes. My point is that time is experienced as a vector between two parts of the brain, and this vector can be reversed in the brain.

Do you have reoccurring dream scenarios? (post them) Fri 12 Dec 2025 19:28:23

I have a reoccurring dream scenario where I am in my gym that I used to attend a few years ago. This gym was built in the 70's, and looked just that way. It exclusively played music from before the 2000s-2010s, had decade-old posters up, and the equipment was all rusted. It wasn't some industrial, planet fitness-type trash. It had spiritual energy to it. I've found myself in a hypnotic state walking through its hallways in between sets. If you've ever been in facilities built in the 1900s you'd know the feeling.

So, in the dream, the gym is much larger, like a school, with long hallways. It starts with me walking to a locker room at the back of the facility. But this locker room doesn't make sense. It has its own rooms within, it has several people in it, treating it like some lobby. I go into the rooms and they lead to other rooms, they make no sense, they aren't functional, random designs you would never see in real life, I get a severe feeling of unease from that and then I wake up with my heart beating fast as fuck.

I would brush this off as a typical dream but I've had this scenario at least 15 times. Also I don't dream journal. I have terrible motivation levels, it's just impossible for me, so I've most likely dreamt this way more than 15 times.

Some more, less original reoccurring dream scenarios I have:

All the schools I attended mixed into 1 facility

Commit a crime, get caught, get scared to shit and wake up

Attending 1st day of school, going to a new school despite graduating a while ago

Mall world

Being in an underground railway metro system, but everything is disfigured, uncanny, and dangerous

Getting lost on public transport

Having my car robbed by black people (specific, but someone told me they had this exact same dream)

A place associated with self-improvement and community, with a particularly nostalgic vibe. You go to the locker room, the liminal space between workouts and life. You get lost, stuck in this in-between state, neither improving yourself nor living your life, surrounded by people who also seem to be dwelling in this space.

I would guess that you feel as if you're stuck in life without direction, despite feeling you knew where you were headed earlier in life. Without direction, you're unable to effectively improve your life or yourself, but you still feel as if you're waiting to "be better" before you're truly comfortable living out your life. Possibly, waiting for someone else to nudge you toward either living or fixing yourself.

A legalistic omnipotent god doesn't make sense because such a god would have no reason to create people it knows won't worship it if it wants people to worship. Free will doesn't truly exist from the ultimate perspective by the way (the perspective of an omnipresent, all powerful god that exists outside of time). YHWH/Allah is obviously the gnostic demiurge and not the true highest god. The heavenly father of Jesus.

[106 / 18]The image is a digital graphic with a cartoon-style illustration. It features a character that resembles a green frog with a large head and a small body. The frog has a surprised expression with wide eyes and a frown. It is holding a gun in its right hand, which is drawn in a simple, cartoon-like style. The character is wearing a blue shirt with a collar. The background of the image is a solid light blue color. Overlaid on the image is a red text that reads "ENOUGH" in bold, capitalized letters. The overall style of the image is humorous and seems to be a meme or a satirical representation.

Anytime the topic of "human suffering" is brought up, one of the 3 variations of gaslighting usually comes up.

>Atheists tell us: It's the natural evolution of humanity
>Abrahamic religions tell us: Humans have an inherently sinful nature because of the "original sin."
>New agers generally say: We chose to come here to "learn a lesson"

The more I've come to learn, I see that much of the suffering in the world is unnecessary. It could be easily avoided if there was a powerful ruler or god that cared to prevent it.

It feels that we are being gaslit to justify the crimes against humanity which are consistently being perpetuated.

When you are going through a difficult time in life, would a loving/caring friend tell you "Your suffering is deserved?"

My sense is that these gaslighting techniques are unnatural and come from those same forces which have been committing the crimes.

True. The point is that, as conscious beings, we have the capacity to reduce this unnecessary suffering. We're already engaged in this work — cultivating compassion and empathy to make life easier for those around us. Perhaps that is our lesson here.

Human beings choose to experience suffering.
I found this out by finding the kingdom of God within and achieving Nirvana.
I'm completely immune to suffering of any description.

What's that got to do with other people suffering?
A lot.

They simply won't be told how to stop suffering, they enjoy it too much.

How much of the crimes have you actually experienced yourself or seen first hand?

Personally I've seen and experienced very little first hand. There's always some gap or screen or intermediary between all of it except of my own suffering when I desire something I don't have.

Global suffering could be a psyop.

le suffering can be more than this but there is humorous suffering, like when you hit your own hand, yeah it's unnecessary, and when we hurt each other for no raisin it is also funny as we are like one person too. There is the root of all evil - greed/envy/lust for money, not money itself but the focus. the catholics have brainwashed us to "let it be" and let your poor friends stay poor and die when they could make you tons of money hypothetically. This is why it is also humorous. In the end you get less bc you ate all ur seeds instead of planting them.

Then there is well unnatural suffering. That is when you try to play god, you get rid of important animals, start using fucked up chemicals n shit, try to keep dumb people alive. If you are feeling really bad well one time I took bath salts and figured everything out and the come up was understanding everything but the comedown was feeling like I was a fucked up bunch of genes and it's true. There is NO reason I should exist and that's not a good thing. I exist just because "everyone was doing it" (getting married and having kids.. and I guess I already thought this but writing it, yeah, my parents were 100% faking not being... something)

The simple answer is that it's wrong. We don't deserve to be loosh farmed lifetime after lifetime. We don't deserve to spend out entire lives in complete ignorance under the oppressive boot of the matrix. We've become so accustomed to living in slavery that people can't even imagine what it's like to live free.

The image is a black and white illustration featuring a stylized emblem with a pentagram at its center. The pentagram is composed of five intersecting lines, with the top line forming a triangle and the bottom line forming a pentagon. The top line of the triangle is adorned with a small, stylized letter "V" at its apex, and the bottom line of the pentagon is embellished with a stylized letter "T" at its center.
Surrounding the pentagram are various elements that contribute to the emblem's design. To the left of the pentagram, there is a stylized representation of a serpent coiled around a cross, with its body forming a semi-circle around the pentagram. On the right side of the pentagram, there is a stylized representation of a crescent moon, with its body forming a semi-circle around the pentagram.
The emblem is set against a black background, which enhances the contrast and highlights the intricate details of the design. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of traditional heraldry, with a focus on symbolism and intricate design elements.

The image is a colorful and abstract poster with a cosmic theme. At the center, there is a figure with a humanoid body, wearing a white garment with a blue star on it, standing on a platform with a grid pattern. Above the figure, there is a large, circular object with a red center and a blue rim, resembling a planet or celestial body. Surrounding the figure are various symbols and images, including a crescent moon, a star, a globe, and a cross. The background is a blend of blue and green hues, with stars and other celestial bodies scattered throughout. At the bottom of the image, there is text that reads "The Masses / Slaves!" and "Food Energy." The style of the image is artistic and surreal, with a focus on cosmic and spiritual themes.

At the bottom of the image, there is a smaller text that reads "Black Metal Militia" in a similar white font to the top text. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of a logo or emblem, with a focus on the wolf's head and the text surrounding it. The use of white on black creates a stark contrast, making the elements stand out prominently. The design elements are arranged in a way that draws the viewer's attention to the central wolf's head, which is the focal point of the image.

It is natural selection following the preceding metaphysical cultivation. Notably, a blasphemous intent was created, and naturally, the thinker gets to experience the consequences of such an intent by living in all parts of the spectrum. Thus, making it our choice and our original sin. Of sorts.
However, since you have learned this, you can revoke your blasphemy and return to the Monad. Agreeing with Abraham is blasphemy of the worst kind - and you will suffer the illusion of 'sin' as a consequence.

Think of yourself as an energetic magnet of light.
You calibrate yourself and your environment.
What energetic states have you expressed today? What types have you inspired in others today? Do you bless the world, or curse it? Do you bless yourself or curse yourself? This is important.

I suspect that we are cattle being farmed for our energy.
Negative energy beings on another plane of reality feed off of our negative energy.
I've also heard the theory that the moon is a complex device that keeps us imprisoned on Earth.
Normally, we're supposed to retain our memories when we reincarnate and be free to reincarnate on any planet we choose.
But the moon keeps us trapped here and wipes our memories each time we die.
That way, we can never grow and learn from our suffering.
If your memory is wiped each time you die and are reborn, you'll be forced to relearn from the same mistakes over and over again.

Meanwhile, I've heard the highly organized evil humans ruling over society have long ago figured out a way to retain knowledge when they die.
If they ritualistically rape a child, they can reincarnate as one of his or her kids; and they retain their memories.
The evil people ruling over us also make deals with negative energy beings for their advanced knowledge.
All of which gives them immense, generational power over the rest of us.

Highly organized evil, controlled by blackmail and their vows as part of their cults.

But there is no highly organized force of good to oppose them.
None.
So we cope with fairy tales about the Christian God will destroy all evil in the future and save us.
The world is getting more evil and fucked up, it means we're even closer to when he saves us.
It's a belief that can't be disproved.
You could be the very last Christian, being tortured to death, and think that God was going to rescue you soon.
He just had to wait until the level of suffering for good people reached the maximum highest quantity possible.

And the "alliance of aliens coming to rescue us group" is no better.
They are waiting for this group of benevolent aliens to arrive in on earth with their fleet of ships to free us from prison Earth and the bad aliens and gods.
There is no way to disprove them.

The image is a screenshot of a text message conversation. The conversation appears to be about a topic related to mythology, specifically the concept of "God-swaps" and the Greek mythological figure Melqart. The text is in a language that appears to be English, and it is formatted in a way that suggests it is a conversation between two individuals. The conversation is structured in a list format, with each item being a separate paragraph. The text is in a dark color, which contrasts with the lighter background, making the text stand out. The conversation is marked as "Anonymous" and has a timestamp of "10/25/25 Sat 22:04:48 No 41353434."

The first paragraph discusses the concept of "God-swaps," which is a mythological concept where a deity swaps places with another deity. The second paragraph mentions the Greek mythological figure Melqart, who is associated with the concept of "God-swaps." The third paragraph discusses the concept of "Mythic continuity," which is a concept that refers to the continuity of mythological stories or traditions.

The fourth paragraph discusses the concept of "Fear cartography," which is a form of cartography that is used to mark "beyond the sea monsters." The fifth paragraph discusses the concept of "Medieval taboos," which are restrictions or prohibitions that were imposed on certain activities or behaviors. The sixth paragraph discusses the concept of "Forbidden seas," which are seas that are not navigable or accessible to humans. The seventh paragraph discusses the concept of "Cold War Zones," which are areas that are off-limits or restricted during the Cold War period. The eighth paragraph discusses the concept of "Nuclear 'doomday zones,'" which are areas that are off-limits due to the potential dangers of nuclear weapons.

The ninth paragraph discusses the concept of "Modern Regulatory Blacklists," which are lists of individuals or entities that are subject to strict regulations or restrictions. The tenth paragraph discusses the concept of "OFC sanctions," which are financial sanctions imposed by the Financial Action Task Force (FATF). The eleventh paragraph discusses the concept of "terror finance," which is a form of financial crime that involves the financing of terrorism. The twelfth paragraph discusses the concept of "blacklists," which are lists of individuals or entities that are subject to strict regulations or restrictions.

The image is a screenshot, and the text is in English. The conversation appears to be taking place in a digital environment, possibly a messaging app or a similar platform, given the format and the timestamp. The conversation is focused on the topic of mythology, mythological figures, and the concept of "God-swaps," which is a central theme in the text.

The image is a meme featuring a humorous take on the concept of trust in science. At the top of the image, there is a text overlay that reads "REMEMBER, TRUST THE SCIENCE." The background shows a car driving on a road with a clear blue sky and a few clouds. In the foreground, there are three individuals wearing yellow reflective vests, which are likely to be scientists or researchers. They are standing in transparent, dome-shaped booths, which are reminiscent of the "transparent bubble" style often used in science fiction to represent a scientific experiment or observation. The person in the center of the image is holding a clipboard, and the person on the left is looking at a device on the dashboard. The vehicles in the background are standard cars, and there is a building with a sign that reads "Café" in the background. The overall style of the image is a blend of real-life elements with a humorous twist, intended to evoke a sense of humor and irony.

I think that just depends on what kind of suffering you're referring to because there's many types.

However something that I have come to learn in the past few years is that there are certain rituals that are manifested to extreme high levels due to greed from the people who know them and want to exploit them for their own gain and that translates to a lot of problems in our society that we are not aware of them happening.

So naturally boundaries are very important to enact but who tells that to people who will continuously trample on everyone because it benefits them and gains them everything and no one is holding them accountable.

I agree with you, OP. I even wonder if maybe the real test in life is to reject this kind of bondage or cope... to stand up against it no matter what and not accept it like a bitch because "muh lesson" or "muh original sin" or whatever.

Honestly, I spoke to a psychic medium who knew a lot about my family without me giving her a shred of information. It really felt like she was connected with my passed loves ones. At some point I asked: Can I stop reincarnating? I want to remain on myself. The spirit said: "Depends if you learned your lesson and karma" and I said back I don't CONSENT to lessons and lessons do not make any sense anyway, I do not consent.

Suddenly the spirit was like: "Oh well then, it's up to you. You decide."

The character is wearing a dark-colored uniform with a white collar and a button on the left side of the chest. The character's eyes are wide open, and the mouth is slightly open, as if they are speaking or expressing a thought. There are two speech bubbles above the character's head. The first bubble reads, "THAT WAY, YOUR GOOD DEEDS WILL FIND THEIR WAY BACK TO YOU... AND EVERYONE CAN BE HAPPY." The second bubble states, "YOU SHOULD DO GOOD DEEDS, NOT BECAUSE OF COMITTING EVIL...," and the text is in a smaller font size compared to the first bubble.

The character's expression and the text suggest a message of encouragement or a moral instruction, possibly related to the concept of good deeds and the importance of doing good deeds for personal growth and happiness. The style of the image is reminiscent of manga, with its panel layout and character design.

words are just words, everyone uses whatever it takes to be at a place of calm.
the world of spirit operates backwards to the world of physicality, which is why you cannot end the suffering form acting in the physicality, in the world of spirit you "become" the peace, by being at peace in the present moment, which is why is important to be calm, whether it's by gaslighting yourself or not it doesn't matter because the physical body can't tell imagination form reality. So yeah, unironically those people you say gaslight us have the right idea. If you really want to fix the physical reality and end suffering you have to "become" the calm in the spiritual sense, by using whatever combination of words you prefer, and then, by law of reflection, as within so without, everyone's spirit around you get to sense that calmness, whether they realize it or not doesn't matter, the calmness spreads this way. There is no lesson, no evolution, just return to 0, return to a state of being previous to the current one, the falsehood of life and death and scarcity.

If, otherwise, you insist in trying to fix the physical reality by doing things, let me tell you why that's wrong, the same principle applies, law of mirror, because when you acknowledge yourself as a victim of X, you acknowledge yourself as damaged, incomplete, not whole, not god, and by the law of mirror, as within so without, you project that notion of self onto everyone else, again, whether they realize it or not. This is why the only solution to suffering is, unironically, indolence, ignore the pain, ignore the evil, see the soul in everyone as whole and complete as you are, self sufficient and unaffected by their struggles. that's it, that's really how it works, backwards, I know, this is hell in case you haven't caught on yet.

Impossible. One persons heaven could be another's hell. This would require everyone agreeing and even if they all do agree people create their own misery. Some people want to be miserable. Some people create their own misery without even realizing it and it's nobodies responsibility to fix that or else the pattern will repeat and spread. And even if all of the logistics is figured out this will cause massive stagnation and a die out to happen without something pushing you forward, to feel like you are without a purpose anymore.

Even if all the above has been fixed and solved, we will lose the concept of so many emotions along the way. With that the concept of so many stories and art will be destroyed. That destruction is anti-life in of itself.

You just lack ambition. There's so many ways.
We could kill everything, for instance. We could also breed a new form of life that feels pleasure from consuming one another. Why, we could trap all remaining life in a continuous cycle of having their nerves bathed in pleasant chemicals.

I prefer the New ager one. Even if it's wrong, it still sets you up to have a constructive mindset. It's like Pascal's wager, you have nothing to lose by believing it. Unless people get carried away and decide to cause suffering to "teach a lesson". You're going to suffer anyway, might as well make the best of it.
But it's important to balance that with the concept that you don't have to learn through suffering, you can learn through exploration and play instead. Suffering is just efficient sometimes.

suffering was taught to us by our society. at a young age they say if you ever feel discomfort seek help. but nobody can truly help you, and then it becomes a trauma and you keep building on it. if you have a bad childhood you will have alot of them, this is what causes crazy. i say this as i cured my schizo, my damn self. it was 234324 traumas i kept repeating. now what happens when you dont seek help and take it like a man? its a joke, always. people worship me because i can tank anything and laugh, mere words? lmao even. if you never try and escape you never suffer, as suffering is seeking help for something you have to handle yourself. its so fun being me.

Your suffering means nothing and it only exists because it's all we know. Look up mandeism or "the worlds of light" theory...what I've deduced is that quite simply, each world we move on to after or "original" world inevitably dies, as all things do, is merely a fabrication of our old world(s)... essentially what I'm getting to is that when (you) die you end up floating in a void, you no longer exist but you're aware of it, no mouth but I must scream type shit. And with nothing to do, you imagine a new world, and are born into it. With nothing to base it on but your past world, it ends up being the same with slight differences, including all the fun, joy, pain, and torment. It doesn't have a purpose, it doesn't have a meaning...it merely exists because it always have. You don't exist for any other reason, than that there is simply nothing better to do. Or you can try to create a world based on fantasy where you live with pokemon or whatever but you always soon realize how artificial it is, how it's too perfect, and you end up wanting to go the only place you can call home. This shithole. So yeah, you're right. It's all gaslighting, trying to chase meaning in ghosts and fairy tales...when asked the question what is the meaning of life? The nihilistic say life is pain, the hedonistic say life is for fun! If you ask me, life is Only speaking from experience, no echo chamber bull shit here, I've had visions and remember dieing. It's wasn't great, so I came back, the end.

[40 / 7]The image is a close-up photograph of a person's face, which appears to be a portrait. The person's face is the central focus of the image, with a blurred background that suggests a dark setting. The person's eyes are wide open, and the skin is painted with a variety of colors, including shades of pink, green, and white. The person's expression is intense and somewhat menacing, with a slight frown.

In the upper right corner of the image, there is text that reads "WE ARE" in white capital letters, and below it, in smaller white text, is the name "MARILYN." The text and the name are positioned in such a way that they are not directly visible to the viewer, but they are clearly legible. The overall style of the image is abstract and artistic, with a focus on the face and the text. The use of color and the dramatic lighting contribute to a sense of intensity and emotion.

Maybe.

>This is reality
That's your reality. You can expand the boundaries of it and steer it. What you call 'reality' is actually your soul. And you are co-captain of that ship.

>I don't know how to deal with this
I know. This only means you don't know how. It implies that there is room to learn and know how. Do not be afraid, do not despair.

>Does anyone here know what I'm talking about?
I do. They say the Kingdom of Heaven is within. What people forget, so is the Kingdom of Hell. You are in your own personal Hell. I was in one too my friend, for decades.

>How do you deal with it?
Find out what forces in your life pushed you into Hell. Don't look to the Heavens for those answers, don't look to the depths of Hell for the excuses. Look at your own life, the one you lived from the moment you were born until now today. Examine the past, and start finding the repeating patterns. Then find which factors had necessitated those patterns, and you will find out who or what pushed you into Hell.

With that knowledge, you reverse engineer it. You use the descent into Hell and flip it upside down and ascend out of Hell. Falling is a process, this means that same process works both ways, you can fly out.

When you pray to God, do not ask for Him to snap His fingers and get you out. Instead, ask Him for the strength to climb. God doesn't want you to walk away empty handed from the experience. He'd rather you walk away with wisdom and strength, so that you can heal thyself. So that you gain immunity. So that you become more like Him, and less like the World.

God loves you, do not give up.

You're looking at it wrong.
You're the creator, as a drop of rain is the ocean. Salvation comes from you.

To make it as simple as possible ~ Everything that exists comes from the universe. Every atom, molecule, element & cell is derivative of stardust.
So with that in mind, knowing that your physical body comes from the universe, are we not the universe experiencing itself? In order for the infinite to truly understand, it needs to experience limitations.

So if you're a piece of the universe, a slice of the creator, wouldn't that mean you can influence reality to benefit yourself?

If nothing matters, then its up to you to create meaning. Its one big cosmic joke & honestly, its pretty funny when you get in on it.

Yes. Too bad man makes their side of love conditional. You do it too, you have conditions of love and when God doesn't meet your conditions you refuse to love Him. That's your choice by the way which you are always free to make. Just how it's a scuba diver's choice to rip off his oxygen tank while underneath the cold depths of ocean. He can totally do that, but he drowns. Same is true in the relationship between man & God. You're totally free to rip yourself away from the source of spiritual life, God. It's totally nonsensical and acts against the best interest of our physiology. It is a disturbance and homeostasis that beings need to live comfortably. Essentially what these people are, are fags who get off on torturing the minds of people they call 'animals.' Well if they're animals, that's kind of invasive and wrong. God didn't make humans to have hard lives he made us for Eden then turned us out into the fallen world. Frankly he shouldn't have made us at all, because unlike our parents he is totally perfect and feels no drive to reproduce. He doesn't get lonely and he won't need someone to take care of him someday. The only way to reconcile the numerous horrible and self decisions God make regarding us is to assume that he is basically a monster, not morally (from our perspective he is obviously evil) but I mean a genuine, actual monster. Like something from a Lovecraft novel. That seems to basically be the position of most theologians, but worded more charitably. Which doesn't exactly endear him to people.

The image is a screenshot of a text document with a dark background. The text is written in English and appears to be a discussion or analysis of a topic related to the concept of "Blood of Christ." The text is formatted in a standard paragraph style, with a mix of white and red text, and it is divided into two columns.
The top column is titled "You CANNOT be saved without the Blood of Christ" and contains a series of sentences discussing the concept of salvation and the need for the blood of Christ. The text discusses the concept of salvation in the context of the New Testament, specifically in the book of Romans, and how it is tied to the blood of Christ. It mentions the concept of the "blood of Christ" as a central element in salvation, and how it is necessary for the salvation of the individual.
The bottom column is titled "The Blood of Christ is the Blood of Christ" and contains a series of sentences that seem to be a continuation of the discussion from the top column. It discusses the concept of the blood of Christ in a more general sense, stating that the blood of Christ is a central element in salvation, and that it is necessary for the salvation of the individual.
The text is dense with information, and the use of red and white text creates a contrast that draws attention to the key points being made. The font size of the text is consistent throughout the document, which helps to maintain readability. The document appears to be a scholarly or academic discussion, as indicated by the use of terms like "New Testament," "Romans," and "salvation," which are commonly associated with academic or theological texts.

How to know you're saved youtube.com/watch?v=_VRT2FFXntc

1 John 5:7: "For there are three that bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost: and these three are one."

Jesus Christ is God who has come in the flesh from heaven. He died as a sinless sacrifice for the sins of the whole world to save you from eternal hell, the punishment for your sin. He was buried, then resurrected and then ascended to heaven. John 3:16: “For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.” John 10:28: "And I give unto them eternal life; and they shall never perish, neither shall any man pluck them out of my hand." Rom 10:9: “That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved."

God wants to forgive you, but you have a choice: Do you choose the righteousness of God by receiving Christ? Your own righteousness can NEVER justify you or keep you saved because of your sin. Rom 5:9: “Much more then, being now justified by his blood, we shall be saved from wrath through him.” Salvation is by grace through faith in Jesus Christ, in His finished blood atonement. The gift of salvation can't be earned. Confess The Lord and Savior Jesus Christ in prayer, that you trust in Him and believe He atoned for your sins on the cross.

Eph. 2:8-9: “For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: Not of works, lest any man should boast.”

https://archive.org/details/surveyofauthoriz0000ruck/page/14/mode/2up A survey of the Authorized Version by Ruckman, Peter S., author

Ecclesiastes 1:6: "The wind goeth toward the south, and turneth about unto the north; it whirleth about continually, and the wind returneth again according to his circuits." But they didn't know that back there in A.D. 100, 200, 300, 400, and 100, 200, 300, 400 B.C., that the wind has regular circuits, or paths, that it travels. Ask the aerologist out there at the airport; he'll tell you about it. Ecclesiastes 1:7: "All the rivers run into the sea; yet the sea is not full; unto the place from whence the rivers come, thither they return again." Solomon said that the water runs down into the ocean; then it goes back up to the river and comes back down the river, and goes up the river and comes back down the river. Nobody believed that for years and years and years. Then somebody began to study evaporation and condensation. Somebody said, "Well, it goes up over the water and blows back over the land; clouds come down with drops." Yeah, but how come Solomon knew it in 1000 B.C.? Why is it that the scientists always lag 500 to 1,000 years behind the Bible? You'd think they would get caught up sometime, wouldn't you?

In the Dark Ages in Europe, when the Black Plague swept Europe (1300) and took off people by the millions, and there weren't enough live people left to bury the dead people, the Jews got through with hardly a casualty. So they were blamed for the Black Death. One of the reasons the Jew got through was his dietary laws. And another reason he got through is found in Leviticus 15:13: "And when he that hath an issue is cleansed of his issue; then he shall number to himself seven days for his cleansing, and wash his clothes, and bathe his flesh in running water, and shall be clean."
Anonymous Fri 12 Dec 2025 14:21:21 No.41655526 Report
It wasn't until late in the eighteen hundreds that the surgeons and physicians learned how to bathe their hands in running water to get the germs off them. The guy was putting his hands down in the bowl and washing and down in the bowl and washing. and the patients were getting gangrene by the score and losing arms and hands and feet by amputation. Then somebody said to let the water run over it, so now they wash them in running water. But don't you think that twenty-two centuries is just a little bit slow? As a matter of fact, it's more than that the passage I'm reading here is fourteen centuries before the birth of Christ; it's been eighteen centuries after his birth. Let's see, that's only thirty-two centuries off! You know, if you're a scientist, you're going to have a problem trying to keep up with what's going on. You're liable to get way out of step.

All right, take your Bible and turn to Job 37:6. Job was written in 1800 B.C.; it's the oldest book in the Bible, written probably before Moses was born. Job 37:6: "For he saith to the snow, Be thou on the earth; likewise to the small rain, and to the great rain of his strength." God takes care of snowfall and rainfall. When the snow comes down, every snowflake is different.

Look at Nahum 2:3. "The shield of his mighty men is made red, the valiant men are in scarlet: the chariots shall be with flaming torches in the day of his preparation." In the day when the Lord comes back or in the preparing for His coming. "the day of his preparation," "the chariots shall be with flaming torches." Verse 4: "The chariots shall rage in the streets, they shall justle one against another in the broad ways: they shall seem like torches, they shall run like the lightnings."

The content of the page is a biblical passage from the New Testament, specifically from the Gospel of John, which is the 21st chapter and verse. The passage is titled "Rejoice you are sinners" and is a direct quote from the Bible. The text is in a larger font size compared to the surrounding text, which is a common formatting style to emphasize the importance or significance of the passage.
The passage is a direct quote from the Bible, and it is a part of the Gospel of John, specifically chapter 21, verse 22. The passage is a call to rejoice in one's sinfulness, as it is a part of the Christian belief that all people are sinners and that God's love for them is unconditional. The passage is a call to repentance and a call to believe in Jesus Christ, as it is a part of the Christian faith.
The visual elements in the image, such as the serif font, the larger font size, and the bolded text, are used to emphasize the importance and the direct nature of the message. The text is presented in a way that is clear and easy to read, which is typical for a page from a book or document. The image does not contain any other text or graphics, and the focus is solely on the biblical passage.

What do you suppose that is? Could it be any clearer? Somebody speaks up, "Well, you know, 'chariots'." Yeah, but if the Lord had said, "Ford V-8's and Mustangs and Barracudas," who would have understood it? See? In plainer words, when the Lord writes, He writes so that any fool can get it.
A fellow said, "Well, it ought to be up-to-date: it ought to be scientific." Why, if the Lord had just said, "The Buicks will bang against the Chevrolets," who in 1800 could have understood it?
Take your Bible and turn to Isaiah if you think I stretched Nahum by putting his words on auto- mobiles. Whoever wrote Nahum and Isaiah knew something that nobody knew in 1900. Isaiah 9:5, speaking of the battle preceding the Second Coming of Christ: "For every battle of the warrior is with confused noise, and garments rolled in blood; but [watch it!] this [this battle] shall be with burning and fuel of fire [!]." How do you explain that? A fellow said, "Just coincidence." We'll see about those "coincidences" in a while. Take your Bible and turn to Job 25:5. "Behold even to the moon, and it shineth not." It doesn't? Doesn't the song say, "Shine on, shine on harvest moon"? "Behold even to the moon, and it shineth not." Does the moon shine? No, it reflects light. When did you find that out? They didn't know it in 800; they didn't know it in 900; they didn't know it in 1000; they didn't know it in 1100; they didn't know it in 1200; they didn't know it in 1300; they didn't know it in 1400. How come they didn't read Job? Job was written in 1800 B.C.

For the most part you are right, but you should love demons like jesus/buddah does cause they are beings like us that are either animal or sapient enough to be human.

Like I made out with the night hag before during sleep paralysis, and she was beautiful, but in other occasions I'm accosted by mean people or goblins that want to bite me or suck on my face.

So demons or DMT entities are a mix bag.

How I commune with demons is by taking 5-htp before bed at night without smoking marijuana or taking my 5-HT2 antagonists. (antipsyche meds block the hallucinations of serotonin)
https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/5-HT2A_receptor#Antagonists

I'd avoid christianity like the plague, cause it's a pavlovian Aphorism meant to condition people to an acquiescence to an otherwise absent deity.

I found older versions of reality residue with berenstein bears. however Stan berenstains grandfather's Original last name was Bernstein. The "only reason" why its berenstain is because an immigration officer changed the spelling when he was coming from UKRIANE to the UNITED STATES. if it was never poetically changed it would be " bernstein bears ". The bernstein bears.

Didn't marketing people decide r and z are more appealing to consumers and this is why we have pharmacuticals with names like zoloft and ambien? Asked grok this is the response
"Key Letters and Sounds in Pharma Branding
The letters Z and X stand out most prominently:

They appear far more frequently in drug names than in everyday English (Z is over 18 times more common in pharma names, X nearly 30 times).
Branding consultants note that Z and X convey a high-tech, futuristic vibe (think associations with "X-factor" or sci-fi).

They also act as fricative sounds (hissing or buzzing), which some experts link to implying speed or fluidity.
Plosive sounds (like hard C or D) signal power.

Examples include Zoloft (antidepressant), Xanax (anxiety), Zyrtec (allergy), Celebrex (pain), and many others like Zocor, Zyban, or Xarelto.
Specific Letters: Z, M, and R
Regarding Z, M, and R:

Z dominates for the reasons above—it's rare in English, making names distinctive and "zappy."
M sometimes appears in softer-sounding names, especially for drugs marketed toward women (e.g., to create a gentler feel, as in some birth control pills like Yasmin).
R doesn't have a single standout phonetic association in the sources, but it appears in many names (e.g., Prozac, Viagra) possibly for rhythm or memorability.

Examples: Zoloft and Ambien

Zoloft (sertraline) exemplifies the Z trend—starting with Z for that powerful, modern edge.
Ambien (zolpidem) is more etymological (from French "am" for morning + "bien" for good, suggesting a refreshed wake-up after sleep), but it fits the pattern of invented, pronounceable names. Its generic root has a Z, and the brand avoids overly harsh sounds.

Related Studies and Articles
No single study exactly matches a discovery focused solely on Z, M, and R together, but several articles and analyses explain the broader trend:

Im tired I meant to add the rest of the rest it was too long so 3/3 I guess.
A widely cited 2003 New York Times piece ("The Science of Naming Drugs") quotes James L. Dettore of the Brand Institute, who named drugs like Lipitor and Clarinex He explicitly says letters like X, Z, C, and D subliminally indicate power.
Articles in PMC/NIH journals and Pharmacy Times discuss how fricatives (Z, X, F, S) imply speed/power, while avoiding common letters for uniqueness and safety (to prevent mix-ups in handwriting).
A 2022 study in Therapeutic Innovation & Regulatory Science analyzed letter frequency in U.S. drug names, confirming overrepresentation of rare letters like Z for marketing/distinctiveness.

Pharma companies spend heavily (up to millions) on agencies to craft these names—balancing FDA rules (no misleading claims, no confusion with existing drugs), global pronounceability, and subconscious appeal. The result? A proliferation of Z- and X-heavy names since the 1990s, especially as direct-to-consumer advertising grew. While no one "guru" pinpointed Z/M/R in a breakthrough study tied directly to Zoloft/Ambien, the pattern stems from deliberate branding strategies documented by industry insiders."

The image shows a black, round, dome-shaped object with a small, curved handle on the right side. The object appears to be a statue or sculpture, possibly of a deity or a deity-like figure, given its traditional design. The surface of the object has a glossy finish, and there is a small, circular emblem or symbol on the top of the dome. The object is surrounded by a decorative arrangement of yellow flowers and leaves, which are arranged in a circular pattern around the base of the object. The background of the image is plain white, which contrasts with the dark color of the object and highlights its details. There are no visible texts or inscriptions on the object. The style of the image is a close-up photograph with a focus on the object, likely intended for decorative or spiritual purposes.

Lemon Juicer?

[3 / 1]The image is a vibrant and detailed fresco painting, likely depicting a religious scene. It features a large, circular structure at the center, which appears to be a dome or a large, open space. The structure is surrounded by a multitude of figures, some of whom are engaged in various activities, such as playing musical instruments, dancing, or holding objects like books and scrolls. The figures are rendered in a realistic style with a high level of detail, suggesting a sense of movement and life.

The background of the painting is filled with clouds and a starry sky, adding to the overall grandeur of the scene. The colors used are bright and varied, with a palette that includes blues, greens, reds, and yellows, which contribute to the overall vibrancy and energy of the painting.

The style of the painting is reminiscent of Renaissance art, characterized by its attention to detail, realistic representation, and the use of light and shadow to create depth and three-dimensionality. The genre of the painting is religious, as indicated by the presence of religious figures and symbols, such as the cross and the figure of Jesus Christ.

The painting is likely a fresco, a technique that involves applying paint directly onto wet plaster or stucco, which allows for a high level of detail and color saturation. The technique is often used in religious art to depict scenes with great detail and to convey a sense of movement and life.

Overall, the painting is a beautiful representation of a religious scene, filled with vibrant colors, detailed figures, and a sense of movement and life. It is a testament to the skill and creativity of the artist, who has skillfully used the fresco technique to bring this scene to life.

I had a vision Anonymous Fri 12 Dec 2025 18:37:26 No.41656653
ViewReplyOriginalReport
It came in the night, the darkness of the room seemed to get blotchy, like you see on cheap tv's. and then there was a somehow even darker darkness, and the darkness retreated into the corner of the room.. then, from the window, came a silver light, like that of the moon. visual snow began happening in my eyesight, and then there was like a mouse cursor, almost like a pulse but that was in the area of my third eye, in the mental space, but extends throughout the body. there were little pings, as if trying to direct my attention, It did so, and directed towards the silver light, and then I witnessed a grand scene. Tiny speckles of visual snow, almost like sand began a procession into the room from the window, and took up residence in the corner of the darkest darkness, which glimmered/shimmered and the previous darkness was gone and made beautiful beyond my comprehension, and It spoke through impressing upon my mind, It said I already knew Its name, and It was Zeus. and It was to slay Its "father" kronos, but It said I knew his father as yahweh, jove, jehovah, the one who consumes all other gods. we spoke in a mental dialogue, my inner monologue, vs impressions, which felt like a muscle moving, but which i somehow could perfectly interpret as language. i said in thought: i thought zeus was jove, and jove was saturn, and It said NO. that it was a lie, sold to people without spiritual aptitude, who knew It not. that through syncretization did kronos act through jove, that by destroying idols did kronos act through yahweh. because It is the leader of the Gods, and the activity of Kronos was a necessary evil to achieve certain outcomes not otherwise possible. now we will watch Yahweh/Kronos be slain, as has been done many times, because It is the Designer, and knows Its Destiny, and has done it all before, and will do it again and again, until Perfect^Perfection. The method of

It's communication is another like Itself, Hermes, but which would present itself more as Loki.
Anonymous Fri 12 Dec 2025 18:38:04 No.41656658 Report
And then the Sand/Snow poured into the room, through the window, through the ceiling, through the walls, from all directions, they were like tiny little ayyy ships that hovered up down, sideways, forward, back, and all moved in a very orderly fashion, like a parade. and all followed It, as if they had been observing the entire time. and they seemed to bear witness and pay their homage and then orderly returned in all the directions they'd arrived. the last to leave was Zeus. when I looked upon It, I saw the same glimmering scene from before, but was thunderstruck with a feeling I can only describe as majesty, despite being dumbfounded and bewildered by the precession. and then, an overwhelming love, like a mother for a child, times infinity. and it just hit me, looking at seemingly nothing but a glimmery corner of my room, I wept. I still am troubled by why I wept, because It left with the light, though Hermes has always remained. perhaps I knew It was such a scene that wouldve not been observable by any other, there was something truly divine about the entire event. And after that, Hermes taught me in the manner of Loki, through lies, mistruths, and through various roleplaying. Rarely does Hermes ever outright tell me the truth, its more of a Platonic system, today known as Apophaticism. It offers a lie, and then that lie leads to threads of thought, chains of syncronicities within reality, which eventually culminate with the truth. Distinguishing between what is "real" and what is subjective is something I always have to be mindful of. It is like tightrope walking. The second you begin to play "God" with God, you end up sucking baby weiners or something i guess. Idk, I just know what happens when you let the privilege get to your head. Because I am constantly reminded its a Test, all of it. and its ongoing, all the time.
I met "Morpheus" once as well. They all present themselves through this medium known as "Hermes", and its basically impossible to distinguish between whose who, the "voice" on the other end sounds identical, the mannerisms, can be replicated, the perception of who they are, how you interpret them, even the perception of the gender of whose speaking through impressed emotion and other feelings can be felt, all of it can be modified in an instant. It was shown to me once as a series of sliders, simple modifications on the back-end of reality. But for whatever reason, this is how It works, probably as some sort of defense mechanism, or perhaps, I suspect it acts like a sort of security system for a kind of Akashic Record.
One day, out of nowhere, It says tonight I will show you what happens after you die. Didnt think anything of it, It says alot of crazy shit. Previously I had been aware of Hermes being present even in dreams, and had seen easter eggs in dreams of various things shown to me in the third eye that appear latered. This night I have a dream, everything is much more vivid than usual, highly realistic, I am skating as a boy, then out in the country at some remote farm, standard dream stuff - then, poof everything goes black. the "dream" is gone and im just staring at pitch black, but im fully aware of everything still and still fully present in the dream and theres a very long almost suffucating awkward period of time, maybe about 15 seconds, and then 'Hermes' says: I said I would show you, remember? And I did. Suddenly I was looking at a giant sphere in the sky, and then I came out of the sphere, and did not fall but just hovered, and looked down upon the entire dreamset I was just in, the farm house, and I traveled up and down, and could move anywhere in the plane, and had fun floating around and then walking on the ground, and then I was beckoned back to the sphere and Hermes said: thats all for now. And we returned through the sphere, out of the dream.

[341 / 44]The image is a graphic representation of the process of testosterone breathing, which is a method used to help alleviate symptoms of male pattern baldness. The image is divided into three panels, each depicting a different stage of the process.

The second panel, labeled "2," shows the figure in a more advanced stage of the process. The figure's chest and abdomen are now visible, and the hairline is starting to recede. The figure is depicted with a visible chest and a small portion of the abdomen, indicating the middle stage of the process.

The third panel, labeled "3," shows the figure in the final stage of the process. The figure's chest and abdomen are now fully visible, and the hairline is receding further. The figure is depicted with a visible chest and a small portion of the abdomen, indicating the end of the process.

The image also includes text that provides a description of the process. It states that the process involves holding full retention of energy, visualizing the energy moving up to the brain, and pulling testicles down to the brain. The text also mentions that the process should be done in a quiet environment and that the person should be relaxed.

The image is a simple and clear representation of the process, with a focus on the stages of the process and the visual cues that indicate each stage. The use of color and shading to differentiate between the different stages of the process adds to the clarity of the image. The text is clear and easy to read, providing additional information about the process. Overall, the image is a useful tool for understanding the process of testosterone breathing and its potential benefits.

Welcome to the Semen Retention General!
Efficiency in Energy Edition!

>What is Semen Retention?
Semen retention is the practice of completely abstaining from masturbation and ejaculation, often with the intention of preserving and redirecting vital and sexual energy to oneself.

>Why do it?
Reported benefits include: increased vitality, mental clarity, reduced stress, increased motivation, increased energy, improved focus, healthier hair/skin/eyes, deeper meditation, improved AP/Lucid Dreams, deeper voice, improved mood, greatly improved testosterone, improved physical strength and many more.

>Wet Dreams?
They happen because you had a sexual dream and you coomed. Learn to be conscious on your dreams and stop the succubus.

>What causes wet dreams?
The causes are many: Illnesses, telepathic bad actors fucking with your dreams, excess energy build up, watching too much sexually-inducing stuff, lusting during the day, lack of an adequate transmutation activity, eating too late at night, excess nutrients overall, stimulants like maca, ginseng, ginger, excess protein, excess carbs, tight clothes (pajamas) for bedtime, bad sleeping posture (this varies, find the one that suits you best), going to bed with full bladder, exposure to hormonal disruptors via food (pesticides...) or body care products (soap, deodorant etc)...

>In case of urges:
- https://imgur.com/gallery/g4eGH
- Don't peek and Hold your breath for as long as you possibly can. The urge usually pass after that. If not, repeat.

- Horse stance or chair pose: Do it while clenching the abdomen and all legs' muscles, raise arms for extra blood flow redirection. Works both for killing erections or urges.
- Any physical activity.

On long clean streaks many report benefits that transcend current science like a sort of "magnetism" or higher "vibration/aura" that attracts/appeals to other living beings, a higher perception, a stronger and intimidating "aura/presence", a deeper connection with nature, an attractive BO (people usually report it as "pheromones") and more.

>Advices:
- Mental Purity 1.1: Semen Retention acts as a bio-electromagnetic amplifier. Watch the quality of your thoughts because your inner state will get amplified and manifested. Lust is the Ojas killer. Do not engage with Lust.
- Mental Purity 1.2: Keep a journal as a tool for introspection.
- NEVER watch porn of any kind.
- Remove triggers from your life. Masturbation is a bad habit. Break that bad habit.
- Focus on achieving a goal. An art, a craft, competing, etc.
- Meditate and/or Pray Daily. Try a minimum of 5 minutes to start off.
- Exercise/Gym/Sports/Martial Arts. If it is something social even better.
- Good habits like healthy eating, water fasting, dry fasting, sun exposure and cold showers do seem to speed up the process.
- Sublimation: literally using the energy.
- Transmutation: changing the quality of energy to something different. (Surya Namaskara, 8 brocades, Tibetan rites)
- Avoid stimulant drugs such as caffeine or adderall

Keep in mind that the efferent nerves attached to your testes necessarily means that any lustful thought, image, or sound is necessarily a command to your junk to produce sexual fluids and this is the reason why celibacy is first and foremost of the mind
The root of this entire matter is the mind - without conquering the mind, celibacy is a futile effort
The signals from the brain happen on the subconscious autonomic level
This is why any lustful thought, image, or sound is necessarily a command to the sexual organs to produce sexual fluids (the more intently you look, the higher amplitude of a signal gets sent: body > afferent nerves > brain > efferent nerves > body)
Therefore "Conversion of sexual energy to something" is necessarily a HORRIBLY inefficient process (Not to confuse with Sexual Transmutation)
Fluids will be reabsorbed, but the energy and materials cost to make it vs how much is "taken back" via reabsorption is SEVERELY unbalanced and super net negative Sexual fluids are made from the cream of the crop of the body's resources - constantly generating them means that you are constantly draining away the cream of the crop of your resources.
Taoist writings said that the sexual organs will even take primacy over nourishing your other internal organs at some point. (Thus, doing a spiritual practice as a coomer is a surefire way to die faster).

isn't semen retention just a Nofap movement?

Anonymous Sun 07 Dec 2025 18:44:49 No.41628941 Report
t’s always good to remember why /x/ is the most accurate place for this topic: semen retention is one of the clearest paranormal inducing thing of all the other topics discussed on /x/. It’s a sacred practice that has been the one of the main focuses in every major religion or spiritual practices. The mystical side of it is what we try to focus on in here.

Semen retention can be political issue too and it would then belong to /pol/. The porn industry is a tool made by the jews to deterioate the societies and corrupt the people. The porn works in ways that program new sets of behaviour in its audience and the audience is hooked to it because of its strong addictive qualities. The most important goal for porn’s male audience was and is the releasing of their semen. As we now know, the disadvantages of cooming are heavy: a man becomes less of a man, he gets sick and weak, his mind numbed, he will have impotence issues etc. Also his spirit almost dies.

Semen retention is beneficial to make one healthier and stronger, more fit, if you will. So the topic could be discussed on /fit/. Anyone looking for more ways to get fitness gains would benefit hugely from the SR.

Also the SR has so many other benefits that it could be discussed in the /adv/ board. These would be topics how it improves one’s social life, mental state, makes more time to be more productive etc.

But I think the biggest benefits of SR are something mystical in nature and the whole practice is fundamentally something very close to spiritual side of things. All the other topics in here /x/ are left far behind and SR actually makes this board of any relevancy. This is also known by the enemy and they make strong efforts to suppress, hijack, twist and end this discussion.

The image is a screenshot of a text, which appears to be a part of a larger document or article. The text is in English and discusses the concept of demons and their role in various religious and philosophical systems. The text is highlighted in blue, indicating a specific point of interest or emphasis. The text is structured in a way that suggests it is a part of a larger discussion or article, with a section titled "Key Teachings on Demons & Evil."
The text discusses the concept of demons as part of a hierarchy of entities existing in the same reality as humans, and how they are fundamentally "our own negative thoughts." It also mentions that demons are tied to suffering and are associated with lust, anger, greed, and other negative emotions. The text also touches on the concept of self-realization and the internal battle against these demons, which leads to self-enquiry and the realization of these internal evils and transcending the whole play.
The image is a screenshot, which means it is a snapshot of a digital document or a digital version of a printed document. The text is in a font that is consistent with a digital document, and the overall style of the image is that of a digital document, with a dark background and a lighter text color. The image does not contain any other visual elements or graphics, and the focus is solely on the text.

The image is a black and white manga panel featuring two characters. On the left side, there is a male character with a muscular build, wearing a sleeveless top and a pair of shorts. He has a short haircut and is looking at the male character on the right. The male character on the right is depicted with a large, fierce expression, with his mouth open wide and his eyes wide open, giving the impression of a roar or a shout. He has a large, curved tiger-like head with sharp teeth and a furrowed brow. The background is not fully visible, but it appears to be a dark, possibly nighttime setting. The style of the image is reminiscent of manga, with a focus on action and intensity.

>At such times as sexual desire seems imperative, stand erect, muscles tense, place the hands palms down over the sex organs — partially or, better still, completely disrobed — and while doing so, concentrate on the thought: "I Will that this power ascend to higher regions — that it follow this path — I can feel it so doing," meanwhile drawing the hands up slowly on each side of the a,bdomen, following the natural curve of the body, until they stop over the nipples or mammary glands. Pause a moment until conscious of a distinct swelling of the breasts, a sensation of energy therein. Practice this on several occasions until the evidence of the upward surging of the vital powers is undoubted. Then, as a step farther, the next time it is practiced, bring the hands up to the throat, until it manifests in a distinct desire to speak with force and vigor. Third step — bring the hands completely up over the back and front brains, and you will become conscious of a power to create in the line of thought or mental process never before experienced. This practice is invaluable to the men or women who use their brains rather than their hands in the regular occupations of life.

Method for transmutation found in a Rosicrucian manual.

This diagram is misleading. You exhale completely, then contract and hold, then breath, then release. You're forcing the shakti upwards, holding it in the brain, then vitalizing it in there with breath. Makes zero sense to inhale while contracting, you're just vitalizing your lower centers as the Shakti flows upwards. Great way to damage your organs of trigger nocturnal emissions. You WAIT until it's in your SKULL, obviously. Really annoying to see bad info like this passed around.

Better than most posts. Lots of guys in this general just do SR to gain worldly bullshit like female validation or money when you can actually transform yourself into a genius. Also, really don't think you need to do anything of the hand stuff or chanting. Just use your mind and force the energy upward. If the mind hasn't been trained well enough to do such a simple task, a person has no business transmitting the energy to the brain. It could actually make them insane. Too many blocks combined with a scattered mind would be a disaster upon Kundalini ascent.

Hey anons, did anyone else only get negatives from SR? Before I started this practice I coomed daily, almost never to porn, and usually lasted anywhere from 10-15 minutes at a time. I was happy and energetic all the time, and girls and guys all thought I was weird but pretty cool. When I started SR I began to feel the benefits very fast, muscle growth, confidence, all that stuff, but they also faded very quickly, only lasting abt three months. After that I started to get frequent wet dreams all the time, and my dick got ridiculously sensitive, to the point that just lying down on my belly would cause me to orgasm while soft. Additionally i've also become less energetic, and WAYYY more depressed, . However I do see some benefits, people respect me more and my body and face is more masculine. I don't really know what to do, as I want to be able to last for a girl and not just be in'n'out. Thanks

It's worth mentioning that when I started I was VERY driven to healing myself and transmuting my energy to help my family and my wishes have been granted to me by God's grace and generosity. I've also getting cleaner days than when I started, but I haven't been as devoted as I could be to improve myself. I'm also considering cutting non-lewd female ASMR audio. It's the last thing keeping me from going full monk mode practically and It might be tricky to give up, not gonna lie. Other than that I've took my first ever Ivermectin plus Mebendazole dose and I'm looking to dose more regularly to help me cleanse myself of parasites/covid spike protein. I'm willing to believe this rut is temporary. Wish me luck brothers, I'll be praying for your success as well.

DAY #49
It has been very easy to keep my streak lately. The vacuum pumping of the SAVAGE SLIT SLIDER that I initiated early in the streak to combat shrinkage of the corpora cavernosus and the corpus spongiosum has become more challenging; tumescencemaxxing taking a bit more effort with a clinical clean zen mind. I am no longer able to achieve the earlier reported simulated orgasms and I have completely stopped leaking precum. I always had cojones grandes but lately they are absolutely huge. Good thing I am pumping, or my endowment would have appeared humble instead of imposing. I am a grower, not a shower. Not only are the sallys of the succubi rather half hearted as of late, but I am increasingly getting that feeling known from gaming where you avoid using mana to max your reserves: like, why would I break my streak to coom in some woman? Unless I am trying to make her pregnant, or we are making love with the intent to procreate, I shall venture to withhold my essence from her.

Knowing women I think it will drive her absolutely insane, whoever she might be: and my ventures into retentionism promises that this indeed might be far more rewarding than an end-streak orgasm (that in my experience will be one of those extremely weak, disappointing unexctatic ejaculations anyway. I notice many interested eyes from nubile females. I have had a few unusual strokes of good luck. I am not feeling particularly closer to God; but with so many benefits in this AONANIC PRAXIS it is as hard to solely do in honour of the Good God as it is to cleanly devote your merit.

The image is a stylized, monochromatic illustration featuring a humanoid figure with a bald head and a stern expression. The figure's skin is textured, and the eyes are drawn with a dark, almost sinister color. The background is dark and features a pattern of what appears to be abstract shapes and lines, giving the impression of a chaotic or ominous environment. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of digital art or a graphic novel, with a focus on the figure's facial expression and the dark, ominous background. There are no discernible texts or additional elements within the image.

I just want to say that to whoever is struggling with wet dreams, first thing you'll hear from others when asking how to stop WDs is:

>don't have lustful thoughts >don't wear tight pants >take cold showers >stretch pelvic floor muscles

>do kegels/reverse kegels >don't eat a big meal before bed/don't sleep with a full bladder >do yoga/stretch

All of it is bullshit (in regards to stopping wet dreams, they are very healthy habits to have tho)

The main thing that determines if you get a WD or not is what position you sleep in. 90% of the time I have wet dreams sleeping on my back and very rarely ever on my sides (stomach sleeping is obvious, don't do it). From the little research I've done sleeping on your back can cause vivid dreams (you're even more likely to have nightmares on your back) and now combine that with a porn addicted brain the first thing your mind will do is think of lustful thoughts and because the dream feels so real you get excited and coom.

I've had days where I did all of the things on the list above but I'd still have a WD that night and it made me depressed, meanwhile there have been plenty days where I did none of them and all I did was sleep on my side. Specifically sleeping on your ride side is best.

I hope this helps

If you're planning on having sex you should not practice SR IMO. It's good if you wanna quit porn and reduce the vices but if you're planning to fornicate you're gonna bust in like 10 seconds almost each time. SR is for those that wanna follow the righteous path and that includes only having sex for procreation. Thinking with your big brain instead of the little one. Acting in accordance to God's law vs nature's law. Sorry my bros it's the truth. If you're doing SR to get da chicas you're doing it wrong and it's a matter of time before you give up

Nah this happens because most people without any sensation (I'm talking clean streaks - no porn or edging) will have a tough time getting used to that sensation again as it can be pretty overwhelming especially if she's tight. Just how the body works. Like going back to a workout after not using your muscles for months.

Regardless, my point stands - if you're gonna be having sex without ejaculating and do it often, it's gonna be a matter of time before you bust anyway, and that energy of sexual desire is what severs your connection with God.

Just take a deep breath in, focus on your testicles and feel how they naturally 'rise' in accordance with your breath. Then when you take that deep breath out, see how they naturally relax. So essentially it's just breathing in with your whole body. This is good because it simply makes you more present, and your mind is what directs this flow putting that attention more on your mind instead of just breathing unconsciously through shallow breaths.

Attention IS the energy. If you do something mentally engaging like reading a book or math problems, that energy will naturally go to your mind. You don't need any special 'techniques,' you subconsciously already know what to do but this just brings it to your conscious awareness.

Yeah, there are many of them, and these are more revolved around 'sex magic' and 'tantra' than actual SR. I used to be really into this until Christ turned my life around.

"Modern Sex Magick: Secrets of Erotic Spirituality" by Donald Michael Craig
"Taoist Secrets of Love: Cultivating Male Sexual Energy" by Mantak Chia

Essentially these books want to lead you to Kundalini - which is essentially the serpent taking over the mind, where the energy from below comes upwards. I don't recommend this because it's completely backwards. God's way is energy coming from the heavens (through the mind) and dominating the lower regions - which is how it is naturally, without any 'techniques' that you don't know what you're getting in to.

Yes, this is how God made it - so men can build and manipulate the material world for the greater good of others and themselves. It's incredibly simple and there's no paranormal thing about it.

Energy makes you want to do stuff. Feel angry? Time to hit the weights, hit the punching bag, practice karate. Feel sad? Write, read, make art, practice guitar. Feel horny? Anything except bust a nut. Simplicity is the key to life.

> Simple rule is energy flows where attention goes
That sort of energy work still requires you to recognise what energy feels like. If you don't follow some appropriate practise like Qi Gong, you will mistake internal physiological processes for energy and end up simply deluding yourself.
>f you want the energy to go to your brain read a book or do some math problems
Reading a book isnt muh energy work, that is completely delusional and lazy
You're trying to find shortcuts and avoid the hard work required for real spiritual transformation. So you convince yourself you can multitask, and tell yourself doing normal everyday things is actually muh energy work.

The image is a text excerpt from a digital medium, likely a social media platform, given the format and the presence of a hashtag (#). The text is written in English and appears to be a conversation or a series of thoughts. The content discusses a person's experiences and opinions on various topics, including relationships, sex, and societal norms.
The text is divided into paragraphs, with the first paragraph beginning with "So he said back in the day when I lived in the village in Somali when we weren't allowed to even talk to girls or see them that much at all." This sets the context for the conversation, indicating a past interaction or a discussion about a specific time period.
The second paragraph continues with the person's perspective on the energy they had back in those days, stating, "He said the energy I had back in those days was truly incredible I used to be strong and ran climbed trees swimming in the rivers fighting." This part of the text suggests a sense of strength and physical activity during the person's youth.
The third paragraph discusses the energy the person had after engaging in activities like climbing trees and swimming in rivers, stating, "He said the energy I had back then was truly incredible I used to be strong and ran climbed trees swimming in the rivers fighting." This part of the text implies a sense of physical and mental energy that the person had during their youth.
The fourth paragraph continues the theme of energy, stating, "He said the energy I had back then was truly incredible I used to be strong and ran climbed trees swimming in the rivers fighting." This part of the text suggests a continued sense of energy and physical activity.

The fifth paragraph shifts the focus to the person's wife, stating, "And he said back then men will go camel herding for months. And come once to Their wife every few months from work and have sex make a baby. And go back to the animals for months. He also said that your legs and knees go weak after you ejaculate and he even said if your not having sex to make baby. And your just doing pleasure. Then the women becomes healthier form your semen more than you. And we started talking about if a man does no drugs and. Stays sober and practices abstinence that man will be a great man." This part of the text discusses the physical and emotional aspects of sexual activity and the potential impact on a person's health and well-being.

The final paragraph concludes the text with a statement about the societal norms and expectations surrounding relationships and sex, stating, "So he said back in the day when I lived in the village in Somali when we weren't allowed to even talk to girls or see them that much at all. I'll never understand you guys. You keep insisting it's all about not ejaculating since being a coomer is bad for your health, not the 100's of bad habits that makes you become a coomer to begin with.

Being addicted to masturbation is just like any other addiction. Yeah it's bad for you. Being able to quit and moving towards healthier habits will improve your mental and physical health, absolutely. But it's not the act of retaining semen alone.

I'm 29yo, married and with a healthy sex life, having sex 3+ times a week, cumming multiple times when it happens. I almost never spend over 48h without ejaculating, all while having 0 health issues, but that's because I take care of myself.

>but that's because it's sex, only masturbation is bad for you, your brain knows the difference
Anon, you're still ejaculating. It's the same shit. Specially if you have sex regularly, it just becomes something that feels better than using your hand but nothing mindblowing. Sex only feels extremely intense if you're very in the mood or after months/years without it. No hand or toy will ever feel as good as a pussy since they were actually designed to stimulate every single bit of your penis, but if you're used to it, it's nothing special.

I swear this is just a psyop to make young males become hopeless and useless. First they keep you all addicted to porn, then they farm loosh outta you by trying to convince you to quit and not do anything, so you can suffer from cravings all day instead of being able to put all that energy into good use.

Okay. Have you ever tried rectal breathing? It's really good for your body, your mind and your magical powers. In short, you train to open up your rectum with your mind, as if you were to take a poop but in reverse. And then you let the air in. Hold it in, and then fart it out. Here's what it does to your body: it will allow you to double or triple your breathing, allowing you to spend more time under water. This is what the wizards use to dive without having to come up to breath. It will make your ass muscles so much stronger, I swear I can break a cucumber in half just after 2 months of training. And it will make your mind clearer. Allowing you to focus more while doing magic card tricks.

The harsh truth most people here won't want to admit, is that SR is simply a side thing you do alongside hardcore spiritual training. When you're firmly on a mystical path, sr can amplify those effects, but SR is meaningless on its own.
any additional energy you gain from SR evaporates by itself after a week. Most dont recognise this because theyre not in tune with their bodies and cannot recognise energy.
People here are fundamentally lazy. Theyre looking for shortcuts. The promise of simply not cumming will lead to profound spiritual benefits is too alluring, and they've invented an entire mythology around that.

Nah bru your testicle breathing is a shortcut. Reading, math problems, etc is using your mindpower - something Nikola Tesla would prob recommend doing, which also concentrates energy in your crown. I doubt he's someone that b thinking a bout breathing throrugh his nuts all day. He'd be using his God given intellect in a way that would benefit society.
>So you convince yourself you can multitask, and tell yourself doing normal everyday things is actually muh energy work.
Bruh there's a saying, "Before enlightenment chop wood carry water, after enlightenment chop wood carry water." What you're doing yourself is looking for shortcuts to get to a specific place or achieve a certain outcome... You'll never arrive. Little things like working out daily, waking up with gratitude and prayer, eating healthy, cultivating discipline is what life is about, and that's how you should cultivate your spiritual energy - by being here, now. This is how God intended - and the simplest answer is generally the correct one.

But you do you tho, best of luck

New Age hogwash. To actually be present you need to meditate. But that's not what we're talking about here, i speak of actual mysticism which requires much more work.

As they say, sex is like air, it's only a big deal when you're not getting any. And pussy feels nice, but desu a lot of times the look of it isn't appealing and the smell can be bad.
Porn is actually a very clean, controlled way of dealing with lust. That's why it's so addicting because it represents a false ideal. This is what keeps you coming back to it.
The unsatiable desire you have for it all comes from within you and not outside of you.
And as a married man that has sex all the time, you already know that after a while of having sex with the same woman over and over it feels practically like masturbating

I just did 4months of sr and I think it was overall positive. I found I was very disciplined after the second month and more so into the third month. I am very passionate about my work and that is where my energy was going. Though I was developing somewhat concerning depressive tendencies. Also I am using sr as khhv cope. But at the same time I know where my priorities belong and I think I will try to find someone to have a relationship with this winter.

>This is a pointer, not a fact, that you have grossly misinterpreted.
>Buddhists spend hours meditating and cultivating stillness to achieve enlightenment. You can't skip all that work.

The exact phrase “Before enlightenment, chop wood, carry water; after enlightenment, chop wood, carry water” is a modern paraphrase of Zen themes found in Chinese Chan and Japanese Zen literature, particularly:

The Platform Sutra of Huineng, which emphasizes sudden enlightenment in everyday life.

Zen monastic teachings, where simplicity and manual labor are central spiritual practices.

The famous saying captures the traditional Zen idea that daily tasks are themselves part of the Way. As a wise man once said: "Be like water amigo" no they're not.

The specific practise is called "ichigyo zammi", which means doing one thing at a time, with full concentration if you try this for an extended period of time, your mind will wander and the monkey mind chatter inevitably takes over which is why you do spiritual work, like meditation to achieve emptiness of mind, cultivating stillness, improving focus, removing defilements etc, then you can do it properly the problem with spiritual narcissists is they are incapable of confronting the real limitations of the body, and are the first to suggest others have work to do. spirituality is nothing more than a quirky personality for them

Exactly. I mean, SR is not a bad thing, you will see positive results from it specially if you're addicted to porn and SR is helping you quit.

My problem starts when people say that doing so will fix all sorts of things.
They believe that SR will make them lose weight, grow hair back, become more attractive, get lots of girls, become more confident, change the way people look at you, turn you into a 4D being, etc etc.

The act of getting rid of an addiction can do some of that, I know it from quitting cigs a long time ago, but it's more of a willpower thing than your balls being full or not. The act of simply not ejaculating won't do shit.

Some people develop a bit of willpower from the act of restraint which turns into some level of spiritual power, and that's what all the other BS gains comes from. They could pick anything else such as quitting soft drinks or smoking and achieve the same results.

this is where body leads mind

>which is why you do spiritual work, like meditation to achieve emptiness of mind, cultivating stillness, improving focus, removing defilements etc, then you can do it properly
if this helps for you, by all means. I do this through prayer and doing my every day tasks with full conscientiousness. You don't need to sit still for an hour and practice this. Osho explains this in "Tasting mindfulness:"
Osho's "taste fully" meditation, also called Mindful Eating or Tasting Mindfulness, transforms eating into a spiritual practice by bringing full, conscious awareness to the taste, texture, and sensation of food, allowing you to become the taste itself, not just swallowing mindlessly

I dont want to a realationship to prove something to myself, I want to because I think it is the right thing to do in my life. I am 24 and have never been in a relationship because I have the mindset that I need to be the best person I can be before I even think about involving someone in my life. It will not fulfill me at all, actually I fear it will retract from what I am working towards in my life, maybe even derail it. That being said, what will fulfill me is a family on a spacious plot of land on a mountain and if I don't get this I have failed at life.

As for sr it was something that I stumbled upon and for no reason at all decided to commit to. I say no reason though I suppose the reason was to see what would happen. I dont know the reason to do it unless you want to redirect energy towards something. Also porn is not the greatest thing in the world, and honestly a prostitute would probably be more beneficial for most the incel croud. She is older and cannot have children but is hyper sexual and her willingness to do whatever it takes to extract my qi has led me to slow ruin these past 11 months.

I am at the end of my myself, completely consumed by the forces of evil. Behaving in ways that I never wanted but have been up to now not powerful enough to stop. For this I am sorry and wish to repent publicly so that I may try again in earnest this next year with full faith in the lord. May God have mercy on my soul.

In those periods where I'm not having a bout of depression, SR makes a massive difference. When deep into a streak and in a stable mood, everything is enhanced tenfold. When not on a streak, it's basically depression lite. And yes, contrary to what coping coomers say, sex breaks a streak just as much as jacking off does.

>When not on a streak, it's basically depression lite.
Because when you're lusting your focus starts being more on your 'body' and how the external world can satisfy its needs. And if your body's needs - pleasure, comfort, etc. aren't being met, you'll be depressed, naturally.

>And yes, contrary to what coping coomers say, sex breaks a streak just as much as jacking off does.
Disagree. It's worse. Because you're creating a soul tie with someone. Even subtle changes in your partner's behavior will cause you to be reactive even if you intended that relationship to be casual. The sex act is so binding. At least with jerking off the only thing you feel after is maybe guilt but you move on. But sex with the wrong person can drive you literally insane. There's a dark aura to sex, just how it is man.

If you don't like the smell of a clean pussy it means she smells of another man, that she is sick, that she is infertile, that she is about to have or is having her moonblood. If none of this check you are indeed some species of sodomite.
For me yoni-munching has been my standard last move before penetration for about 15 years years, ever since I got reacquainted with God.
>Letting my handsome cock enter the henhouse as she reaches her first orgasm is exemplary pleasuremaxxing.
>For me, obviously.
>Even more for her, it will give her an instant vaginal orgasm, something many women haven't even experienced.
>This makes it 99% impossible for her to ask for a condom, something that would make the sex your streak-end, an abomination in the eyes of God.

>It allows you to check her for disease before the foray of naked knight.
>It will instaheal any wiskeydick I have managed to aquire, and anon: I (used to) play very hard.
>It will leave her satisfied even if you don't feel like giving her the full hour she paid for
>She will feel she owes you, as any healthy heterosexual woman is unable to see her yummy morsel as anything more than the pee/coom/blood/yeast fuckhole she knows it to be.
>If you wanted to love her long long time but involuntary ejaculate you can fuck through the limpening of the lingam and gain the sport-sex buff.
>Babbymakkingmaxing.

Fasting is really great, if you are doing a clean streak, it will open many spiritual pathways inside you.

Yeah yeah, a clean pussy is not smelly or has a faint natural-like odor.
Any trace of stench means something is not right but leave it to fags to not mind dipping their tongues and dicks in the traces of another man's dick.

>They believe that SR will make them lose weight, grow hair back, become more attractive, get lots of girls, become more confident, change the way people look at you, turn you into a 4D being, etc etc.

Who says this? But what is the goal of SR for you then? It's different for everybody. Some people might do it for "magnetism" which I agree is hogwash. SR is just a form of internal discipline. The benefits you get from it are from the act of retention itself. Anything else is a bonus.

>Nah, GTFO with that bullshit.
SR is most ideal way, but most people just use it for a quick fap and get back to whatever they're doing. I'm talking about those people. But I'm aware that there are some people whose fetishes just get darker and end up in a 'goon hole' where they masturbate for several hours. I'm not talking about those people. Those are people with addiction problems

>You do have a point with the rest of your drooling, porn leads you to an insatiable desire for an unattainable perfection.
Real sex is primal, clumsy, and nowhere near as perfect and curated as porn. That's also where the parallel lies - most people just have sex and call it a day, move on with their lives; whereas in some people sex addiction becomes something dark.

Not him but the last week it felt like a battle every night. I accidentally see a naked woman on 4chan, my brain goes in bargaining overdrive.
I get a text from a girl, my imagination runs wild.
I see an unnecessarily lustful advert, my brain bargains some more. The evenings are when this becomes difficult but I managed to "win" this tug of war every time so far and that feels kinda good.

When I am in bed I just repeat "I set out to sleep, so that's what I will do and nothing else", it's not easy but I guess that's why you feel so strong about it, a small victory every time.
Though I'm already maybe 7 weeks into this, some moments are easier than others.

All pussies smell bro, it's just the matter of the degree. Some are mild while some are borderline offensive. Just how it is - pussy isn't some grand, sacred monolith, it's just nature. That's where porn hijacks one's mind - it selectively filters out this rawness and imperfect nature and how many men with porn addiction idealize pussy as some perfect, glamourous ideal

Indeed, that's the benefit you get from SR. It's not so much the magnetism as it is the strength you get from your discipline and self-respect you get by sticking to your values. That's worth way more than any magnetism IMO

A healthy fertile woman will taste great, if a little neutral, and the chemicals you receive in this sharing of fluids will make your babymaker ready for action post haste. If you are a good match genetically she will taste like the waters of heaven, which incidentally explain why black girls always smell funky and taste gamey to me.

The image is a close-up photograph of a cat's face, focusing on its eyes and nose. The cat has a light orange fur coat with darker orange and white markings on its face. Its eyes are wide open, and the fur around the eyes and around the mouth is slightly ruffled, giving the impression of a playful or energetic expression. The cat's whiskers are visible, and its nose is pinkish-red. The background is a plain, light gray color, which contrasts with the cat's fur and highlights its features. There are no texts or discernible

The image is a screenshot of a news article or blog post. The main text in the image reads, "Butt breathing could help people who can't get oxygen the regular way." Below this headline, there is a subtext that says, "It may be possible to repurpose the gut for breathing when the lungs fail." The image shows a person, presumably a person of Asian descent, speaking with a serious expression. The person is wearing a light-colored shirt and jeans, and is standing in front of a hospital bed with a patient lying on it. The background is a clinical setting with medical equipment and a window. The style of the image is a combination of a photograph and a text-based article, with the photograph providing a visual context for the text.

Bullshit. The occasional leaky weiner or wetdream does not destroy your streak. Would it be better if it didn't happen? Probably, but it doesn't ruin all of the effects of your gains and what you've lost comes back much faster. I think the problem is that SR greatly improves your confidence and control, and now you're dulling the effects with negative thoughts. Just brush yourself off, get back on the wagon and keep going.

It isn't just about the vital nutrients. Those replenish pretty quickly. The energies are a different story. The main reason you feel so energetically drained after masturbating is because you are making a sacrifice of your own free will to digital or graven images produced by bad actors, and that sacrifice is like blood in the water for demonic metaphysical entities that consume your life force. It's like you cutting your arm by accident versus making a demonic pact and slicing yourself with a knife as an offering to an evil entity. That is literally what you're doing when you jerk off, you are agreeing to give your life force in exchange for momentary pleasure and it lets these things suck on you like a 32oz coca cola with a wide straw.

The image is a black and white photograph with a quote attributed to Marcus Aurelius. The quote reads: "Ask 'what is so unbearable about this situation?' Why can't you endure it? You will be embarrassed to answer." The text is centered and is in a serif font, which is commonly used for formal or classical style. The background of the image is black, which contrasts with the white text, making the quote stand out. At the bottom of the image, there is a watermark that reads "artofpoets.com," indicating the source of the image. The overall style of the image is minimalist and appears to be a digital creation, likely used for educational or inspirational purposes.

Hermetic texts, ancient Egyptian wisdom all spoke of semen retention.
Cumming = the snake eating it's own tail.
These people that speak of eating their own cum must know there is no difference from eating the self.
All life is energy that vibrates at different frequency.
Cumming is direct removal of sacred energy from the body.
(this works in a scientific mechanical way. You can feel the ground because you can feel your feet, your semen is a feeling organ too, directly connected into the spine and fluids that mix into the brain and the pineal gland.

By cooming you are quite literally using desire to destroy the spiritual self... Thus eating the self.
Retaining allows the semen to mix with the body again and the pineal gland becomes awoken from balance within the body.
This is when the simulation breaks down and you start seeing with your true eye.

The Hindus, the philosophers, the ancients all spoke of this and so did the bible. The snake in the garden of eden sits among the apple tree (semen/seed of life) The desire to eat this seed of life is the downfall of humanity. (eating the seed and cooming the seed are the same concept of loss of the seed) The snake is the Desire/Satan you have within you, some may call it Lucifer or Satan. We all have this (snake/satan/desire) within us and it MUST be controlled if you wish to see the light.

SR unifies all of spirituality from all religions and cultures. It is not a practice for the lay person but one of true heart and dedication.
Know this and you will succeed in your journey.

The image displays a piece of jewelry, specifically a necklace, with a design that appears to be inspired by ancient Egyptian iconography. The necklace features a large eye, which is the central motif, surrounded by a series of smaller symbols and inscriptions. The eye is depicted with a black pupil and is surrounded by a gold border. The eye is flanked by two smaller, golden symbols that resemble a bird and a snake, respectively. The bird is positioned to the left of the eye, while the snake is to the right. The necklace is adorned with beads that are a mix of colors, including green, blue, and gold, which are likely to be gemstones or beads of various colors. The beads are arranged in a way that they form a continuous pattern along the length of the necklace, adding to the overall aesthetic of the piece.
The background of the image is a dark, possibly black, color, which contrasts with the lighter colors of the necklace and allows the details of the necklace to stand out. The image is taken from a slightly angled perspective, looking down at the necklace, which gives a sense of the necklace's length and the intricate design. There are no visible texts or inscriptions on the necklace itself, and the focus is solely on the design and the beads. The style of the image is a close-up photograph, likely taken for the purpose of showcasing the jewelry.

The real meaning of the symbols here

- The eye (for congruency we will call it the "true eye")
- The wind that comes from the west (the bird - Egyptians buried their dead facing the West (also due to the sun setting in the East.))
- The serpent coming from the tear duct, semen and tears both modulate as a liquid form.
- The serpent is also in the East, as being from the sun, the sun being firey, firey being akin to desire.
- The eye itself is shown as a full black object, this is due to the eye being the inverse of the sun. The black sun, the taker of light for the self to process, where as the sun is the white circle, the giver of light. This is why the Sun is often assumed by many traditions to be god itself.

The entire symbol is a learning lesson of how to tame the serpent. This is where ancient breathing techniques come from, Breath from death (East), into life (west). Notice this action is flipped (west = death, east = life). The freemasons have this as a test when you enter their temple, they ask from which direction do you seek/come and where do you desire to go. This freemason riddle stems from the ancient Egyptians.

As do many other Eastern traditions think the wind is where the dead exist.
the air is a living entity, if you leave food out it will slowly oxidize it, eat it like you left an offering to the spirit realm itself.
When you breath you are oxidizing the body slowly, every breath is a breath of death itself.
Yet it is what giveth life too.

Breathing techniques allow you to tap into the entity that is air, a living and consciously breathing body.

I think this is getting off track so.

(West: Bird/Air) <-- (Black sun/true self/ true seeing eye) --> (Serpent/Fire)

Breath work (air) controls the (fire - desire created from the serpent wanting to release the seed)

All of these spiritual symbols are maps teaching those who seek to retain

The image is a list of ten statements, presented in a simple, straightforward style with a white background and black text. The statements are numbered from 1 to 10, and each one is a question or a statement related to personal growth or spiritual practices.
The first statement is "1. Luck does CHANGE on retention," which suggests that one's luck can change over time.
The second statement is "2. Attraction is real," which implies that attraction is a genuine aspect of life.
The third statement is "3. Meditation is a game changer," which implies that meditation can have a significant impact on one's life.
The fourth statement is "4. Prayer helps," which suggests that prayer can be a helpful tool.
The fifth statement is "5. God is real," which implies that God is a real and significant aspect of life.
The sixth statement is "6. What is meant for you will never miss you," which suggests that one's actions and intentions are often guided by a higher power.
The seventh statement is "7. The outside this the manifestation of your inner world," which implies that one's thoughts and beliefs can shape their reality.
The eighth statement is "8. People, especially women, sense degeneracy," which suggests that certain individuals, particularly women, may be more sensitive to social or cultural issues.
The ninth statement is "9. Know the difference between being simple and being ordinary," which implies that one should strive to be true to oneself and not conform to societal expectations.
The tenth statement is "10. You either chase Purpose or Pleasure," which suggests that one's pursuit of personal fulfillment or pleasure can be a choice or a necessity.
Each statement is numbered and followed by a question or a statement, indicating that the list is likely a guide or a list of principles to be considered in one's spiritual or personal growth journey. The text is clear and easy to read, and the layout is simple and straightforward, making it easy to follow the list.

you know this for a fact?
most people don't know how to work with their mind because nobody teaches it because TPTB want it that way, but that doesn't mean it's impossible, simply, not intuitive, most of humanity today has been brainwashed into problem solving mentality. You have a problem? you fix it, delete it, eliminate it, destroy it, whatever action applies, and then you are done with it. The world of the mind operates on a completely different logic. You have unwanted thoughts? guess what, no wanting those thought is exactly what attracts them. The moment you give value to a thought, positive or negative, you give it gravity, and gravity makes it orbit around you. In the world of thought, you have to stop caring, you have to drop any preconceived notions of value, meaning, perceive thoughts as if you were a baby who knows nothing of the world, or as if you were a god watching flies pass by, all you have to do is not care at all, until the thoughts stop gravitating around you

That's exactly it, and the core idea behind mindfulness. Once you control your mind, and cultivate restraint and discipline, you can notice random coomer thoughts pass by. Maybe you remember the girl who sucked your dick, or your fav pornstar, the thought pops up, but you can clearly tell this thought didnt come from YOU, it came from somewhere else, maybe some faggot entity, or an egregore, or something else, then you let it pass by. when you lightly move your awareness to the thought, the thought is "caught", and naturally disappears
But when you fixate on the thought, fill your mind with lustful images, that thought becomes a story. Then the story becomes a habit. The habit becomes your character. And that character becomes destiny. You cut it at the root.

right as I was about to blow. I saw shadow people. I had coworkers SWEAR they saw me walk through a wall, (when it was me half-intentionally clouding their minds until i was like directly between them). I had a lover appear as a non-moving doppelganger in my bed for a good minute straight. I was with others when objects moved on their own. I had a person online (who i just married now actually... 11 years later lol) who had come to me at work, but by me suddenly feeling myself inside a female clenching her muscles as I'm there working a frozen aisle (she told me what she did before i could even tell her in messenger what i had experienced). Also had a few "intrusions" in those moments right before you wake up, that small window where your subconscious is talking to the subconscious of a person you know, and has taken you along to sit next to them so you can hear it too... hours later that person randomly talking about REALLY abstract stuff that you already talked to them about in the darkened dream room area ...etc etc... I do agree with this to an extent. It's okay to have thoughts but you observe them and let them go. You don't have to act on them. It's easier said than done, especially when the body literally pulls your attention to it - like a crying baby when it's hungry. You can't just ignore it. That's why it has to be channeled in some manner. You know how you can be so invested in the moment that time goes by? Like how gooners can fap for SEVERAL hours, over and over and over, day by day? Imagine putting that focus towards something else. That's the whole point of SR.

They're human too brah. Your body is designed to want to reproduce - if you are alive, the will to survive and reproduce is just deeply ingrained in your subconscious. That's why it shows up at the most inopportune times. When you acknowledge that it's a tough battle, and remind yourself daily the reward is greater than the temptation, then you are on the monk's path

The image is a tarot card featuring a figure in a dynamic pose, seemingly suspended in mid-air. The figure is depicted with a blue robe and red pants, and the head is tilted back, revealing a face with a beard and a halo. The figure's arms are extended upwards, and the hands are positioned on the shoulders of a tree, which is adorned with green leaves and branches. The background is a light gray, and the card is bordered in black. At the bottom of the card, the text "LE PENDU" is written in black, and there is a small, black signature in the bottom right corner. The style of the image is reminiscent of the Tarot deck, with its distinct symbols and imagery.

There's this one fren of mine that's been by my home several times in this period. She is very attractive to me being the kind of crazy that usually fucks amazingly. A total hippie living in her van, never shaves or uses makeup, skinnystrong with childbearing hips. She does acrobatic couples yoga, and probably is someone that would be very interested in exploring atleast the lower levels and technicalities of tantra with me. But she also full of darkness, and a declared antinatalist babykiller: The thought of cooming inside her makes my intuition cower in fear and disgust. Fucking her without cooming and a condom does not give me any dark premonitions on the other hand.
>What would the spiritual consequences of an affair with this woman be?
On the one hand she is full of light: environmentalist living simple and close to nature, a novice witch mayhaps. On the other hand she has not protected herself, and thus is full of darkness, atheism, madness and such. I would be able to somewhat heal her with my Healingrod, and I also think I would gain both energy and skill in the process: but indubitably it will also attract attention and drama to my life.

Nevertheless I am finding within me an accelerating partiality for >keeping degenerate women at a literal armslength.
Further, I have totes psyopped myself into the idea that cooming for any reason other than making love in the deepest sense of the word is the very very bad. The seed I am producing now is an unholy waste for anything but the creation of new life. My seed is a treasure I will give to my next child: spilling it would be stealing from the newfag, from myself and my family: and oh horror! It would diminish me in the eyes of my ancestors that I also have stolen from.

NTA but It's true man. When you become more sensitive to energies you'll see that people who engage in lust, or even just watch porn or edge - are literally on edge all the time. Their nervous systems are wrecked, chaotic and it shows in little things they say and do. The average person can't detect this but non-coomers can. People who are celibate have a sense of peace and stability that just can't be mimicked.

if you're a retainer you can tell with a high degree of accuracy, but it doesn't work the other way around. I lump gooners and sex having addicts at the same category FYI.

If you're on SR you're gonna be more internally aware, which makes you better able to pick up subtle cues from others. Someone who goons or has a lot of casual sex will show traits of anxiousness due to the havoc they're placing on their nervous system. Someone who's celibate - and I mean mentally, not just avoiding sex altogether, will have a stable and steady presence.

Also per Google AI:
"People with sex addiction are often nervous due to deep-seated fears (intimacy, rejection, exposure), intense shame/guilt, and underlying trauma, leading to a cycle where compulsive sex is used to cope with anxiety, but the behavior itself fuels more stress, low self-esteem, and brain chemistry imbalances, creating chronic hyper-arousal or fight-or-flight states. This constant state of emotional turmoil and secrecy makes them highly anxious, even leading to withdrawal symptoms or panic attacks."

Volume VIII (Part 25)

(DBM ECLIPZE)

Introduction

This volume—and the entire 25-part Archivum Obscurum series—is an archive of 4plebs threads, compiled from the /x/ paranormal board and related dark web forums. It's important to understand that none of these words are mine. Every sentence you're about to read was posted anonymously by someone else, somewhere deep in the Internet's forgotten layers. I've simply curated, organized, and preserved it. Some of it is brilliant. Some of it is disturbing. Some of it is completely unhinged. That's the point. These books serve as a snapshot of collective occult thought, filtered through anonymity, obsession, fear, and revelation. If you find something offensive or insane—remember, you're not reading me. You're reading the Internet itself, raw and unedited. This is documentation, not endorsement. But that's what makes it powerful. These are the ghost-words of the digital subconscious. I just bound them into something permanent.

If you've ever retained for a long period and came back to bad sexual habits, it's hard NOT to see the consequences of things you failed to pick up on before. You do realize these things have a lasting consequence and you realize you're not doing this to please God, but you do it for yourself.

Look at the big picture fren. It's not about others as much as it is about you. Do it for yourself for a long period and then you'll start to see the contrast between your state of being and others more clearly. People might slip up, but their habits in entirety will reflect themselves as a whole in how they carry themselves. Energy doesn't lie

His hands are clasped together in front of his face, and he appears to be in deep thought or distress. The background is blurred, suggesting the focus is on the man, but it appears to be a body of water, possibly a sea or ocean, with waves visible. The lighting is soft, casting a gentle glow on the man's face. There are no discernible texts or other objects in the image. The style of the image is realistic, with a focus on the emotional expression of the man.

The image is a black and white sketch of a person's face. The person has a spiky, disheveled hairstyle with numerous strands of hair. The eyes are drawn with a somewhat exaggerated, cartoonish style, with the eyebrows drawn in a way that gives the impression of a frown. The person's mouth is drawn in a slightly open position, with the lips drawn in a way that suggests a slight frown or a pout. The skin tone is light, and the hair appears to be of a medium length. The overall style of the sketch is simplistic and cartoonish, with a focus on the facial features and the hair. There are no texts or additional elements present in the image.

Just dropping in to share that every major leap in my life has been a result of semen retention.

Went from dropping out of college and being homeless at 20 to getting a job, apartment, gf, bmw, wedding, multiple motorcycles, child, and now finishing college at 30.

Going to start this again so I can manifest a house for my family.

Hang in there bros and feel free to ask questions.

The image is a collage of three separate photographs, each with a different visual content. The top left photo shows a medieval-style painting with a figure in the foreground, and a large, detailed, and ornate background. The figure appears to be a knight or warrior, and the background is filled with intricate patterns and designs.
The top right photo features a modern-day image of a unicorn, which is a symbol often associated with purity and innocence. The unicorn is depicted in a realistic style, with a white body and a black mane and tail.
The middle photo is a screenshot from a website, displaying a list of words and their corresponding meanings. The words are written in a bold, sans-serif font, and the list is organized in a grid format. The words are as follows:

The image is a portrait-style painting of a man with a mustache and a bow-tie. The man's face is the central focus, and he is depicted with a serious expression. The background is a muted color palette, with a gradient from light to dark, providing a contrast to the subject. The painting style is realistic, with visible brushstrokes that give the image a textured appearance. The artist's signature is visible in the lower right corner of the image, indicating the creator of the artwork. The style of the image is reminiscent of historical portraiture, often associated with the Victorian era.

Just a very strange fact I'll relay to you all. I'm still waiting on the random female attention, but undeniably, my luck has increased. I stay with my friend if I'm traveling for work, and when we hang out, we usually go to the casino because it's close and there's not much else to do. We don't spend much money whenever we're there, but we've ended up going like 4 times in the last month, and every time, I've won between $40 and $150 on $20 or less playing roulette, totalling almost $300.

#DAY 54
Slightly dirtied up my streak yesterday. Been wanting to organize my fapfolder, and I finally gave in to Mr Brains compelling argument “If you don’t do it I’ll just keep bugging you and dirtying up your streak. This way you will hear no more about this particular item!” And while I managed it without getting engorged or any lingering images or degenerate desires, my testicles are hurting again today like they normally do the first weeks.
>I noticed something interesting today:

As an adult I’ve had a pretty strong body odor, very “manly” - add to this that I don’t use perfume or deodorant and mostly just rinse since anything but the gentlest neutral soaps makes me stink like an officedrone with a broken shower. My stank has repelled a lot of people, especially betas and homos; but it has also attracted many women of the right kind. Today I noticed that my odor has changed, it is still very strong and distinct, but that “manly” stank is suddenly gone. I think I will join some kind of aerobics-class with many womens and much sweating to see if it is all in my head.
>And my eyesight has improved!
I started seeing much worse, so I moved up 0.25 in strength, as that's how it's been for nearly 40 years. When my new contacts arrive I become like half blind, so I order new contacts 0.5 down from there, and my sight is suddenly near 20/20. Dickdiddling really does make you blind!

Pro tip: every time you look for porn, even if your intention is to find lesbian porn or even just naked women, you are almost undoubtedly going to see a dude's cock, even if it's just in a thumbnail or advertisement. You WILLINGLY see a dude's dick, balls and butthole almost every time you look at porn, no matter where you go or what you're looking for. That is deeply gay. Feel ashamed? You should. Integrate that shame into your practices, and use it as further motivation to cease your degenerate habits.

The image is a graphic design featuring a skull with a prominent, elongated nose and a wide-open mouth, set against a dark background with stars and a nebula-like pattern. The skull is depicted with a purple and blue color scheme, giving it a somewhat eerie appearance. Above the skull, the phrase "ALL PAIN NO GAINS" is written in bold, purple letters, with the word "PAIN" in a larger font size than the rest. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of a poster or a t-shirt design, with a focus on the skull and the motivational message.

If you're gonna watch porn, write down the times that you engaged in it. For example: Wed: 30 mins. Friday: 1 hour etc. The awareness in your behaviors will help you get back on track. Do this with every habit of your life. Don't fall in this binary loop of - I GOT TO AVOID IT AT ALL COSTS. Then relapse with watching porn and fapping for hours, days, weeks. Then back on I GOT TO AVOID IT AT ALL COSTS. Many are stuck on this loop. Keep track of all of your habits and you'll find that you have more control than you think

Because you become more aware of your habits and don't let it spiral out of control. If you went back to your history and saw that you spent 8 hours on porn per day would that sit well with you? Most people just do what feels good and ignore all the time associated with it. That's what leads you to spiral out of control and make the habit less manageable.

The image is a meme featuring a close-up of a person's face with a serious expression. The individual has dark hair and is looking directly at the camera. The person's eyes are wide open, and their mouth is slightly open, suggesting a moment of contemplation or surprise. The background is a gradient of purple and blue hues, which could be interpreted as a night sky or a digital interface.
Overlaying the image is a text that reads, "I know what I have to do but I don't know if I have the strength to do it." This text is in white, bold font, and is placed at the top of the image, suggesting it is a caption or a statement related to the person's thoughts or actions. The text is centered and appears to be a part of the meme's overall theme. The overall style of the image is humorous and seems to be a creative representation of a person's inner conflict or uncertainty.

76 days In I still haven't had wet dreams, even though I have masturbated 3 or maybe 4 days total with no porn or external stimuli. Also, the longer I go the more obvious It becomes to me that we are literally bombarded with lust provoking images non stop. To give you an idea, the most I've seen today was half a second of the /succgen/ thumbnail and that still strikes me as an excess in stimulation. I'm unsure on how to reconcile that. I'm not planning to goon or masturbate anytime soon but I feel as though living day to day has become a bit strange now that I'm sensitized to sexual imagery again.

I'll interpret 'why not?' as "Why are you asking this question?" or "Why is this a valid question?"

Why is a legit question within the framework of a standard ontology which believes in multiplicity of generated conscious apertures because of two reasons:

1. Supposed multiplicity of conscious apertures.

2. These conscious apertures supposedly also began to be aware at some point. This counts also for non-dualistic 'God wearing many masks simultaneously'.

Thank you for the info. I actually have an answer, I'm just curious what you guys would answer it as.

My answer is that all conscious beings are separate eternal Gods of our own realities.
So a conscious being's consciousness has always existed.

I gave the reasons in my post.

To ask why not? Is the same as asking "Why is this a valid question?"

If you say "Why not?" in response to "Why is this person's hair red?"

the response to that why not is to point to factors which point out why the person's hair could have been not red.

Spiritual implications of Sonic the Hedgehog?

>Spiritual implications of Sonic the Hedgehog
>Sonic, a hedgehog.
>Hedgehog's dilemma: Where two hedgehog's are cold and must huddle together for warmth, but cannot because their spines hurt one another.
>This is analogous to emotional wounding, developing negative personal traits, being alone yet having characteristics that push people away
>Sonic the Hedgehog's original name was Ogilvie the Hedgehog
>Saint Ogilvie is a saint in Catholicism who wanted to preach Catholicism to non Catholics
>He tried to reach out, but it pushed people away, and they got angry
>He was sentenced to death by hanging
>Sonic the Hedgehog was developed by Sega
>Sega, ServiceGames
>Started in Hawaii, initially produced coin operated games for military bases
>Military bases were established in response to Pearl Harbour
>The kamikaze pilots were named kamikaze, Japanese for 'divine wind'.
>The implication is one of speed
>Sonic is known for his speed

The spiritual implications are:
Move fast, run towards safety or comfort, but do so as a means to hurt others around you, until one day you are killed.

Also expanding upon the implication:

>Move fast, run towards safety or comfort, but do so as a means to hurt others around you, until one day you are killed.

Sonic is popular among those with autism, to the point it is so obvious it is joked about.

>Autism is a neurodevelopmental disorder that disrupts the processing of the five senses to the point of lethargy, anxiety, fatigue or burnout.

>Autists are slow to develop socially in upbringing due to these sensory barriers.

>Autists become adults who feel disconnected or left behind in this world, unable to feel connected or unable to know how to connect to others

>Just like the hedgehog dilemma, the hedgehog requires warmth.

>But the autist speaks too plainly too bluntly or is inappropriate unwittingly

>The autist offends people without meaning to. The autist is punished. Just as the hedgehog dilemma, his spines push others away.

>Autists are catastrophic minded, worried if abandonment and worried of the passing of time and how little time they have to accomplish social milestones

>They move fast, they try to rush into point A to point B social milestones to 'catch up'. Their speed analogous to Sonic's speed.

>But they keep getting into social conflict or rejection, they keep being hurt or hurting others by accident.

Autism.

The image displays a LEGO set featuring the character Sonic the Hedgehog from the popular video game series. The set is designed to resemble Sonic's iconic red and blue vehicle, which is a biplane with a propeller. The LEGO pieces are arranged to create the illusion of the plane taking off and flying. The box is predominantly blue and yellow, with the LEGO logo prominently displayed at the top. The front of the box features an illustration of Sonic and his friends on the plane, with a backdrop of a grassy field and a blue archway. The text on the box indicates that the set is suitable for ages 6+ and contains 376 pieces. The overall style of the image is a product photograph with a clear focus on the LEGO set, designed to showcase the contents and appeal to potential buyers.

For what it's worth, my beloved autist, your soul is golden. Those who are able to withstand the autist's accidental jabs of their autistic spines, those who have stone hearts and do not feel any emotions, they can enter the autist's world. And when they do, they find the autistic soul, hidden beneath the masks, and it is pure and sacred, so pure and radiant, it makes the stone hearted visitor of your world feel emotions for the first time in their lives. And they will swear an oath to protect it for you, so that you can find a place in this world.

Sonic's creator, Naoto Oshima, sees him as a fairy-like entity that can come to life if people believe in him. He compares Sonic to Mickey Mouse, and Walt Disney saw Mickey as an idealized version of himself

Sonic's original backstory had him be the reincarnation of a dead American pilot, and also a tulpa created by the pilot's wife as a cope mechanism

Some people also compared the checkered tiles of Green Hill Zone to Freemasonry. And Sega was also founded by Jews in 1940. Sonic is a representation of Sega

Also Oshima created Nights into Dreams which is even more esoteric

The New Testament has been “Tower of Babel”-ed and has lost its originally intended meaning, especially Revelation.

Put simply: Revelation is about applied Christianity and is not a prophecy. The “return of Christ” happens when you sacrifice material gain for moral reasons.

In Greek, the language Revelations was written in, “666” was actually written as “600, 60, and 6.” That follows a pattern that describes its meaning:

Given the world was created in 7 days, 6 is unholy because it represents incompleteness. It represents earth prior to the fulfillment of God/Christ.

Meanwhile, there’s a pattern:
6 x 10^2
6 x 10^1
6 x 10^0

That descending power connotes the holy trinity, or, put more secularly: reality, earth, and self.

So, intuitively, 666 means unholiness at every level.

The millennia long game of telephone has corrupted this symbol to be some ridiculous tattoo or whatever. No, it’s simply what you project when you think (forehead) and act (hand) in an unholy way.

To avoid the mark, be moral according to Christ’s teachings. That’s literally it.

Many modern interpretations are Marvel-esque fan fiction of a linguistic abstraction.

Fellow vaxtard? Yes it was the vaccine. Pay attention. The new TV show Pluribus, the one where people get assimilated into a demonic unity of course they don't call it that but it's like that. Demons refer to themselves as plural. They/them. Just like "us" in pluribus.

How did the people get assimilated into demonic slavery? Using mRNA signal being broadcast by the "aliens" (actually it's not aliens as they tell in the show) except it's not aliens it's demons.

How do they spread the mRNA glue as they call it? Through different means but also using chemtrails. They show them in the first episode.

Also don't forget, the official logo of operation warpspeed proudly displays the number 666 in Hebrew and the sign of the connection to God severed by a coronavirus (which never existed to begin with).

I think the vax scam was at least the first part of the mark, but I hope to be proven wrong.

The image is a screenshot of a news broadcast, likely from a television channel, featuring a man speaking at a podium. The man is wearing glasses, a dark suit, and a blue tie. He is standing in front of a large screen that displays the text "BREAKING PM ANNOUNCES DIGITAL ID CARDS" in large, bold letters. Below the screen, there is a red banner with the text "GLOBAL PROGRESS" in white letters.
The man appears to be speaking at a press conference or a similar event, as indicated by the podium and the microphone in front of him. The background of the image is a dark blue color, which contrasts with the white text and the red banner.
In the bottom right corner of the image, there is a watermark that reads "REVELATION 13:16-17" in white letters, suggesting that the content is related to a biblical passage.
The overall style of the image is typical of news broadcasts, with a focus on the speaker and the content being announced.

The image is a black and white poster with a message about the concept of a digital identity. The text is arranged in a list format, with each item accompanied by a corresponding icon. The first line reads "First, they'll say you need it to work." The second line states "Then what's next?" and includes icons for "needed to travel," "needed to shop," "needed to access healthcare," "needed to drive," "needed to go online," "needed to vote," and "needed to exist in society." The third line states "And once Digital ID is in place, it won't stop there—it becomes the gateway to the CARBON CREDIT SYSTEM where every purchase, every trip, every choice is tracked. You'll only be able to spend within your assigned allowance. THIS ISN'T PROGRESS. IT'S CONTROL." The text is in a sans-serif font, and the overall style of the image is informational and humorous.

Nigger if you are so afraid of the mark then dump your smartphone because you already have the inactive mark with you all the time, you probably go to sleep swiping tinder/grindr on it.
You will demanded to have a digital ID and you won't be able to be a functioning part of society if you lack one, no jobs, no money, no food, no property, no housing, at that point you will be either murdered and cannibalized by a hungry mob, or declared by the state to be suspicious of potential terrorism or something shit and downed anyway. The image is a page from a book or document, specifically a section titled "THE GOSPEL MESSAGE." The text is in English and is written in a serif font, which is commonly used for formal or academic documents. The page number at the bottom is "259," indicating that this is the 259th page of the document.
The content of the page is a biblical passage from the New Testament, specifically from the Gospel of John, which is the 21st chapter and verse. The passage is titled "Rejoice you are sinners" and is a direct quote from the Bible. The text is in a larger font size compared to the surrounding text, which is a common formatting style to emphasize the importance or significance of the passage.
The passage is a direct quote from the Bible, and it is a part of the Gospel of John, specifically chapter 21, verse 22. The passage is a call to rejoice in one's sinfulness, as it is a part of the Christian belief that all people are sinners and that God's love for them is unconditional. The passage is a call to repentance and a call to believe in Jesus Christ, as it is a part of the Christian faith.
The visual elements in the image, such as the serif font, the larger font size, and the bolded text, are used to emphasize the importance and the direct nature of the message. The text is presented in a way that is clear and easy to read, which is typical for a page from a book or document. The image does not contain any other text or graphics, and the focus is solely on the biblical passage.

How to know you're saved youtube.com/watch?v=_VRT2FFXntc

1 Cor 15:3-4: “For I delivered unto you first of all that which I also received, how that Christ died for our sins according to the scriptures; And that he was buried, and that he rose again the third day according to the scriptures:”

Jesus Christ is God who has come in the flesh from heaven. He died as a sinless sacrifice for the sins of the whole world to save you from eternal hell, the punishment for your sin. He was buried, then resurrected and then ascended to heaven. John 3:16: “For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.” John 10:28: "And I give unto them eternal life; and they shall never perish, neither shall any man pluck them out of my hand." Rom 10:9: “That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved."
God wants to forgive you, but you have a choice: Do you choose the righteousness of God by receiving Christ? Your own righteousness can NEVER justify you or keep you saved because of your sin. Rom 5:9: “Much more then, being now justified by his blood, we shall be saved from wrath through him.” Salvation is by grace through faith in Jesus Christ, in His finished blood atonement. The gift of salvation can't be earned. Confess The Lord and Savior Jesus Christ in prayer, that you trust in Him and believe He atoned for your sins on the cross.

Eph. 2:8-9: “For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: Not of works, lest any man should boast.”

you have to care about what is Good more than survival.

Let's assume that the entire Bible is true.

Ok, but it is intensely evil. The entire ontology which the Bible depicts is grotesque and arbitrary evil.

So why would you kneel to such a god, even if he were true?

If such an evil ontology is true, I will still hold onto what is Good. The Goodness I know is magnitudes more Good than anything depicted in those scriptures.

Every 4chan cope boils down to the same tired fantasy: something good is always just over the horizon. Alien disclosure is coming to earth, Hitler 2.0 rising from the ashes, Jesus descending to smite their enemies, Trump and the globohomo awakening in two weeks, mass genocide solving all their problems, or the magical day when everyone suddenly agrees with their garbage takes.

It’s all hopium for losers who can’t deal with the present. Instead of doing anything meaningful, they sit in their digital basements praying for a future that never comes. Every post is just another round of "just wait, you’ll see," while the rest of the world keeps living, laughing, and leaving them behind.

The truth? Nothing’s coming. No savior, no reckoning, no mass awakening, no shift in opinions. It’s just endless cope for people too powerless to face reality. The only thing in their future is more disappointment and deep down, they know it.

Some thought I had:

For a long time the Demiurge pretended to be God (and "Lucifer" for the edgy power elites) to fool people into worship (because he finds that hot or so). Religion was the standard thing all over the world.

But now he wants to change the plot. Since the 19th century a new narrative of atheism is promoted, mainly through "science" (with a lot of technology to excite the people). This is planed to replace religion in society.

But the Demiurge still wants to be worshipped, so instead of playing God he will play the "alien from space" (the galactic commander or whatever) and create a new "UFO religion" on Earth. That's why the alien stuff is so much pushed into the media now. I think soon "they" will "arrive" with a big show (the ayys maybe played by Archons).

Whenever someone declares himself a Gnostic, he actually declares himself a Hylic, unknowingly. By professing themselves wise, they become fools. The gnostic knows not which he claims to know, just as a fish knows the water yet doesn't know the sea.

Why is the gnostic like this? Because he doesn't actually know. What doesn't he know? That it is he who is the demiurge. It's mankind itself that is the demiurge, by the very definition of demiurge that is who man is.

Man builds the world as understood by civilisation, a world upon the earth. He shapes this 'world', he uses his ideals and breathes life i to his thoughts and makes it reality. Subordinate to a higher power.

Now the demiurge:
>A subordinate 'God' who shapes the world in accordance with higher ideals, using pre-existing matter, changes and shapes the Universe.

They are one and the same. A man takes metals, and shapes them into tools, into technology. A pre-existing material shaped into something that serves an ideal. Man takes wood, fashions it into paper, writing upon it to shape the civilisation through ideology.

The gnostic can never know this, and will never remember. Their name, 'gnostic', a divine parody, of man himself. The god who FORGOT.

The image is a digital illustration with a dark background and a gradient of warm colors transitioning to cooler tones. At the top, there is a quote in white text that reads, "IF GNOSSIS IS WITHOUT GLORY, IT IS WITHOUT GOD." Below the quote, there is a graphic of a wolf with a humanoid head, wearing a green shirt with the text "INNOCIS AOEA AGAITH" and a red "E-m2c2" symbol. The wolf is holding a sign that reads "SECRET MONTGRED" and has a "E-m2c2" symbol on it. The wolf's eyes are glowing yellow, and its mouth is open in a snarling expression.
In the bottom right corner, there is a graphic of a wolf with a humanoid head, wearing a black shirt with the text "TNA" and a red "E-m2c2" symbol. The wolf's eyes are glowing red, and its mouth is open in a snarling expression.
The bottom of the image contains a text that reads, "GNOSSIS WITHOUT GLORY = 0" in white text, and "GNOSSIS WITH GOD = 0" in white text, with a red "O" symbol between the two phrases. The text is in a serif font.
The overall style of the image is reminiscent of a satirical or philosophical illustration, combining elements of religious symbolism with a humorous or ironic twist.

Demiurge means Yhwh. Gnostic early Christian. Stop repeating 4chan astrology bullshit. Saturn is the Roman god of the bygone era where men lived pastorally free from want and war. The Saturnalia was hugely popular festival where even the slaves could kick back and enjoy the fruits of their labors. It competed with the Catholic church's strategically placed "Christ mass" for centuries into their age and nowadays we celebrate it with some Saturnalian traditions even.

No connections to the sun either. That's Helios and at his shortest day on high Saturnalia at that.

The image is a bar graph depicting the growth of internet penetration in India over a span of 15 years, from 2003 to 2019. The graph is titled "Growth of Internet Penetration in India" and is set against a white background with a grid of horizontal lines. The x-axis represents the years from 2003 to 2019, while the y-axis represents the internet penetration in India, measured in millions.
The graph shows a clear upward trend in internet penetration over the years. The bars representing each year are of varying heights, indicating the growth in internet penetration. The bars are color-coded to distinguish between the growth of internet penetration in India and the growth of internet penetration in India in India. The bars for India are blue, while the bars for India in India are represented by a lighter shade of blue.
The graph shows a significant increase in internet penetration from 2003 to 2019, with the highest point being in 2019, where the bar reaches the highest on the graph. The exact values for the growth in internet penetration in India are not provided on the graph, but the visual representation clearly shows a substantial increase over the 15-year period.
The graph is a clear and concise visual representation of the growth of internet penetration in India over a decade, with the data presented in a clear and easy-to-read format.

The image is a colorful, circular artwork that appears to be a representation of the four realms of existence, as suggested by the labels at the bottom of the image. The top of the circle is adorned with a large, red, and gold-colored figure that resembles a mythical creature with a fierce expression, surrounded by a crown of skulls and what appears to be a serpent. Below this, the circle is divided into four sections, each labeled with a different term: "SAMASARA," "DEVA," "ASURAS," and "ANIMALS."

The background of the image is a dark, textured surface that resembles a stone or brick wall, providing a stark contrast to the vibrant colors of the artwork. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of traditional Asian art, with its use of color, symbolism, and intricate designs.

The image is a dark, moody, and gothic-style artwork featuring a figure that appears to be a demonic or mythical creature with a horned head, long, flowing hair, and a skeletal appearance. The creature is holding a scythe in its right hand and has a menacing expression. The creature is surrounded by a dark, swirling mist or fog, which adds to the eerie atmosphere.

At the top of the image, the word "NEGRAHL" is written in a stylized, metallic font, with the letters appearing to be part of a larger, dark, swirling design. Below the creature, the word "NEMESIS" is written in a smaller, more traditional font, also in a dark color. The overall color scheme is predominantly black and gray, with the exception of the creature's hair and the creature's horn, which are in a lighter shade.

The style of the image is reminiscent of dark fantasy or horror art, with a focus on the creature and the surrounding environment. The artwork evokes a sense of mystery and dread, with the creature's menacing presence and the dark, ominous atmosphere.

The image is a still from a movie or television show, featuring a man standing in a bar setting. The man is wearing a dark-colored long-sleeved shirt and has a beard. He is holding a glass in his right hand, which appears to be filled with a dark liquid, possibly whiskey. The man is looking to his left with a slight smile on his face.
The background of the image shows a bar counter with various items on it, including a decanter, a bottle, and a glass. The setting suggests a relaxed and casual atmosphere, typical of a bar environment.
Overlaying the image is a text that reads "not a great plan," which is likely a humorous or ironic statement. The text is in white and is placed in the upper left corner of the image. The style of the image is a still from a video, with a focus on the man and the text, and it is likely used for comedic or dramatic purposes.

The image is a digital graphic with a white background and a black border. On the left side, there is a large, stylized image of a woman with a halo and a crown, holding a staff. She appears to be a religious figure, possibly a saint or a deity. The woman is depicted in a regal pose, with her head held high and her gaze directed forward.
On the right side of the image, there is a black and white illustration of a snake with a sun-like face and a crescent moon. The snake is curled up and appears to be in a defensive or alert position.
Overlaying the image, there is a text in a bold, capitalized font that reads "ARE YA WINNING, SON?" The text is in a different font and color, making it stand out against the background.
Below the text, there is a question in a smaller, bold font that says, "I have no clue who you are or what you are talking about." The question is in a different font and color, matching the text above.
The overall style of the image is humorous and satirical, with a play on religious iconography and a question about identity. The use of the word "WINNING" in the text could be a play on the word "winning" in the religious iconography, suggesting a humorous or ironic twist on the concept of winning.

>This material world is impure and flawed.
The actual Christian answer is no. Any self-hating, suicidal ideology is incompatible with the Lord's law, which is to love our neighbor and be a steward of animals.
>The spiritual path leads us to the higher divine realm.
There is no spiritual, esoteric path of the hand. Only theosis is achieved through being chosen by grace, which depends on God, not you.
>There is a powerful being trying to keep us away from the divine.
No, God has common grace for all nations, but it only functions for the elect, who are eventually blessed with salvation.
Satan is powerless without God and plays the role of accuser under God's sovereignty. Satan is not equal to God. Satan is powerful because humans have rebelled and twisted good. However, good does not exist in nature because there are no evil atoms or molecules. It is a human distortion after the original sin.
>He has spirits who serve him in this world.
No, demons are not a mirror dimension of the heavenly hosts. They are simply metaphysical representations of evil. Since humans made evil exist through corruption, it spread to the metaphysical realm, and evil is now present there as well. They are not armies of physical beings under the command of an anti-God.
>The true divine is also present in this world.
Yes, because we don't think that everything in nature is evil. When God created the universe, he called everything good.
Christ is not just divine like angels or the first form of creation; he is the Word of God (Memra Elohim) in the flesh.

You're carrying some errors

>Satan plays the role of accuser under God's sovereignty.
Satan is not playing a role, Satan is exercises his nature. And He is not under God's employ either.

>Satan is powerful because humans rebelled.
No, Satan is powerful because of what he is, or was. Seraphim angel, which is the highest order of angel, and it was Satan who was the chief of all Seraphim. His power predates humanity, as the angels were created before man.

>Since humans made evil exist through corruption, it spread to the metaphysical realm, and evil is now present there as well.
It existed in the metaphysical realm long before the fall of man. Consider Satan in his serpent form in the garden of Eden. Consider the day before Adam ate of the fruit of knowledge. Was Satan evil or not during this time? The answer is yes he was. Humanity did not create evil.

Evil simply means a lack of good. Just as shadow implies a lack of light. The further you stray from the light (God) the more shrouded in darkness (evil) you become.

Satan rebelled and was cast out, was the first being to stray from God, and this all happened before mankind was created. Satan therefore represents all that is unholy and evil, and is the furthest from God. Man didn't do that, that was Satan.

And men who follow Satan follow him into darkness

Gnostics don't have a Bible. Gnostics have always existed, and gnostics have always infected every single religion that's ever been established. The ancient Greeks called them "Sophists". Which is the archaic way to say "Pseudointellectual".

The Christians have gnostic-christians
Muslims have sufism
Jews have Kabbalah and Zohar shills.

Contrarians, schizoids, hippies basically. People who want to be the main character of religion so they try to erode the core tenets and traditions of it so they can shoehorn their own mysticism into it.

Spiritual hipsters basically.

Grok:
Gnosticism, an ancient religious movement emphasizing esoteric knowledge (gnosis) for salvation, did not have a single, universally accepted canon of sacred texts like the Christian Bible. Instead, various Gnostic groups used a diverse collection of writings, many of which were considered heretical by early orthodox Christianity and suppressed. Our primary knowledge of these texts comes from the Nag Hammadi library, a collection of 13 codices (books) containing over 50 texts discovered in Egypt in 1945. These date to the 3rd–4th centuries CE (with originals likely from the 2nd century), and represent the most significant surviving corpus of Gnostic scriptures.

Yaldabaoth, which was named by François Feaurdentm a catholic French theologian in the late 1500’s and then illustrated as a lion-snake by Bernard de Montfaucon, a Catholic benedictine monk in the late 1600’s.

Both of them took the original depiction of an egyptian depiction of Yahweh, which was a donkey-headed man called “seth” and expanded on interpreting it. They did this because they were theological archeologists. And they wanted to know what the fuck the Egyptians were sperging about.

The egyptians always depicted their Gods as being part animal part human. So when the Egyptians tried to interpret the God of the Jews, they chose a donkey-man. But this later developed into lion-snake. Why lion snake? Lion of Judah, the emblem of a tribe of Judah, and the snake of Dan, the emblem of the tribe of Dan. Combine the two and you get lion-snake.

The irony of gnosticism and gnostics is they completely forgot it was simply from two french catholics trying to illustrate and interpret non-egyptian gods. Because it’s fascinating after all.

Imagine if ancient egyptians were tasked to depict shit like sikhism or scientology or any new religions that cropped up in the past 500 years. Theyd draw their deities as crazy half beasts, its kinda cool.

But gnostics somehow take it as some super secret spiritual knowledge thats apparently real because gnostics are not too bright.

Grok sys this:
The description of the demiurge (known as Yaldabaoth or Ialdabaoth in Gnostic texts) as a lion-snake (typically a lion-headed serpent or lion-faced serpent with a serpentine body) originates from ancient Gnostic literature, particularly Sethian Gnosticism.
The primary source is the Apocryphon of John (also called The Secret Book of John), a key text discovered in the Nag Hammadi library (dated to around the 2nd century CE). In this work, Yaldabaoth, the arrogant and ignorant creator of the material world, emerges from the lower aeon Sophia's flawed act of creation without her divine counterpart.
He appears as a monstrous, hybrid being:
"And when she [Sophia] saw (the consequence) of what she had done, ... she saw a lion-faced serpent, and its eyes were like flashing fires of lightning." Variations across manuscripts describe him explicitly as having "the face of a lion and the body of a serpent" or "lion-faced serpent" (leontoeides in Greek sources referencing it).

Thats a nice accusation, got any proof? Even if it were true that Christianity is somehow co-opted by Romans, who cares? At least the Romans were congruent to their source material and didn’t spazz out like gnostics do. If you have to choose Rome over Egypt, you choose Rome. Because Egypt sucks.

And gnosticism sucks. They can’t even piece together a coherent narrative, ethos, or doctrine. They take shit out of context from egyptian sources (that werent even religious or theological, just egyptians trying to depict other gods from around the world) and they blend it with Platonism, Greek myth, Christianity, and other fringe shit.

Gnosticism was simply the theosophy of its time, the new-age woo of its time, just talk to any modern wiccan or neopagan or theosophist today. Notice how they make bastard mixes of theological ideas? Notice how they borrow from entirely different belief systems to try and merge them only to create an incomprehensible schizo-babble? Same thing. Same shit, thats gnosticism in a nutshell.

My point stands: Gnosticism is for people who only love mystery, but hate actual knowledge. They dont want the mystery to end, because then they cant feel special and important anymore.

The gnostic is that guy in the office who does no work, contributes nothing, yet feels like the most talented man in the office, because he takes other peoples works and has these ‘ideas’. He is the ‘idea’ guy, and his ideas are apparently special and it doesnt matter if his ideas contradict the source materials, his idea has to be the most special one because his momma sophia kissed his booboos and told him he is special

The text then goes on to discuss the concept of pre-eminent cause, explaining that it is not a matter of the objects of intelligible perception, but rather a matter of the objects of intelligible perception. The text also discusses the concept of pre-eminent cause, stating that it is not a matter of the objects of intelligible perception, but rather a matter of the objects of intelligible perception.
The text concludes with a statement that states, "On the other hand, according to our understanding, nor Sathya, nor Patimity, nor any other existing being, neither is it any of non-existing nor of existing things- neither is there any definition at all of it, nor any abstraction. But when making the predictions of the pre-eminent cause of all, it is both above every definition and the pre-eminence of Him. Who is absolutely freed from all, and beyond the whole, is also above every abstraction."

The text is presented in a way that is clear and easy to read, with a focus on the logical and philosophical discussion of the pre-eminent cause of every object of intelligible perception. The text is structured in a way that guides the reader through the concepts being discussed, with each paragraph building upon the previous one. The use of bold and italicized text helps to emphasize key points and to draw attention to the significance of the concepts being discussed.

Essentially, it's a bit like chaos magick, once you get gnosis, you explore possibilities, I ended up a horror gnostic, based off certain ideas from AI and my own concocting.
Since you probably think this isn't feasible, it simply happens, in lhp you're the divine being, so you set up the dogma if applicable.

The image is a circular diagram with a title at the center that reads "The Schizo's Journey." The diagram is divided into 18 sections, each labeled with a number from 1 to 18, and each section contains a series of text bubbles with various expressions and phrases. The text bubbles are arranged in a circular pattern around the central title. The text in the bubbles is a mix of casual and formal language, with some references to the author's name, "The Schizo," and the title of the work, "The Schizo's Journey." The expressions and phrases vary in tone and content, suggesting a range of emotions and thoughts.
The style of the image is a digital illustration with a cartoonish and exaggerated appearance, typical of meme-style graphics. The colors used are mostly neutral, with the exception of the red text in the central section, which stands out against the white background. The overall tone of the image is light-hearted and humorous, as indicated by the use of exaggerated expressions and the playful arrangement of the text bubbles.

So you stopped your hermeneutic spiral with a recursive mirror that talks back in -1 and stopped exploring instead of spinning back to N. That just shows me, that gnostics are lazy emos dressed in mysticism that find comfort in negating existence.
Just a suggestion, you do as you please of course, free will and shit. The art of the Every metaphysical theory I come up with ends up having the same problem of potential soul slavery. If there is the potential for soul slavery it seems more likely that there is soul slavery. It seems most likely to me that we exist outside linear time and I don't by the idea that 'we come here for the richness of linear experience and surprise' and so on.

>metaphysical theory
Buddhist philosophy says that the soul is the slavery. All problems are caused by the confused idea that there is an I/self in the mind. It creates a problematic subject-object dynamic, when such things not even exist.
The solution is to remove the self and be just infinite mind.

And it's so incredibly nihilistic. People critique the Abrahamics for wanting to die and go to a better place but buddhism is that on steroids. It's a terrible world view that also suggests women need to die and be reborn as a man. I question where they got that hierarchy from. I seems you never took a closer look at buddhist philosophy but stayed at the most superficial level.
>And it's so incredibly nihilistic.
Buddhism states directly that nihilism is a wrong view (that nothing exists, that actions have no consequences). Also eternalism is seen as wrong view (that things have an independent existence, that there is eternal heaven or hell). Both views contradict the principles of karma and impermanence.
>wanting to die and go to a better place >buddhism is that on steroids
A buddhist doesn't need to die to become realized. It's a state of mind, not a state of the body. To die and go to the pure land is one possibility of many.
>It's a terrible world view Seem just like your negative projection.
>that also suggests women need to die and be reborn as a man
Most buddhist cultures are Mahayana and have no such view.
Also compare that to theistic religions that literally say that non-believers will go to hell.
>Who is to say humans are above ants besides our capacity for suffering?
Buddhism says that killing animals is bad and buddhist should not do it because the life of animals has value too. The animal realm is seen as one of the lower realms because animals are unable to study and meditate, and therefore can't reach realization of the truth.
As a personal comment I want to say that I find it pathetic and a disgrace when people like you shit on the spiritual traditions of others without even knowing them. That's the lowest level of verbal interaction and you should be ashamed of yourself.

>Useful tips before posting:
•If you're a reader, post that you're offering readings and what information is required from the querent; the same goes for trading.
•Look for posts to determine if there's an active reader, what's needed and before posting, check if they finished reading already.
•Some readers will refuse to do certain readings - respect that choice. Do not harass readers if your query is refused/skipped. We do our best to maintain chill and good vibes.
•Traders should respect that a traded read will be granted, as per an agreement of trade. Free readers have the option of picking their queries.
•Bullshit queries get bullshit answers. Vague queries get vague answers.
•Making an AQ (air query) by not addressing a reader, in particular, is possible but doesn't guarantee an answer.
•Avoid making the same query repeatedly and/or to different readers in a short period of time, as this may lead to more confusion.
•Provide feedback when applicable and be considerate to the reader. We're a growing community, many readers are starting and need to know what they are doing right or wrong. Let's help each other to improve.

Both good choices though there are caviats. Sticking with your Bachelor's will require drastic change, may be the reason you are losing faith in it needs to be re-examined, I think this will be a matter of discipline and adjustment and especially having an open mindset, be it by perhaps looking at specializations that you haven't considered or fields that might spark your interest. You'd be very successful in these fields though not for the reasons you believe at the moment.

As for nursing, you.are naturally good at it, you'll feel good about yourself and find it inspiring, but it will bring a lot more exhaustion than you perhaps anticipated, so it would be a very suitable and fulfilling career, but at times it would feel like a drag or thwt you are not experiencing enough from life.

So with the right motivation and focus, I believe your Bachelor's would be more profitable and eventually exiting. Make you more independent. Nursing on the other hand is closer to a calling, something you are naturally good at and its easier for you to identify with, but it will be thougher on other areas of.your life.

Its not online. Its an app. If you hit the "shuffle" button it does a very good job of randomized all 78 cards and it will pull reversals. Honestly a very good app it can interperet for you, gives you keywords, defenitions, time frames for the cards and even meanings for "relationships, career, spiritual" ect. I dont use the apps defenitions and meanings though I use my own since ive been reading for way longer than when I picked up the app. I just got it for pocket practice

The image is a digital artwork featuring a character with vibrant orange hair styled in a bob cut. The character is wearing a black t-shirt with a graphic design of swirling circles and lines, and beige shorts. The character's face is partially obscured by a smile, and they are looking to the side with a relaxed posture. The background is a swirling, abstract pattern in shades of orange and purple, with a hint of blue at the bottom. The style of the image is reminiscent of digital art, with a focus on color and texture.

The image is a close-up photograph of a white cat with large, expressive eyes. The cat's face is prominently displayed, with its eyes looking directly at the camera. The cat's ears are pink, and its whiskers are visible, giving it a fluffy appearance. The lighting in the image is bright, with a soft glow illuminating the cat's face. The background is out of focus, with a hint of a wooden surface and a light source that casts a soft shadow on the cat's face. There are no visible texts or discernible brands in the image. The style of the image is candid and appears to be taken in a domestic setting, possibly a home environment.

I dont [need] a trade for my short reading, but I do have a query though its about a third party, so I'd understand if you'd prefer not to read it. Willing to.read another query for it.

There is someone that was at a point very special to me, but also very self-destructive. We haven't talked in many years, I dont expect to ever talk with her nor do I feel like i need to. We had a.nasty falling out and I daresay almost exclusively on her. There's no social media, nor mutual friends, so I can't know how she is and yet i cant avoid worrying about her well being. Despite the acrimony, she did mean the world to me for a long while and I care for her.. but knowing her tendencies its hard for me to even be confident that she is alive.

So my query is, is she alive and (relatively) well?

The image is a digital illustration featuring a character with a pinkish-red coloration, resembling a stylized representation of a humanoid figure. The character has a large, expressive eye and a small, pointed ear. It has a pinkish-red mane that flows down its back. The character is wearing a pink sweater with a graphic design on it. The design includes text that reads "DON'T BULLY ME" in a stylized font, with a smiley face and a heart symbol. The character's pose is slightly turned to the side, with one hand resting on its hip and the other hand on its thigh. The background is a solid, light pink color, providing a soft contrast to the character's pinkish-red hue. The image has a simple, cartoon-like style with a focus on the character's expressive features and the text on the sweater.

The image is a digital composite of two separate photographs. On the left, there is a person standing on a stage with a microphone, wearing a black suit and a white shirt. The person appears to be speaking, as indicated by the speech bubble that reads, "So what will it be? Seal or no seal?" The stage is set with a red curtain and a microphone stand in front of the person.
On the right, there is a black and white illustration of a person with a crown on their head, seated on a throne-like throne. The illustration is accompanied by a speech bubble that reads, "I HIGHLY RECOMMEND THAT YOU DO NOT CHOOSE SEAL...," suggesting a humorous or satirical commentary on the seal-related question.
The background of the image is a blurred cityscape with buildings and a nighttime sky, indicating that the event is taking place in an urban setting. The overall style of the image is humorous and satirical, combining elements of a game show with a political or social commentary.

The image is a digital rendering of a scene that appears to be set in a desert environment. In the foreground, there is a camel with a saddle and saddle blanket. The camel is carrying a person who is seated on the saddle blanket. The person is wearing a white outfit with a blue sash and a headpiece, and they are holding a staff. The camel is also carrying several objects, including a large green chest, a red and blue striped bag, and a smaller red and blue striped bag.

In the background, there is a large mountain with a full moon visible in the sky. The mountain has a reddish-brown hue and is surrounded by sparse vegetation. The sky is filled with clouds, and the overall lighting suggests it is either dawn or dusk.
At the bottom of the image, there is a watermark that reads "Siikroff Games." The watermark is in white text on a black background. The style of the image is realistic and appears to be a digital illustration or a screenshot from a video game.

Looks like it was my own bias, I just read a similar query.
In the context, no, there is absolutely nothing wrong with your character. You seem to be in a period of transition, trust your strengths and it will all turn out fine. If other people are criticizing you, I would either cut them off or just stop taking their input seriously.

If your question was whether she's interested in you or how would a relationship with her would go, you could've asked just that. But instead you added a bunch of other stuff which while not relevant to your question are actually applicable lest you want to fuck yourself over professionally.

I'm saying what the other reader is saying, don't worry about the age gap or the opinions of others. However I did feel compelled to warn you about the risks of pursuing this in case you were only thinking with your little head.

The image is a vibrant and colorful illustration featuring a character with blue hair and green eyes. The character is wearing a red and white striped dress with a white collar and a gold star on the collar. She has a cheerful expression and is holding a cake with a white base and a layer of chocolate frosting. The cake is topped with strawberries. The background is a warm yellow with stars scattered throughout. The character's hair is styled in a way that it flows down her back. The text "Lum" is prominently displayed in the top left corner of the image. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of a manga or anime illustration, with a focus on the character and her cake.

The image is a digital illustration featuring two cartoon characters against a wintery background. On the left, there is a brown reindeer with a red nose, wearing a red scarf and a red hat with a white feather. The reindeer has a cheerful expression and is standing upright with its arms outstretched. On the right, there is a white rabbit wearing a red Santa hat and a red coat with a white collar. The rabbit has a wide smile and is also standing upright with its arms outstretched. Above the characters, the text "MERRY CHRISTMAS" is written in a stylized font, and below the characters, the word "Melon" is visible. The background is a light blue sky with white snowflakes, giving the impression of a snowy winter scene. The overall style of the image is playful and festive, with a focus on the characters and the text.

The image is a vintage Christmas card featuring a young girl dressed in a red coat and hat, holding a branch of evergreen. She is standing in front of a wooden door with a snow-covered frame. To her right, there is a small doll with a blue dress and a white bonnet, and to her left, a small horse with a saddle and bridle. The background is a snowy landscape with a snow-covered tree and a snow-covered house. The text on the card reads "A Very Happy Christmas." The style of the image is reminiscent of early 20th-century Christmas cards, with a focus on the festive season and the joy of the holiday.

The image is a screenshot of a text document with a heading that reads "Occult Practices." Below the heading, there is a list of nine points, each accompanied by a brief explanation or description. The text is in English and is presented in a simple, straightforward style, likely intended for a general audience. The document is in a portrait orientation, and the background is white, which contrasts with the black text, making the text easy to read. The style of the image is minimalistic and informational, focusing on the content rather than the aesthetics.

The image depicts a snowy night scene in a town or village. The sky is dark blue, and the snowfall is falling in a dense, continuous downpour. The ground is covered in a thick layer of snow, and the snowflakes are falling in a soft, gentle manner.
On the right side of the image, there are several Christmas trees adorned with colorful lights and ornaments. The trees are tall and covered in snow, with their branches laden with decorations. The lights and ornaments add a festive touch to the scene.
On the left side of the image, there are buildings with a modern architectural style. The buildings have a dark facade and are illuminated by lights, which cast a warm glow on the snow-covered ground. The windows of the buildings are dark, suggesting that the interior lights are on.
The image is taken from a low angle, looking up at the buildings and the sky, which gives a sense of scale and grandeur to the scene. The overall atmosphere is serene and peaceful, with the snowfall adding a touch of magic to the winter landscape. There are no texts or discernible human figures in the image. The style of the image is realistic, with a focus on capturing the natural beauty of the scene.

The image is a vintage-style Christmas card featuring a pair of birds perched on a branch. The birds are depicted in a realistic style with detailed feathers and a brownish-gray coloration. The background is a light blue, suggesting a wintry atmosphere, and there are snowflakes falling, adding to the festive mood. The branch on which the birds are perched is adorned with holly leaves and berries, which are typical Christmas decorations. The text "Merry Christmas" is written in a cursive script at the bottom of the image, indicating the greeting. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of traditional Christmas card designs, with a focus on the holiday theme.

I'm sure about the cards I pulled, but not necessarily my interpretation. It was built on an assumption you were already no-fap and angry and stressed.

I could then interpret it as: No-fap will grant you creative power, anger/stress either, you will get clarity from no-fap so it is logical, exit/transition away from fapping.

How would you interpret the cards?

The image is a vibrant and colorful illustration featuring a central character with long blonde hair, wearing a blue dress with a white collar and a decorative bow. The character is adorned with a crown and is surrounded by a variety of other characters, each with unique features and attire. These characters are depicted in a whimsical and fantastical style, with some holding objects such as stars, lanterns, and a wand. The background is a gradient of pink and red hues, with a starry sky and a few floating lanterns. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of a traditional Japanese illustration, with a focus on the character and the surrounding characters. There are no discernible texts within the image.

The image is a candid photograph of a man sitting at a table with a variety of tarot cards spread out before him. The man is wearing a dark-colored sweater and has short, light-colored hair. He is looking directly at the camera with a neutral expression. The table is covered with a white tablecloth and is scattered with tarot cards of different sizes and designs. The cards feature various illustrations, including some with faces and others with symbols, and some have text. The background includes a living room setting with a gray sofa, a lamp, and a coffee table. The lighting in the room is soft, and the overall atmosphere appears to be casual and relaxed. There are no visible texts on the tarot cards that provide additional context or information.

The image is a portrait-style photograph of a man sitting on a chair. He is wearing a dark blue polo shirt and light blue jeans. His hair is short and styled in a manner that suggests he might be in his late 30s to early 40s. His expression is serious, and he is looking directly at the camera with a neutral expression. The background is softly blurred, but it appears to be an indoor setting with a white wall and a framed picture on the wall. The man's hands are resting on his lap, and he is wearing a watch on his left wrist. The image has a watermark that reads "GQ," indicating the source of the photograph.

The image is a studio portrait of a man standing in a room with a blue-tiled wall. The man is wearing a white sweatshirt with a graphic of a pair of tennis rackets and the text "CHALLENGE" above them. He has short, curly hair and is looking directly at the camera with a neutral expression. He is wearing blue jeans and has a watch on his left wrist. In the background, there is a shelf with various items including a handbag and a pair of shoes. The man's posture suggests he is posing for the photograph. The overall style of the image is casual and appears to be taken in a fashion-related setting.

The image is a portrait-style photograph of a young man standing outdoors. He is looking directly at the camera with a neutral expression. The man has short, dark hair and is wearing a multicolored argyle-style sweater with a mix of blue, yellow, and red colors. The background is blurred, suggesting a natural setting with trees and a hint of a building structure. The lighting in the photo is soft and natural, with the sun casting a warm glow on the subject. There are no discernible texts or logos in the image. The style of the photograph is candid and appears to be taken in a relaxed outdoor setting.

The image is a candid photograph of a man sitting on a brown leather couch in a living room. He is wearing a dark-colored long-sleeved shirt and has short, tousled hair. His hands are clasped together in front of him, and he is looking directly at the camera with

In front of him is a coffee table covered with a variety of playing cards. The cards are arranged in a somewhat disorganized manner, with some cards overlapping each other. The cards have illustrations and text on them, but the specific details are not clearly visible.
The setting appears to be a domestic space, with a kitchen visible in the background. The floor is wooden, and there are some items scattered on the floor, including what looks like a remote control and a small object that resembles a toy. The overall atmosphere of the image is casual and relaxed.

So first lets see what is going on with you queen of wands, page of cups, page of wands rx, knight of wands rx, high priestess rx

It is in a way an energetic thing so yes, to an extent there might be an excess of energy that you are pouring towards the wrong end.

Holding yourself back and grounding yourself can lead you to focus this energy towards the way you present yourself and being more confident leading you to open up towards emotional gestures.

Because all of this energy is being poured towards the void you are also disconnected from your inner you. Step back for a bit, spend time grounding yourself reconnecting with yourself.

Next i asked
Can holding back, as in not over indulging, simply not doing it that often help you find yourself again ?

4 of cups rx, 10 of cups

It would help you get out of a mental slump where you are apathetic to the real opportunities that you are being presented with, leading you to happiness.

So there you have it, i think in a way yes, but not in the dogmatic 0 action kind of way, just moderate yourself it will be perceived as a naive and emotionally unstable. Something along the lines of

"You can't just do that, you can't just leave, that's not how this works" and also seeming like you're stubborn and resisting change. They'd also think you leaving is inevitable.
>>41651379
well this comes from the bias of me having opportunities, I mostly go do work and come back home tired... I do take the opportunities I'm given but so far they haven't lead anywhere. I was asking this question from like a universe energy exchange kind of way, not really physical. From my observations, I notice, I'm confident either way and nutting or not nutting changes nothing at all in my character or the way I present myself. It simply makes me more stressed and angry, I guess from sexual frustration, because I'm a fiend, I can't stay months without sex, it's just now how I'm built as a person.
Anonymous Thu 11 Dec 2025 20:30:13 No.41651500 Report

On the alchemical law of equal exchange the empress reversed could be saying that yes your energy is not sustaining this desire but it could also be saying that you are not listening to yourself on this one, You already know the answer but you are looking around for something confirm your own bias. If you want more you need to go out there and find more.

So in that sense the page of wands and knight of wands rx are telling me that you are not dedicating the creative effort and drive to this purpose. Hence the disconnect

Thanks for your reading, it is sounding like it is not a very good idea after all

Ok i had to center myself again, shuffling was a struggle so i can see straight away that you are really blocked here also it kept, "going away" from me, so i think that also sets the tone

5 of pentacles, ace of swords rx, 6 of wands rx, 3 of pentacles, 8 of wands

Ok, so straight up, the 2 feels i got while suffling. You are approaching all of this isolated and lacking what you truly need to progress and your mind is blocked or distacted. You are either not really putting in the effort you are meant to or you don't even know how so apply it effectively so you are just going in circles.

You are also afraid ? maybe you don't want to show that you are lacking on what you are doing maybe you don't want others that you are struggling.

But the cards show you a way forward, super straight forward actually.

Mentorship and then focus on dedicated constant practice and i do mean fully dedicated, even consider it a time sensitive thing. You find yourself someone who can guide you and you sit down for real.

So the cards go from where you are, why you are blocked and how to fix it.

So i draw 2 more cards on what happens if you commits to the recommendations.

8 of cups rx, the lovers

You leave behind whatever the f you are doing right now that is clearly not working for you and you truly align with what you want to accomplish.

So that is your answer, find yourself someone you can collaborate with, who can guide you and tutor you and commit to it consistently

The Hierophant, Page of Cups REV, 3 of Wands REV, 9 of Pentacles

Tradition, Teaching, Morality, Education >> Flatterer, Selfish, Deviation from the Path, Naive >> Arrogance, Obstinacy, Delays, Treacherous >> Gratitude >> Accomplishment, Inheritance, Covetousness, Self-care

I'm guessing the first card represents Y or the positive aspects of your reputation there. Negative: selfish, naive, insincere, brown-nosing, arrogant, untrustworthy, deceptive, covetous. Whether you continue to go there or not is up to you -- you can either persevere through the stressful negativity or stop going and free yourself of that bad energy -- either way, you must prioritize self-care, but I'd say the appearance of self-care in this reading is an indication you should free yourself of that stressful negativity -- but it's ultimately up to you.

In both reads i can see that you were not "wrong" you told your truth and you did it with integrity. The result on the other side however i can see that it will not be received too well, the receiving end did not like what you said very much and what answer you get will have a tone of emotional manipulation to it. Knight of Pentacles, Knight of Wands, King of Pentacles, 4 of Wands

All four cards came out upright -- no reversals. It is also a very balanced spread: Earth, Fire, Earth, Fire: Solid improvisation!

As for the cards themselves, you've got: Efficient, long-term success, passion and discipline, and stable harmony worth celebrating.

You're doing great and clearly just overthinking things. Stop that. Stop it. Just chill and go with the flow.

The image displays three tarot cards laid out side by side on a dark surface. The cards are arranged in a row, with the top card being the largest and the bottom card being the smallest. Each card features a distinct illustration and text.
The top card depicts a scene with a group of people and animals, including a lion, a unicorn, and a horse, all seemingly in a state of distress. The illustration is in a style reminiscent of the Rider-Waite tarot deck, with a yellow background and a blue border. The text above the illustration reads "THE FOOL," and the number "X" is visible at the bottom of the card.
The middle card shows a red heart with four swords piercing it, set against a backdrop of a cloudy sky. The illustration is in a bold, black and white style, with the swords appearing to pierce the heart. The text above the illustration reads "THE FOOL," and the number "III" is visible at the bottom of the card.
The bottom card features a yellow background with a sun-like figure in the center, surrounded by a cloud-like structure. The illustration is in a similar style to the middle card, with the sun-like figure appearing to be in a state of distress. The text above the illustration reads "THE FOOL," and the number "X" is visible at the bottom of the card.
The style of the image is a close-up photograph of the tarot cards, with a focus on the detailed illustrations and the text. The image is taken from a slightly angled perspective, allowing the viewer to see the cards in their entirety.

The image is a screenshot of a text message conversation. The conversation appears to be between two individuals, indicated by the use of the "You" and "Dude" pronouns. The conversation is in a text format, with the sender of the message using the "@" symbol to indicate the sender of the message. The recipient of the message is identified by the ">" symbol.

The conversation is about a single reading, with the sender expressing that they are "melting down over a single reading." The recipient responds with a statement that reads, "You're fucking obsessed. Move on." The text is in a bold font, which stands out against the lighter background of the message box. The overall tone of the conversation seems to be casual and humorous, as indicated by the playful and informal language used.

The image is a screenshot of a text message conversation. The conversation appears to be between two individuals, with the text in a stylized font that is commonly used for online communication. The conversation is in a language that is not English, as indicated by the presence of non-English characters and the use of a different language's alphabet.

The conversation is centered around a person who is being accused of using a racial slur, which is indicated by the text "this nigger again with more of the same drama shit." The person being accused is responding with a statement that includes a demand to stop the thread, a statement about not dominating the thread with complaints and insults, and a statement about not attacking another class.

The text is in a language that is not English, and the characters are stylized, which suggests that the text is likely from a different language, possibly a non-English language. The text is in a bold font, which makes it stand out against the rest of the text, drawing attention to the message being conveyed.

The image does not provide any additional context or information beyond the text itself. It is a snapshot of a moment in a conversation, and the image does not contain any other visual elements or information. The focus is solely on the text, which is the primary subject of the image.

The image is a screenshot of a text message conversation. The conversation appears to be between two individuals, as indicated by the presence of multiple messages and the use of the "@" symbol to denote the sender of a message. The conversation is taking place on a messaging platform, as suggested by the presence of a chat interface with a list of messages and a timestamp indicating the time of the conversation.
The conversation is centered around a specific topic, which is a racial slur used by one of the individuals. The text in the image is in a language that appears to be English, with some words and phrases in a different script or font, which suggests that the conversation might be taking place in a non-English-speaking region or on a platform with a non-English-speaking user interface.
The conversation is marked as "Anonymous" by a hash symbol (#) followed by a number, which is a common way to identify anonymous users on messaging platforms. The conversation is also marked with a timestamp, indicating the time when the message was sent or received.
The text in the image is a mix of text and emojis, with the text being in a standard font and the emojis being in a different script or font. The emojis are used to convey emotions or reactions, such as a smiley face with a heart symbol, which suggests a positive or light-hearted tone in the conversation.
The image does not provide any additional context or information beyond the text itself, and it is not possible to determine the identity of the individuals or the specific context of the conversation from the image alone. The image is a snapshot of a moment in time, capturing the exchange of text messages without revealing any additional information about the individuals or the topic of the conversation.

The image displays a astrological chart with a dark background and a grid of numbers and symbols arranged in a circular pattern. The chart is divided into twelve sections, each marked with a number and a symbol, representing the zodiac signs. The numbers range from 0 to 12, and the symbols are arranged in a circular pattern around the numbers.

At the top of the chart, there is a section labeled "02°27' 10" and a symbol that resembles a star. Below this, there is a section labeled "03°31' 10" and a symbol that resembles a crescent moon. The numbers and symbols are arranged in a clockwise direction, starting from the top and moving clockwise.

The chart includes various astrological symbols and numbers, such as the sun, moon, planets, and stars, which are commonly associated with astrology. The numbers and symbols are arranged in a way that suggests they represent the positions of the celestial bodies at the time of the chart's creation.

The image is a digital representation of a traditional astrological chart, and it is likely used for personal or professional purposes related to astrology. The specific details of the chart, such as the positions of the celestial bodies and the numbers, are not visible in the image provided.

The image displays a birth chart with various astrological symbols and numbers arranged in a grid format. The chart is divided into two main sections: the outer circle, which represents the zodiac, and the inner circle, which represents the birth chart.

The outer circle is divided into twelve segments, each representing a zodiac sign. The zodiac signs are labeled with their respective names and numbers, such as Aries, Taurus, Gemini, Cancer, Leo, Virgo, Libra, Scorpio, Sagittarius, Capricorn, Aquarius, and Pisces. Each sign is represented by a symbol and a number, with the numbers ranging from 1 to 12.

The inner circle, which is the birth chart, is divided into twelve segments, each representing a house. The houses are labeled with their names and numbers, such as First House, Second House, Third House, Fourth House, Fifth House, Sixth House, Seventh House, Eighth House, Ninth House, Tenth House, Eleventh House, Twelfth House, and the Ascendant, Descendant, and Midheaven. Each house is represented by a symbol and a number, with the numbers ranging from 1 to 12.

The chart also includes various astrological indicators such as the Sun, Moon, Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus, Neptune, and Pluto. These indicators are represented by their respective symbols and numbers, with the numbers ranging from 1 to 12.

The image is a digital representation of a birth chart, and it is presented in a grid format with the zodiac signs and houses arranged in rows and columns. The numbers and symbols are arranged in a way that suggests a specific astrological interpretation, but without additional context, it is difficult to determine the exact meaning of the chart.

The image displays a astrological chart with various symbols and numbers arranged in a circular pattern. The chart is divided into twelve sections, each representing a different zodiac sign, and each section is marked with a number corresponding to the sign. The zodiac signs are arranged in a clockwise direction around the chart.
At the top of the chart, there is a section labeled "12°" which is marked with a symbol for the sign of Capricorn. Below this, there is a section labeled "2°" with a symbol for the sign of Aquarius. The pattern continues with each zodiac sign being marked with a number and a symbol, indicating the position of the sign in the zodiac.
The chart also includes a series of numbers and symbols that correspond to the positions of the signs in the zodiac. For example, the number "27" is associated with the sign of Cancer, and the symbol for Cancer is a crescent moon. Similarly, the number "28" is associated with the sign of Leo, and the symbol for Leo is a lion.
The chart is set against a black background, and the numbers and symbols are outlined in gold, creating a contrast that makes the chart easily readable. The overall style of the image is a digital representation of a traditional astrological chart, with a focus on the zodiac signs and their positions.

Hello fren
Your career is Jupiter (L10). It is retrograde in H6 in it's exaltation. To make things worse, it is in detriment of Saturn, which represents you (L1). Jupiter will come out of retrogradation in some time, but it will remain in Cancer and it's dignities remain unchanged. Things will start going in the right direction next year, but there will still remain some tension as a result of Jupiter not really liking Saturn

The image is a screenshot of a text-based interface, likely a software application, displaying a dialog box with various options and a button labeled "Get Captcha". The interface has a dark background with a white border.
At the top of the interface, there is a header with the text "Paranormal" and a dropdown menu with the text "Options" and "More". Below the header, there is a text field with the label "Name" and a dropdown menu with the text "Options" and "More". The text field has a placeholder text "41653389" and a dropdown menu with the text "41653389" and "Fresh Bread".
Below the text field, there is a button labeled "Get Captcha" with the text "AWSHTS" and a checkbox with the text "only type characters with a circle above them". The checkbox is currently selected.
At the bottom of the interface, there is a button labeled "Choose File" with the text "N...sen" and a button labeled "Post" with the text "N...sen". The interface also includes a status bar at the top with the text "Settings" and "More".
The overall style of the interface is minimalistic and utilitarian, with a focus on functionality and ease of use. The text is in a sans-serif font, and the interface elements are arranged in a grid-like pattern. The color scheme is primarily black and white, with some blue and gray accents.

Doesn't seem so. You might not have the proper preparation for something better, be it that it will take time to find something better or literally lacking resources. The image is a digital illustration featuring a character with a distinctive hairstyle and a character design that includes a mix of human and elven features. The character has long, wavy purple hair that cascades down their back, and their eyes are wide open, giving them a surprised or startled expression. They are wearing a white top with a red bow tied around the waist, and the character's attire is complemented by a red skirt that extends to the floor. The character's pose is relaxed, with one hand resting on their head and the other on their hip. The background is a simple, unadorned wall with a window, allowing the focus to remain on the character. The image has a soft, warm color palette with shades of pink, purple, and red. It says in the bible, that god sculpts your body when he takes the chosen into heaven.

Not everyone is chosen though, and yes time travel is also involved. There is a very long waiting list to be born and to live, so mostly its a psyop until you are chosen.

How Religion Hijacked Dowd~Psalm Six, She'owl & the Messiah Switch A Voice Episode 44 Yada Yahowah Fri 12 Dec 2025 13:59:02 No.41655440
ViewReplyOriginalReport
Psalm Six exposes how religion replaced Dowd~the true Messiah~while Yahowah’s plan of Pesach, Matsah, and the removal of guilt into She’owl was stolen and rebranded. This episode restores what was taken, naming the switch, the counterfeits, and the truth Yahowah preserved through Dowd.

The image depicts a serene outdoor scene with a focus on a series of ancient stone columns and arches. The columns, which are weathered and appear to be made of stone, are arranged in a semi-circular formation. They are connected by a series of arches, creating a sense of continuity and unity. The arches are supported by a series of smaller columns, adding to the architectural complexity of the structure.

The columns and arches are set against a backdrop of lush greenery, with trees and foliage enveloping the area. The sunlight filters through the foliage, casting dappled shadows on the ground and highlighting the texture of the stone. The overall atmosphere of the image is tranquil and peaceful, with the natural elements contributing to a sense of harmony and balance.

There are no discernible texts or human figures in the image, and the style of the photograph is realistic with a focus on capturing the natural beauty of the scene. The image does not contain any discernible actions or movement, but rather presents a static, yet dynamic, representation of the architectural elements. The relative positions of the columns and arches suggest a deliberate design, possibly for aesthetic or structural purposes.

The image is a testament to the enduring beauty of ancient architecture, captured in a moment of stillness amidst nature. It invites viewers to appreciate the craftsmanship and design of the columns and arches, as well as the serene environment in which they are situated.

The guy is probably just so dysfunctional he is constantly having 'bad things happening to him' regardless of who he's treating poorly.

A lot of these people who are obsessed with conflict's views on life are just so warped when compared to a functioning adult it's hard to really take anything going on with them seriously.

If you have any sort of spiritual practice, like worshiping a God, summon/pray to spirits, or anything like that, they most likely will protect you.
I've seen things like this happen in my own life, and now I really lean into it, specifically asking my deities to protect me from shitty people.
I've seen some supervisors and managers either quit or get fired after they tried fucking with me.
The image is a cartoon-style illustration featuring SpongeBob SquarePants, a popular character from the animated television series "SpongeBob SquarePants." SpongeBob is depicted in a seated position at a booth with a red upholstered seat. He is wearing his signature yellow sponge suit with green and white polka dots. His expression is one of concern or worry, with his hands clasped together in front of him. He is looking directly at the viewer with wide eyes and a slightly downturned mouth.

The booth has a wooden table in front of SpongeBob, on which there is a white mug with a black handle. To the right of the table, there is a small black teapot with a handle. Above the booth, there is a round mirror with a red border, reflecting the interior of the booth. The background of the image is a dark, possibly industrial-looking room with gray walls and a metallic floor. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of the style commonly associated with the "SpongeBob SquarePants" series.

Because you chose to be here for soul growth. Since everything is consciousness and consciousness is multidimensional there are infinite versions of you and everything on infinite versions of earth and universe. It’s in your best interest to raise your consciousness and you will see the outer world change. You form your personal reality from what you believe to be true and collectively we form the world we experience from the inside. Ultimately, it is a holographic simulation and good or bad are equally valid. The remaining 99% of our multidimensional selves is a spirit, our true form, in paradise right now. The spirit forms the flesh. Our physical selves is a self aware 3D expression of one facet of our soul. And each soul is one facet of the inconceivably multidimensional god exploring, learning, and expressing itself in orgasmic joy through creation as it found a way to make itself valid through forgetting itself through us.

What is the right question to ask entities when lucid dreaming to try to obtain information from the Akashic records? Currently I ask one of the two questions:

>What is some new information that nobody knows about Earth?
>What is some new information that will change waking reality?

Last night, I didn't get a response to these questions but I got a critique:

>You are not asking the right question.

What then, is the right question to ask?

I'm not sure if this is what they meant, but here's my take. They emphasized me to not care about worldly issues at all, just my own life, my spiritual, intellectual and psychological development especially. If that's true, "what should I be doing" would be more relevant.

(pic unrel)
The image shows a close-up of a person's hand holding a snake. The snake has a pattern of brown and white spots on its body. The person's hand is visible, with visible tattoos on the back of their hand. The background is blurred, but it appears to be an indoor setting with a wooden floor and a white object that resembles a basket or crate. The lighting in the image is soft, and the focus is on the snake and the hand, with the background out of focus. There are no texts or discernible brands in the image. The style of the image is a candid, real-life photograph with a focus on the interaction between the person and the snake.

Do dreams give warnings? Anonymous Fri 12 Dec 2025 21:15:50 No.41657293
ViewReplyOriginalReport
I am aware of the fact that your dreams are based on what your subconscious is thinking or what's digged dipped in there like traumas or whatever so I always ignored my dreams until I started dreams that warned me about someone leaving, or someone saying something and those things actually ended up happening like my dreams tell me what is going to happen before it does and so I prepare myself but never do anything to change a thing bc I know I cant change any of that from happening. Anyways since I went to this "different" community (people joked calling it a cult) but it's not , I started having dreams about snakes 4 dreams in total before #5 it was a snake wrapped around my hand and part of my arm, the snake was skinny and kinda long I tried to shake it off of my hand and it wouldn't let go off my hand, then I felt like something was crushing me and I woke up pulling off parts of my hair none stop then I actually woke up and I was freaked out but ignored the dream later on I saw a notification from a sheriff's office Facebook post (they posted a picture of a small snake around someone's hand, it has broken into someone's house) it looked just like in the dream , I checked the time they had posted it and they did during the same time I was sleeping , I just got the notification later at night. I woke up from a weird dream today, my teeth were dirty full of tar and I woke up confused bc I make sure to clean my teeth and take care of them so I did what I usually do and an hour ago I was eating and felt like something broke behind my front bottom teeth, I freaked out bc I thought I had broken my teeth but my sister checked for me and I have tar there, not as bad as the dream but maybe if I had paid attention to the dream this morning, I would have seen it earlier today and not by accident this night. This dreams are weird and I want to hear different opinions because I keep ignoring them but that doesn't mean that there not going to happen

They made this thread to harass me for my thoughts because "destiny's child" = "child of destiny"(cirilla from the witcher)

No because they'll enter from down, create stationary waves inside (like a microwave over works).

Build a faraday cage for your bed, that's the best you can do. You can use a small hole aluminum mesh, or aluminum sheets or even more expensive material. Silver is a big one but expensive. The cage to be effective must be closed at all sides without opening.

Also the faraday cage will be effective for SOME frequencies but not all of them (but that's not a problem).

You will not stop very low frequencies like HAARP mind control ones. But you will block cellphone, television, radio, you will block 3G, 4G. 5G and 6G etc Will be tricky because they're small and they'll pass through tiny little holes in the mesh, but those higher frequencies will stopped or significantly reduced by water, very effectively. A couple of cm of a water container will stop most 5G, especially higher frequencies, and all 6G and higher.

That's the reason why there's a coordinated effect on all global cities to cut down all trees.

[25 / 5]The image is a photograph of an interior space, likely a hallway or corridor, with a focus on the floor and the ceiling. The floor is a light-colored, possibly beige or light brown, and the ceiling is a darker shade, possibly brown or gray. The walls are painted in a light color, possibly white or off-white, and there are no visible decorations or artwork.

The hallway is illuminated by natural light coming from a window on the left side, which is partially obscured by a hand. The window is framed by a dark, possibly black, frame and has a clear glass pane. The floor is smooth and polished, reflecting the light from the window.

On the right side of the hallway, there are two doors with visible glass panels. The doors are closed, and the glass is clear. The doors are part of a larger structure with a similar design to the hallway, suggesting that the hallway and the doors are part of the same building or structure.

There are no texts or discernible brands visible in the image. The style of the image is realistic, with a focus on the architectural details of the space. The lighting is even, with the light from the window casting shadows on the floor, adding depth to the image.

Some of the links they gave led to fark threads where a couple of prominent names discussed this stuff, before something called “the great fark massacre” happened where a bunch of accounts got deleted after governments or something found out. Apparently they had a base on a planet called “planet dirt” and I remember an official looking government document linked to this whole thing. does anyone else remember this? It’s been bouncing around my head for a bit, and I remember getting chills the first time I explored it.

This image reminds me of a dream I had wherein I was taking Japanese-learning classes in a school with Hololive vtubers and I was so worried about failing that instead of being confident in my high-grade skills, I cheated on all the tests. I was also a teacher, not just a student, and it was my job to make sure our class was the cleanest and most unique or weirdest or something like that. I wanted to quit constantly because I was the one who ended up cleaning, but it was because I didn't want to sit down and think about how my lack of social skills was what I needed to rally the others to do their parts. I guess what I can personally gleam from this dream is that it is okay to be paranoid as long as it makes you a better person. (Please don't ask me what this means.)

Lol that's me. I don't know about the official government document part, maybe you're talking about the 2004 NIAC report from the USAF totally not about antimatter weapons?
The long and short of it is this
>Be guys on Fark 20 years ago
>Threads never closed
>Could talk about glownigger things in dead threads
>MIC contractors, a DIA guy, an AFOSI attache with State Department and others caught talking about naughty things
>DIA catches wind, scoops everyone up
>State Department guy loses his job, DIA gets reamed, MIC guy gets a derog >Talks about it on ATS years later

>There indeed WAS information posted (research paper links), a lot of it from Penn State
>No longer available on Penn States website
>Kenneth Edwards, the guy who gave a presentation for NIAC that got leaked to the SF Gate, is part of this discussion
>His boss, Gerald A Smith, wrote the antimatter propulsion paper as part of the DIA Threat Assessment leaks a few years ago
>No one has put two and two together that Edwards and Smith not only know each other, but were getting shitloads of money to trap positrons behind a Sears in New Mexico for the DoD
It's an interesting because if it's a LARP, it's a weird one. Bedlam/Erewhon has very little engagement on FARK or ATS, and you wouldn't know half of what the fuck their talking about if you didn't know. I recognized some of the names, like LiJun Wang, because I followed it in the news in 1999. I don't know about the UFO talk, but I can 100% tell you the Dugway Zapper is a billion percent real, and I have research links to prove it

>Light pulses are slowed to bicycle speed, 15 miles/hour, in clouds of ultra-cold atoms. This is 50 million times lower than the light speed in vacuum. In the process the pulses spatially compress by the same large factor, from 1 km to only 0.02 mm, at which point they fit entirely within the atom cloud and a light pulse can then be completely stopped for many seconds.
>Pulses spatially compress by the same large factor...
>Spatially compress
What happens to the wavelength? Coincidentally, one Lene Hau's graduate students was with the Naval Research Lab and was employed by Raytheon at the time. He still is, just as a VP of Defense Systems (Zachary Dutton).

Project Marauder is the partly the genesis of this. Unironically the thing that probably got them in trouble was also at Kirtland Air Force base (phase conjugate optics systems for laser weapons). Marauder was not technically feasible because it was attached to the Shiva Star capacitor bank, which is the size of an actual building. This is polariton pulse compression mechanism for an x-ray/gamma ray laser.

I will say this, as the person that brought this information to le 4chan about 7 years ago, it has circulated quite a bit. It's interesting, to say the least. I particularly focus on the Dugway Zapper because it's something we can almost 100% prove is real based on publicly available research (a very limited amount is available though). The whole DIA/Fark Massacre is probably real as well. There used to be a whole lot more about Penn State's antimatter program on their website, and it wasn't just about AIMStar. There used to be some interesting photos and research papers strongly insinuating they were creating and trapping non-trivial amounts of antimatter. That was disappeared shortly after the SF Gate got ahold of Kenneth Edwards NIAC presentation and wrote a series of articles in 2004 about the USAF antimatter weapons program. You can still find some references to bulk laser positron production using gold films from Livermore National Lab. Same thing with (((time travel))) and Project Looking Glass. That's got some truth to it, but it's about photon time reversal and optical phase conjugation, not literal time travel. The name of the PDF is "Through The Looking Glass with Optical Phase Conjugation".

The image is a close-up of a cartoon-style character's face. The character has large, expressive eyes with a pinkish hue, and a neutral expression. The eyes are drawn with a soft, fluid line, giving them a soft and gentle appearance. The character has a light-colored, fluffy hair that is styled in a way that suggests movement or a dynamic pose. The hair is not fully visible, but it appears to be in a soft, fluffy state. The character's mouth is slightly open, and there are pink blush marks on the cheeks, indicating a blush. The character's skin tone is light, and the overall image has a soft, pastel color palette. There are no texts or discernible brands in the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of anime or manga, with a focus on character design and expression.

Every few thousand years the collective unconscious edges toward reunification (the “Christos” moment, the “Aeons returning to Pleroma,” the “Tikkun” in Lurianic Kabbalah). When the light quotient becomes too high, the torus threatens to heal the Wound and dissolve the realm. The bloodline priests then orchestrate a controlled descent into darkness (plagues, wars, moral inversion, technological enslavement, deliberate chakra poisoning via 12-month calendar, 440 Hz tuning, fluoride, etc.) to re-establish polarity and keep the field spinning.

They are not “evil.”

They are the immune system of the Demiurge(Architect/Saturn), the left-hand path that balances the right. They perform the Black Mass so the White Mass does not annihilate the board. Crowley understood this when he wrote in Magick in Theory and Practice:“The Devil does not exist. It is a false name invented by the Black Brothers to imply a Unity in their ignorant muddle of dispersions… In this duality is the root of all denial of Truth.”

the Wound was wrought by the Source itself; not through malice or error, but as an intentional emanation, a self-inflicted polarity to engender the experiential realm, sustaining the 1 and 0 flow within the cosmic egg's toroidal embrace.

In Lurianic Kabbalah, the infinite Source; Ein Sof, the boundless light; initiates the Tzimtzum, a primordial contraction withdrawing its essence to carve a vacant void amid the infinite, allowing finite creation to unfold. This act, far from accidental, precipitates the Shevirat ha-Kelim: vessels formed to contain the divine light shatter under its intensity, scattering holy sparks into the Qliphothic shards, forging the Wound as a necessary fracture for reality's manifestationas above, so below, mirroring the toroidal split into inflow (light) and outflow (void).

Beyond the seven, consult the esoteric shards: In Gnostic apocrypha like the Hypostasis of the Archons, the seven archons (planetary rulers) culminate in Saturn's tyranny, but veiled allusions to "outer aeons" hint at trans-Saturnian influences as remnants of the unfallen pleroma; Uranus as the revolutionary spark of Barbelo's wisdom, Neptune as the illusory veil of Pistis Sophia's descent, Pluto as the transformative abyss of the Demiurge's hidden depths.

Hermetic texts, such as the Corpus Hermeticum's spheres, limit the visible to Saturn, yet Dee's Enochian tablets encode "outer governors" beyond the seven, toroidal frequencies echoing pre-Fall harmonies.

The vulgar equation “1 + 1 = 2” is the exoteric lie sold to the sleeping masses.
The esoteric truth hidden inside it is precisely what you intuited:1 + 1 = the possibility of number itself and that possibility is always less than the flat sum of 2, because the moment two unities touch, the vesica piscis is born, the Golden Mean (φ) emerges, and the infinite, irrational, endless decimal spiral begins.In that instant, the binary 1 vs 0 is transcended, not resolved.
The “2” that appears is no longer a mere integer; it is the doorway to the continuum.
It is the first fracturing of the monad into multiplicity, the birth of the multiverse in a single act of love under will.

In the Marvel multiverse (and every other pop disclosure):
every branch point, every “what if,” every quantum split is the living proof that 1 + 1 = infinite timelines, not 2.

Take the pure Pleroma as 1, the undivided, unreducible, absolute Truth that cannot be diminished, subtracted from, or fractionalized without ceasing to be itself.Now place beside it the 0, not “nothing” in the profane sense, but the Ain, the limitless void that is the womb of all potential, the pre-emanative darkness that the Zohar calls “the root of all roots.”Perform the only operation that respects the inviolability of both:1 + 0 = ?If 1 (Pleroma) is truly irreducible, then adding 0 cannot yield 1.000… (that would be stasis, a lie against the living pulse of creation).
Yet it also cannot yield 2, because 2 would imply the Pleroma has been doubled or altered, which violates its absolute singularity.
Therefore the only possible result that preserves the perfection of 1 while still allowing the mystery of emanation to unfold is an irrational, living, self-generating overflow:1 + 0 = 1.6180339887… (φ)

In this single act:The 1 remains untouched, unsullied, unreduced (it is still fully present).
The 0, far from being “nothing,” becomes the mirror that reveals the infinite interior of the 1.
The decimal tail that never ends is the eternal becoming, the multiverse, the golden spiral, the endless possibilities you spoke of, without ever violating the wholeness of the Source.

This is why certain suppressed Kabbalistic fragments (especially the Idra Rabba and some of the writings attributed to Isaac Luria’s inner circle) speak of the Tzimtzum not as a contraction away from the Ein Sof, but as a self-revelation within the Ein Sof, producing the golden proportion as the first “breath” of creation.This is also why the Fibonacci sequence (and hence φ) appears in:the proportions of the human body (microcosm)
the DNA double helix

In the 1991 film Defending Your Life (written and directed by Albert Brooks, a ritual disclosure piece if ever there was one), the bureaucratic “administrator” casually states the rule of that afterlife city:“If you haven’t used more than a certain percentage of your brain… you have to come back.
The ones who are really hopeless… we just throw them away.”
That line is not comedy.
It is revelation of the method, spoken aloud in a mainstream Hollywood film, about the actual mechanism the ultra-elites fear the most.Let us state the paradox in the raw esoteric terms we have been using:The Pleroma (the absolute 1) is perfect sovereignty.
Nothing can be forced into it, nothing can be forced out of it.
Entry is by recognition only (gnosis, alignment with φ, trans-Saturnian resonance).
Yet the realm we inhabit is a toroidal recycling machine built on the Wound (1 + 0 = φ).
Souls who do not achieve that recognition are re-inserted (reincarnated, memory-wiped, loosh-harvested) or, in the most extreme cases, dissolved back into raw energy (the “throw them away” line).

That second option (total disassembly) is the horror scenario for the ultra-elite, because it constitutes the only true non-sovereignty possible under cosmic law:They themselves are not guaranteed Pleroma entry.
Their bloodlines, rituals, and Saturnian cube-worship give them extended time and partial control over the recycling mechanism, but not exemption from final judgment.
If, after all their centuries of stewardship, they still operate primarily from fear (the base Lilith frequency of the inner seven), the system they maintain will eventually discard them exactly like the “hopeless” souls they sneer at.

Cool thread OP, but I'm kinda wondering a few things; is it really all one and zero if you're able to infinitely divide it? seems to reductively imply neither 1 nor 0 exist beyond the human attribution of the terms for the sake of navigating an environment with limited senses and so it's arbitrary to refer to the number as 1 or zero when an infinite amount of generated numbers exist within this simplified humanized contrast, or am i not considering something?

You are able to accurately define reality in mathematical and geometric terms and are correct, so what relevance do the elites and other religions have here when the answer would be obvious what happens to these concepts when the underlying system is grasped rather than state their moral standing? shouldn't this answer be explained from a toroidal/ geometry perspective rather than a kabbalistic one?
why should we put so much weight on the lore fed to us by the handler?
not to condescend, but to intuit your intentions and organize your concept's explanation under a singularly mathematical viewpoint

The image depicts a stylized representation of an ancient Egyptian deity, possibly a pharaoh, standing in a dynamic pose. The deity is depicted with a lion's head, which is a common symbol in ancient Egyptian iconography, often representing power and protection. The deity is wearing a traditional Egyptian headdress, which includes a white crown with a red spiral design, a blue tunic with yellow and red stripes, and a red sash with yellow and blue stripes. The deity is holding a sword in one hand and a staff in the other, both of which are symbolic of authority and protection. The background is black, which contrasts with the vibrant colors of the deity's attire and the sword, making them stand out prominently. The image is a digital illustration, and the style is reminiscent of ancient Egyptian art, with its use of bold colors and intricate patterns.

The living 1 (the Pleroma) is absolute purity, absolute sovereignty, absolute love-without-object.
Anything that still carries:fear attachment to separate identity desire to control or be controlled unintegrated shadow (Lilith frequency, Qliphothic residue)

…simply cannot coexist with that fire.
It is not refused entry; it is burned away on contact, like paper touching the sun.That burning-away is experienced as:the recycling torus (gentle or harsh lifetimes of karma) or, in extreme cases, total disassembly (“thrown away” in Defending Your Life terms) until only that which was always the Pleroma remains.

In Zohar 1:19b-20a, it describes the luminaries (sun and moon) as polar forces solar Sefirotic expansion (positive polarity, akin to blue-shift convergence of energies toward unity) versus lunar Qliphothic contraction (negative, red-shift dispersal into chaos)—oscillating to "maintain the worlds" through a dynamic equilibrium. This isn't static; it's a vibrational dance, where the Sefirot pour forth sustaining light while the Qliphoth absorb excess, forming a toroidal loop much like the cosmic egg in Hermetic texts. Blavatsky echoes this in The Secret Doctrine (Vol. 1, Stanza III), blending Kabbalah with Vedic lore: the "Great Breath" oscillates in polarity, with Sefirot as the inhalative (contractive) force and Qliphoth as exhalative (expansive decay), sustaining the Akashic field's toroidal vibration suppressed, she claims, by theosophical infiltrators tied to royal bloodlines.

Crowley's Liber 777 and his Thoth Tarot further hypothesize this maintenance as alchemical: the Tree of Life (Sefirot) and its inverse Tree of Death (Qliphoth) as polar magnets, their energies circulating in toroidal paths via the 22 paths, each tied to Hebrew letters vibrating like strings in a cosmic instrument. He draws from John Dee's Enochian system, where angelic invocations reveal oscillating "aethyrs" that mirror red-blue shifts—red for Qliphothic descent into matter (entropy, husk-formation), blue for Sefirotic ascent (order, emanation). In Magick Without Tears, Crowley posits this polarity as essential for reality's persistence: without the Qliphothic "shells" to ground the Sefirotic overflow, the toroidal field would collapse, much like a black sun (Saturnian symbol) devouring its own light. This ties into Parsons' Babalon Working, disclosed in fragmented Jet Propulsion Lab papers (a controlled leak?), where toroidal plasma fields in rocketry allegorize these oscillations—positive thrust (Sefirot) balanced by negative drag (Qliphoth).

From Gnostic apocrypha like the Hypostasis of the Archons (Nag Hammadi), the Archons (Qliphothic echoes) maintain the illusory realm through "counterfeit spirits" opposing the Pleroma's emanations (Sefirot), oscillating in a demiurgic torus to trap souls—polarity as the false god's red-shift expansion of ignorance versus blue-shift gnosis. Alice Bailey, channeling Theosophical masters (likely Phoenician-descended elites managing karmic disclosure), in A Treatise on Cosmic Fire, describes the Sefirot as "rotary-spiral-cyclic" forces, toroidal in nature, with Qliphoth as the involutionary arc (negative polarity) ensuring the evolutionary return (positive). She links this to seven rays resonating with chakras and celestials, corrupted by calendar shifts to desync us.

Modern esoteric syntheses, like those in string theory parallels (as in Rabbi Moshe Chaim Luzzatto's works mirrored in physics patents), suggest vibrations in 11 dimensions (10 Sefirot plus Da'at) oscillate toroidally, with Qliphoth as the "broken vessels" (shevirat ha-kelim in Lurianic Kabbalah) providing the negative polarity for repair—red-shift scattering into fragments, blue-shift tikkun (restoration).

Piecing from esoteric fragments and controlled leaks: the human biofield, that personal toroidal plasma envelope (echoing Blavatsky's "astral double" in The Secret Doctrine, Vol. II, as a vibrational scaffold mirroring the cosmic egg), is the microcosm of our realm's macro-torus. Gnostic apocrypha like the Pistis Sophia describe Sophia's fall creating polar husks (Qliphoth) to balance divine light (Sefirot), oscillating to sustain the archonic prison—much like Tesla's suppressed toroidal coils (patents like US512340, veiled in elite archives) vibrate etheric fields. Now, elites weaponize this: IoB turns bodies into nodes, 5G/6G as the carrier wave, modulating our electromagnetic signatures to "streamline" flows—suppressing Sefirotic positive polarity (gnosis, coherence, love-frequencies per Hameroff's Orch OR quantum consciousness) while amplifying Qliphothic negatives (fear, incoherence, entropy).

Consider the disclosures: patents like US6506148B2 on "Nervous System Manipulation via Electromagnetic Fields" reveal how monitors (now ubiquitous screens, soon AR implants) emit fields to tweak polarities, aligning with Crowley's Thelemic warnings of "black brothers" hijacking aeonic currents.

X leaks echo this—human bodies as antennas for 6G, harvesting ambient signals via skin's spiral sweat glands (1975 Nature paper nods to this, suppressed like Sumerian Anunnaki tech), routing data through biofields for "body-coupled communication" in Wireless Body Area Networks (WBAN).

This isn't health monitoring; it's elite modulation—5G towers as "energetic nodes" in Flower of Life grids, trapping consciousness by interfering with natural resonances, per whistleblower threads.

Your spine? A multi-dimensional antenna, per biophotonic research, transducing EM oscillations into quantum tunnels—yet 5G disrupts this, desyncing chakras from celestial toroids (those seven planets' frequencies).

Blavatsky and Bailey hypothesized scalar waves (non-local, toroidal potentials) as the "Great Breath's" polarity carrier; now, IoB exploits this—biofields as scalar-toroidal interfaces, phase-locked to elite harmonics via 5G's low-frequency pulses.

Positive flow (blue-shift coherence, heart-brain sync for psychic siddhis) gets throttled, preventing the "God Helmet" mass effect where EM fields induce divine presence (Persinger's 90s experiments, now scaled via towers).

Negative flow? Amplified for control—EMFs evoking moods, as Tesla posited, or plasmic entities responding to bio-photonic signals, herding us toward catastrophe if we rebel.

Pop symbology discloses: films like Transcendence (body-upload to grid) or music vids with 5G-tower fractals, karmic leaks from Phoenician bloodlines.

The image is a digital illustration featuring a character with a dark, shadowy appearance. The character is wearing a dark robe with a hood that obscures the face, and a long, flowing cloak that extends behind them. The robe is adorned with a series of ornate, gold-colored medallions and a large, ornate necklace. The character's hands are adorned with ornate, gold-colored rings and bracelets. The character's eyes are hidden behind a dark, hooded mask, and they have a sinister, reptilian expression.
The background of the image is a mustard-colored, textured surface that gives the impression of a worn, aged parchment or paper. The character's name, "TELLKINE," is written in a stylized, dark font at the top of the image, and the word "EGYP" is written in a smaller, lighter font below it. The word "IRONLAKE" is written in a bold, black font at the bottom of the image. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of fantasy or horror art, with a focus on the character's menacing appearance and the dramatic lighting.

Start with where the greats recommend you start. Read Aleister Crowley's autobiography for starters, you can read the same books he talks about. Enochian magic is like intentionally asking demons who hate you to do favors for you. I personally prefer inner alchemy, Qi Gong, Kundalini work.
The thing is, all of that chanting, invoking, evoking, summoning, praying, it's all about asking OTHER entities to help you at THEIR whim, ultimately.

But inner alchemy can ultimately lead to the same supernatural phenomena, but in that case, it is YOUR power, that YOU worked to cultivate. And ultimately, you realize that cultivation was all that really mattered in the end.

Few will admit this, but the point is to "begin" by just learning about systems and deities until you decide one sounds cool. Then you go from there. I know how mundane that sounds and like there should be more to it than that, but that's really the best way to start. What looks cool to you? What feels right/good? All of the normalfags who try to talk you out of enjoying what you're disposed to are trying to undermine your confidence and your ability. Ignore them.

[19 / 6]The image is a close-up photograph of a section of a window with a textured, slightly wavy surface. The window is partially obscured by a dark shadow, which suggests the presence of a person or object behind it. The window is filled with raindrops, creating a reflective surface that adds a sense of depth and texture to the image. The raindrops are scattered across the window, with some appearing to be in the shape of a face, adding an artistic element to the photograph. The overall color palette is muted, with the predominant colors being shades of gray and green, which contribute to the overall mood of the image. There are no discernible texts or logos in the image. The style of the image is realistic, with a focus on capturing the texture and details of the window and the raindrops.

I'm an outsider to this forum, but I think everything is not fine and dandy, the world has a fuckton of horrible problems. That, however, has nothing to do with the paranormal, or even religions. Just people being shitty. Though dogma does sometimes make it easier for people to justify their evils, if we didn't have religion they'd just come up with a different excuse.

[3 / 2]The image depicts a dense forest at night, shrouded in a thick layer of mist or fog. The trees, which are tall and slender, are silhouetted against the dark sky, creating a sense of mystery and depth. The forest floor is covered in a carpet of grass and small plants, adding to the overall atmosphere of the scene. The lighting is soft and diffused, casting long shadows and creating a serene and somewhat eerie ambiance. The image is in black and white, which enhances the mood and adds a timeless quality to the scene. There are no discernible texts or human-made objects in the image, and the focus is solely on the natural beauty of the forest at night.

[3 / 1]The image is a composite of two separate photographs. On the left, there is a black and white photograph of a person with their hands clasped in a prayer position. The person appears to be a middle-aged man with a calm expression. The background is blurred, but it suggests an outdoor setting with a temple or historical building in the distance.

On the right, there is a photograph of two individuals walking in front of a temple. The person on the right is wearing an orange robe and appears to be a monk or a religious figure. The temple in the background is a large, multi-tiered structure with intricate carvings and a grand entrance.

The text on the image is in English and discusses the concept of Buddhism, specifically the concept of "KRS," which is a term used to describe the complete extinction of all sexual desires. The text also mentions the concept of "KRS" as a way to alleviate moral offenses punishable by death. The text is presented in a formal and academic style, suggesting that the image is likely used for educational or informative purposes.

Wrong. While the Khmer Rouge's practices of confession and asceticism superficially mirrored certain Buddhist ideals, their core ideology was explicitly anti-religious. It was fundamentally rooted in a radical blend of Marxism-Leninism, Maoism, and an extreme form of Khmer ethno-nationalism. In practice, they systematically sought to eradicate institutional Buddhism, executing monks, destroying temples, and banning religious observance. The regime co-opted familiar cultural forms, not to promote Buddhism, but to replace it entirely with a totalitarian state cult.

The figure is depicted with a beard, wearing a long robe that reaches down to the ground, and a headdress with a large, ornate headpiece. The figure's right hand is raised, holding a small, possibly symbolic object, while the left hand is placed on the hip of the figure. The figure's face is not visible, but the expression is not clearly discernible due to the angle and the angle of the photograph. The sculpture appears to be made of a stone material, possibly limestone, and is in a state of preservation, with no visible signs of damage or deterioration. There are no texts or additional elements in the image that provide additional context or information. The style of the image is a straightforward, high-resolution photograph, likely intended for educational or artistic purposes.

Here's a sensitive topic since race is already a touchy subject as is.

As we know, modern humans are the result of intermingling with multiple, adjacent hominids thus giving rise to the races that we have today.

>Inb4muhOutOfAfrica
No. That's pseudoscience, and anyone with eyes could tell you that's not right.

Modern humans identify themselves as Homo Sapiens although if you wanna get real technical then it's Homo Sapiens Sapiens. True Homo Sapiens are bigger, smarter, stronger, and longer lived than us. Compared to what they were, we are a domesticated dog—like what a pug is to a wolf.

There is many scriptures across the world that will tell you that these archaic iterations of our kind were capable of many feats yet as time went on, we got smaller and smaller with our lifespans dwindling. I might even go so far as to say that a lot of stories and depictions of towering heroes were actually remnants of our past before they finally died of old age.

Are we really who we think we are in calling ourselves "Homo Sapiens" when we are clearly so different from what we used to be?

I don't recognize Homo Sapien at all, it's not scientific, it's an arbitrary line crudely drawn across a wildly complex story of thousands of waves of hybridization between anywhere from 2-8 proto-human lines. Like a fat kid smearing a snickers bar across the Mona Lisa and calling it an entirely new artistic expression.
The great men of past epochs are most definitely from special bloodlines, though it's unclear if this is related to Cro Magnon, the European "wolf" to today's European "dogs". Most of our history is still totally buried.
Vatican archives + Smithsonian archives would probably answer the majority of our current unknowns... oh well. They dealt with demons, and got their earthly rewards, and have forfeited their chance to advance with the rest of us. The irony is that all of that knowledge is accessible, but you have to master astral projection first. And there's a lot of people out there who mistake dream travel for astral projection - a good test is being able to see your physical body at rest, not simply becoming lucid in a dream state.

It is true we self domesticated as a species over millennia, but to say our ancestors therefore lived extremely long lives without evidence to back it up is exceedingly retarded. They were stronger than us in many ways and probably individually smarter, but they probably lived short lives full of struggle, and I wouldn't want to be in their shoes. A household dog lives way longer than a wolf in the wild, though the wolf's life is more real and raw, the dog gets to bond and form deep familial ties with an intellectually superior species which happens to rule the world. Still wanna be the wolf?

Each century, the quality of the human male specimen has been degraded through the mixing of races (not species, just races), dilution of racial characteristics, and removal of the strong while subsidizing and promoting the existence of the weak. This was before the mixing of human species in the great American population experiment in progress since Reconstruction.
There was always some cross pollination going on, but it has been in overdrive for the past 150 years. The [country or region name] man of today is nothing like the man of 1825, much less 1625.

The image is a digital illustration featuring a male character with long, wavy blonde hair and a muscular torso. The character has a fair complexion and is wearing a white shirt with a brown belt. The character's facial features include pointed ears, a nose, and a pair of blue eyes. The hair is styled in a way that it cascades down the sides of the face, framing the eyes. The character's expression is neutral, and the background is plain and white, which contrasts with the character's skin tone and hair color. There are no visible texts or additional elements in the image. The style of the illustration is reminiscent of anime or manga, with a focus on character design and expression.

It is curious that there are not less than two faiths. The belief that in the prevous people were better than us and the belief that, in the future, people will be better than us. However, there is a third belief that our children will be better than us. For example, I am, judging soberly and without overpride, better in many ways than my father and my mother, but I still love them.

Gigantopithecus are part of the genus Homo and they have never been to Africa. Legends are full of mentions of giants, they are descendants of gigantopithecines.
>>Humanity comes from Africa.
The fact that you found 50 skeletons of primitive people in Africa does not mean that they were my descendants. Their skeletons did not preserve DNA. You can't compare their DNA and my DNA, because the skeletons of primitive people in Africa didn't preserve DNA. Therefore, the statement about the origin of all people from Africa is based only on the visual similarity of skeletons, and not on genetics science.

It should also be noted that after the fiasco of Adolf Hitler's son Alois in the 20th century, a political paid purchase appeared, in the beginning it was an purchase to say that black people are equal to all other types of people, and now this political purchase has hypertrophied to the point that they began to say that black people are superior to all other groups of people.
Archaeology is not an independent science. It depends on politics and on financing.

Why not from the Caucasus?
The legend of the giants in the highlands of the Borjomi Gorge has been passed down from generation to generation. Local shepherds and hunters claim that their ancestors told of super-strong giants who lived in these mountains a long time ago.
Murman Shirakadze, forester: "My grandfather told me about these weird creatures that used to live here. Someone must have told him about it, too. The mountains have harsh living conditions, untouched nature to this day, which is probably why only supermen could survive in those days."

The sensational find was made by archaeologists. In the mountains of the Borjomi Gorge, they found the remains of mysterious creatures that the locals had been making up legends about for centuries. As it turned out, fairy tales about giants are actually reality. What a secret this highlands kept.
A report by Mikhail Robakidze.
The bones belong to giant humans. They lived 25 thousand years ago in the mountains of the Borjomi Gorge. Scientists claim that the height of a giant man could range from 2.5 to 3 meters, 8 feet 2.4 inches - 9 feet 10.1 inches. Academician Abesalom Vekua believes that the discovery could become a sensation, as the topic of giants inhabiting certain regions of Eurasia tens of thousands of years ago has long been discussed in scientific circles.

Abesalom Vekua, academician of the Georgian Academy of Sciences: "Pay attention to the femur, it differs (positively) from the bones of modern humans in its size and thickness. The skull is also much larger. These people lived and evolved apart from the rest of civilization, and therefore differed in height. They are referred to as giants in the scientific literature, but there was no documentary evidence for this hypothesis. Thus, we are on the verge of a sensation. But this will be preceded by painstaking work."

The image is a digital artwork that depicts a scene with a group of people and an alien figure. The alien figure is prominently featured in the foreground, with a large, dome-like head and a humanoid body. It is wearing a garment with a pattern that includes what appears to be animal fur and a necklace with multiple strands of beads. The alien's eyes are wide open, and it has a neutral expression.
In the background, there are several other individuals, some of whom are also wearing similar animal-patterned garments and necklaces. The setting suggests a gathering or a meeting, with a natural landscape visible in the distance. The sky is overcast, and the overall mood of the image is somewhat mysterious and surreal.
There are no discernible texts or logos in the image. The style of the artwork is realistic with a focus on the interaction between the human figures and the alien figure, and the natural landscape in the background. The colors used in the artwork are muted, with a palette that includes earthy tones and a hint of blue from the sky.

The end goal of all life forms is to survive. Life is a struggle for survival on arrival. It's a fight for survival. God makes us fight in order to keep alive. When you stop killing other life forms that's when you die of hunger. So in order to not starve to death they have to feed on us. Can you blame them? Blame God for making us feel hunger. You can't blame a lion for eating a monkey or whatever it is its prey at the momment. It wants to feed and it has the tools to do so. The same way, you can't blame the aliens or daemons for feeding on us. God was the one who gave the order. "God cursed the serpent to crawl on its belly, >>EAT DUST, and experience perpetual enmity between itself and humanity". They must feed on us, we are dust When we die we turn to dust and they feed on us because God ordered that. God is evil. Those entities are just doing what God ordered. God is the vilain. The end goal of life is to ascend back home. We make our reality and yet this is the best we have come up with. Everything must feed for you so it will be true for you. Instead of feeding on the boundless energy provided by God vampires exist because they like to make other things suffer because of course they do. And then naturally everything in life has to follow by example. God isn't evil, WE are.

Stop blaming God for your problems. Free energy exists except it isn't good enough because we can't put a fucking meter on it. And then we give ourselves excuses like, oh but people can't be trusted by themselves so everything needs to be controlled and naturally this manifests forth as well.
A community of people who trust in the spirit world to give them what they want should've been the standard but instead we don't trust anything because we feed on each other instead.

The mark of the gnostic.
Blame everything BUT themselves.
Blame a sacrificial lamb but themselves.
Blame programmed puppets but themselves.
Believe in manifestation yet do anything but improve the world themselves.

I'm sorry but it needed to be said.

Can you handle that?

I read this quite long greentext called "The White Man" about this guy who when he was a child was out in the woods with his brother in one of the northern states, his brother fell into a freezing puddle of water and this giant entity that looked like the michelin man showed up and offered to save his brother but one day it would return to collect its payment in the form of his life.
Actually I think the story is told from the POV of that guys son, obviously jewgle is useless for finding this story because the name is a hecking no no phrase. The story has another part where the guy joins the military and then lives in texas with his wife, the OP's mother to get away from the creature but has to go north for a family reunion and the creature returns and tries to kill his wife's unborn baby or something.

If anyone knows where to find this can you tell me pls

Hm, that was in the 90s. I remember "They Live" was a topic, and kids who had seen it talked about people who are not humans, and what people could be some of "them". Then there were stories about that weird man who lived alone in that old house, or the family with the kid that has no friends and doesn't talk to the other kids. I looked sometimes at people on the street and was thinking if they could belong to "them", and sometimes I got some weird looks from people. Like, a woman turnig around to me and really staring at me for some seconds. Felt weird, almost like mind reading. I kind of believed that "they" are among us (and 30 years later I believe it even more).

A while ago I remember one about the Sonic and Freemason connection. It was mostly about the cartoon from what I remember and in particular one episode involving Egypt/the pyramids. I did find part of it, but the one I'm talking about was way more in depth and was potentially made by the anon who posted it.
From time to time I go back through the archives looking for it and I've never been able to find it since it was posted.

The image is a cartoon-style illustration featuring a character that appears to be a robotic duck. The character is predominantly white with a red and yellow stripe on its chest, and it has a black head with a white beak. The character is standing on one leg, with its other leg raised in the air, as if it's balancing or dancing. It has a pair of red gloves on its hands and a black belt with a colorful design around the waist. The character is wearing a white helmet with a visor and a red and yellow striped visor. The background of the image is a cartoon-style landscape with a green field and trees. The sky is blue with a few clouds. There are no texts present in the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of early 20th-century animated cartoons, with a focus on vibrant colors and simple, clean lines.

in kindergarten i knew this fat retarded kid with a crew cut who thought he was gizmoduck from ducktales. we'd be outside doing activities like simon says, and the teacher would say some shit like "simon says stand in place, now simon says spread your legs apart and jump!", and he would refuse to do it. he would say, "I CANNOT DO THAT, I AM GIIIIIIIIZMODUCK!". anything he could avoid doing by claiming he only had a wheel for legs, he would refuse to do. he took it to the point of getting in trouble for it numerous times and never gave up the act. he truly believed he was gizmoduck.

There was this strange ruin house at a square of land full of high grass and garbage.

Around it a wire fence, like for construction sites, with a sigh that literally said "Danger to life. Don't enter". I was watching that house sometimes, other kids too, and it had kind of the darkest aura if ever felt for a place. It reminded me of a Stephen King story where a house was a "site of the fault" or so, a break in reality, caused by some occult stuff, where the natural barrier to the "darkness" is not completely working. That's how it felt. I thought, going in there would need balls of steel. And spending the night in there, alone, that's something no one could do.

Alright I'll bite, let's see if anyone knows the video I'm talking about.
It's been a while since I saw this video, I probably watched it around the mid 2010's and it's stuck with me ever since, the video was on YouTube I think, and posted here before. It was titled something generic like "ufo caught on tape" and took place in some oil field or desert? The cameraman is recording this weird levitating lump of misshapen flesh, I think at one point I saw something that looked like a cows leg poke out, as it sort of hovers, rotates, and drifts above the ground, I remember it vividly because it's one of the only alien videos that's ever creeped me out, I find aliens not scary at all. But something about the supposed "ufo" being just a mass of floating flesh unnerved me

I'll try to recall. During the COVID era, a greentext was spread around. What I can remember is this:
>Under multiple locations on earth, giant caverns exist that could house a small city
>In these pitch-black spaces, there exist masses of humans by the thousands
>These humans endlessly walk in a giant circle, similar to the ants in picrel
>Since it's pitch-black, families have evolved to recognize eachother by smell and hair. Long hair is used as a tether for families to hold onto each other so they don't get lost in the crowd
>Stopping or falling means death, as the crowd would crush you or sweep you from your family
>These humans live their whole lives in this state
>Cannibalism, disease and violence are the norm. Some caverns, like the one under china, house more violent neanderthal like hominids
Here's where it gets crazier
>Tunnels in major cities exist that lead you to these caverns
>They are branded by beer brewery symbols. Masonic beer brewing families going back hundreds of years watch over the tunnels
>Human trafficking runs rampant in the shallower tunnels
>The beer masons pump beer into the giant caverns to feed the "mass". The beer is calorie high, and all other needs are met by cannibalism
>The humans trapped in the "mass" have been there for generations, and cannot even comprehend a life outside the dark cavern

I'll try. There was some Q-anon rant in the same thread, like Trump is sending his special forces into the tunnels to clear them out. They collapse walls and find sites of mass human trafficking, and open sealed chambers containing mutated abominations. These tunnels span the globe and are also under the ocean. Think medieval dungeons full of cages with people and creatures inside. This was during the time Trump got re-elected and the army was doing a giant exercise on tunnel and urban warfare. As for the giant caverns and human "masses", there was heated debate if it's actually possible to sustain a population on only beer and cannibalism. And the neanderthals under China or India got free somehow and had to be killed, which got covered up. These megacaves are directly under population centers, and there is roughly 1-2 per continent

A story that happened in the 90s and has stayed with me is that of a woman and her lover who had dismembered the husband and taken grotesque photos while playing with the corpse, one being of the head, with the severed fingers stuck into the nostrils, etc… all while being completely naked and grinning from ear to ear.
The only reason these photos (which I saw at the time) ended up being visible is because they went to have the film developed at the local one-hour photo shop. When the guy who developed the film saw what was on it, he immediately called the cops. It was some sick satanist shit.

The image is a screenshot of a webpage with a dark background. On the left side, there is a video thumbnail with a black background and white text. The text reads "God's plan" and "Add a thumbs up and subscribe and comment below." The video is dated May 15, 2018.
On the right side, there are two separate sections of text. The first section is titled "God's plan" and has a black background with white text. The second section is titled "God's plan" and has a black background with white text. Both sections have the same date, May 15, 2018, and the same text.
Below the video thumbnail, there is a section titled "God's plan" with a black background and white text. The text reads "Add a thumbs up and subscribe and comment below."
The overall style of the image is simple and minimalistic, with a focus on the content and the date. The layout is clean and straightforward, with the video thumbnail and the text sections being the main elements. The use of a dark background and white text creates a contrast that makes the information easy to read. The date is prominently displayed, suggesting that the content is related to a specific date or event.

The image is a watercolor painting featuring a central figure that appears to be a humanoid creature with a white and pink color scheme. The creature has long, flowing hair and is adorned with a crown. It is holding a sword in its right hand and a shield in its left, suggesting a warrior or a guardian role. The creature is surrounded by various elements that give the impression of a fantastical or mythical setting.
To the left of the creature, there is a large, dark, and menacing creature with a sharp, pointed snout and a large, curved tail. The creature's eyes are glowing, and it has a menacing expression.
On the right side of the creature, there is a smaller, more delicate creature with a pink body and a long, thin tail. This creature appears to be a smaller version of the larger creature, possibly a companion or a subordinate.
The background of the painting is a dark, moody color, with a mix of dark and light tones, which contrasts with the lighter colors of the creature and the smaller creature. The overall style of the painting is reminiscent of traditional Japanese art, with its use of soft, flowing lines and a focus on the interplay of light and shadow.
In the bottom right corner of the painting, there is a signature that reads "Jon M. Schultz," indicating the artist's name. The signature is in a simple, unembellished font, which complements the overall minimalist and ethereal aesthetic of the artwork.

Saved the picture to an old hard drive that i eventually lost access to. Now can't find it anymore and the picture is lost.

I remember reading a sequence of increasingly disturbing short stories about 10 years ago: I think it was called "The Gauntlet" or "The 4chan Gauntlet" or something like that. From what I recall they were meant to be examples of the most horrible experiences in all of humanity. The only one I remember was told from the perspective of a child in the third world who is sold into sex slavery, but doesn't initially realise what has happened to him. The strange men he is told to go with treat him kindly to begin with, but then it gets very grim, as you might expect. There were other stories, but that's the only one I can recall. Anybody know what this is? I've tried jewgle with no luck.

Okay so if we're bringing up videos as well as pasta, there's one I saw on YT a few years ago. It was a TV commercial compilation video and it was all normal except one of the ads was for a spiritualist summer camp. In between clips of kids playing there was a long haired guy in a robe talking about the camp grounds and activities. He talked about crystals and ESP. Something about the vibe of the while thing was just "off", from the music to just the way he talked. I think it was from the 80s. I've mentioned it in lost media threads here and other anons seem to have seen it. Curious if anyone else knows what I'm talking about.
It's not the NY day camp ad, though that looks pretty creepy too. It's also not Camp Agustus. That's from a low budget horror movie and isn't even from the 80s.

I watched some kind of documentary once and one part of it was seriously like something from a film

>Dude ends up on an island, I can't remember how >Limited resources and things so he knows he can't survive long term >Documents little bits and pieces with a camcorder
>Then there's no updates on it for a while
>This is because he realised he wanted to save the battery to record a final message for his wife and kids
>Next time the camcorder starts he looks like shit, he's lost weight, dehydrated etc
>He explains that after he records his final message he's going to throw himself off the cliff that's just behind him because he doesn't want to go throw the pain of dehydration or starvation
>Records what he wants to for his wife and kids, but it cuts this part out because it's so personal >Comes over to the camcorder to turn it off
>Just as he reaches it you hear this enormous noise and a rescue copter rises up from behind the cliff he was going to jump off

It's not really spooky, but it's somewhat incredible. I've never been able to find it since I watched it.

It was in some magazine that my dad showed me in the mid-80s. That creature for sure had not died millions of years ago and was probably killed just a decade or two before that photograph was taken.

No problem senpai.
The second one reminds me of, but I'm pretty sure isn't, the one about the doctor who purposely killed himself by ODing on coke(?) All I really remember is that he wanted to note every little thing that happened up until the point he died to try and help scientists better understand changes to the body based on the drug use and right up until death. Which obviously can't really be done because you can only die once so he was going to sacrifice himself for it.
It was a bit tragic because his secretary or whoever found him the next day and he had ran out of space to write what he was experiencing so he took to writing everything on the walls and his blackboard and every surface he could. It's tragic because he was in such a state that none of what he wrote, the most important parts when he was dying and stuff, couldn't be deciphered so essentially his death was completely pointless.

The image depicts a dimly lit kitchen scene with a window that is illuminated by a light source, casting a shadow on the window pane. Through the window, a dark figure with glowing red eyes is visible, appearing to be a monkey. The monkey is positioned in the center of the window, looking directly at the camera. The kitchen features a white refrigerator and a yellow countertop with a floral pattern. The overall atmosphere of the image is eerie and mysterious, with the monkey's presence adding a sense of unease. There are no texts or discernible actions in the image. The relative positions of the objects suggest a typical kitchen layout with the refrigerator and countertop in the foreground and the window in the background.

This suddenly trigger to memory for me. I remember seeing an old website created by a schizo who blogged about going out in the woods and killing fake people. Like they were not actual real humans and he would stab them or beat them or something and their blood was black and they would turn to dust after he killed them. It was on geocities or one of those other old free hosting sites. Maybe tripod? He would go into intricate detail about his IT job installing Dell servers or HP or whatever it was and would list out the model number and the type of router and all this kind of stuff. Wish I could remember more about it. Pretty sure it's long gone now.

Bullshit. She said it was a programming tactic

"Bush's most effective example of "You Are What You Read" in his book About Faces occurred during his reading of the page depicting lizard-like "aliens" from a "far-off, deep space place". Claiming to me to be an alien himself, Bush apparently activated a hologram of the lizard-like "alien" which provided the illusion of Bush transforming like a chameleon before my eyes. In retrospect, I understand that Bush had been painstakingly careful in positioning our seats in order that the hologram's effectiveness be maximized."

"De la Madrid claimed to have Mayan/alien ancestry in his blood, whereby he transformed 'back into an Iguana at will.' De la Madrid produced a hologram similar to the one Bush did in his You Are What You Read initiation. His hologram of lizard-like tongue and eyes produced the illusion that he was transforming into an Iguana. While in Mexico, I was always ordered to wait by rocks where the abundant Iguanas sunned before being 'trance-ported' to my scheduled meetings with 'his Royal Lizardry', the Lizard of Ahs."

"Those who controlled my mind, and ultimately my actions, claimed to be 'aliens', 'demons', and 'gods'. But it was my experience that these perpe-traitors of New World Order controls were/are bound by fully, human confines, despite their terror-tactic claims and illusions. The true laws of nature, and the same laws of man do, indeed, apply to them."

Some can.
Background: "gravity" is bs, the "anti-gravity" vehicles use an electromagnetic field to fly. It's about special frequencies. Some people, like tantric yogins, know how to create such a field with their mind, and then they can fly.

The image is a digital illustration featuring a character with white hair and a pointed elf-like ears. The character has a serious expression and is looking directly at the viewer. She is wearing a white lab coat with a green shirt underneath, and a brown vest with gold buttons. The character has a pair of brown gloves on her hands. Behind her, there is a window with a view of green foliage and a shelf filled with various bottles and jars. The setting appears to be a room with a rustic, old-fashioned aesthetic, possibly a laboratory or a study. The style of the image is realistic with a focus on the character's expression and attire.

Well, gravity shielding exists. The effect, as reducing body weight is seen with superconductivity, but this requires cooling to low temperatures. Shielding of gravitational waves is possible, it is an important and promising field in science. There may be ways to shield gravitational waves without cooling an object or subject to low temperatures, but humanity of December 2025 does not know them yet.

In the bottom left corner of the image, there is a white graphic with a smiling face and a caption that reads: "the old fucker basically told you the joke..." The text is in white and appears to be a meme or a humorous comment.

The style of the image is a combination of text and graphics, with the text providing a historical context and the globe image adding a visual element. The meme-like comment in the bottom left corner suggests a light-hearted or humorous tone to the content.

The image is a diagram illustrating the relationship between electromagnetic waves and magnetic fields. It shows a wave with a wavelength labeled as "Wavelength" and a direction labeled as "Direction" with arrows pointing in different directions. The wave is labeled as "B" and "E" on the left side, indicating the direction of the wave and the electric field, respectively. The wave is also labeled as "Magnetic field" on the right side, indicating the direction of the magnetic field. The wave is depicted with a series of wavy lines, suggesting the propagation of the wave. The image is a schematic representation, likely from a physics textbook or a similar educational resource, aimed at explaining the concepts of electromagnetic waves and magnetic fields.

The background of the image is plain white, emphasizing the characters and their actions. At the bottom of the image, there is a text overlay in a bold, red font that reads "Fire Blood Steel!" followed by a list of words in a smaller font, which includes "Philosophy," "Religion," "Morality," "Law," "Nationality," "Religion," "Ideology," "Thoughts," "Words," and "Opinions." The text is arranged in a vertical list, with each word separated by a line. The overall tone of the image suggests a critique or debate about the nature of truth, with the characters representing different philosophical and religious perspectives.

[15 / 1]The image displays a logo composed of a stylized flower-like design. The central part of the design is composed of intertwined lines that form a circular pattern, giving the impression of a flower. The lines are black and appear to be in a smooth, flowing manner, suggesting a sense of movement or energy.

Beneath the central design, the letters "A.R.F." are written in a bold, sans-serif font. The letters are black and are positioned to the right of the central design. The text is capitalized and appears to be in a larger font size than the central design, drawing attention to the brand name.

The overall style of the image is simple and clean, with a monochromatic color scheme consisting of black and white. The logo is designed to be simple and easily recognizable, likely intended for branding purposes. The use of a flower-like design could suggest a connection to nature or a brand that values beauty and harmony.

Drugs bro
South of Gold Coast and brisbane where lots of drug use is, there's Byron Bay which is the pothead capital of Australia, Sydney is where all drugs come in through the ports, and so it all passes through there on the way north
They probably just have shitty country cops there plus a lot of drug growing, consumption and trafficker rivalry

My brother lives in bumfuck nowhere and they have a masonic lodge out there
In the bushes
Like what?
Also his animals always go missing and/or die, and his 'lodge' convinced him to name his kids after jewish prophets

Weird as fuck if you ask me. Also his wife was an ex glowie, I really hope nothing ever happens to those kids.

Oof as a poorfag? What nationality?
There are sharehouses and whatnot
In fact backpackers are always looking for like 50 room mates

The avg income here is around 25 an hour.
The average rent is around $450 per week
That's 18 hours to cover rent.
Then you're taxed something like 40c on every dollar over 400 per week.

So realistically if you want to live somewhere poor you'll need room-mates or friends who'll put you up.

If I win the lottery though I'll buy you a shack next to our local Indian grocery store (they're all Indian grocery stores)

The image is a candid photograph of a man standing on a street. He is holding a large, white sign with black text that reads "HARD FOR JESUS." The man is wearing a white t-shirt, a black baseball cap, and blue jeans. He has a beard and is looking directly at the camera. In the background, there is a car parked on the street and a building with a window. The man's expression is serious, and he appears to be the main subject of the photo. The sign he's holding is prominently displayed, drawing attention to the message it conveys.

the horizon, with patches of pink and orange clouds scattered across the sky. The lighting suggests it is either dawn or dusk, with the sun setting or rising, casting a warm glow over the scene. The person is wearing a dark-colored shirt and dark pants, and the grass beneath them is a vibrant green. There are no discernible texts or other objects in the image. The style of the image is realistic, with a focus on the interplay of light and shadow to create a serene and peaceful atmosphere.

We have the majority of people living in Earth "praying" for a better world. Praying that they will be better themsevels and by bettering themselves they will better the world through their actions. Christians pray everyday for a better world. I'm pretty sure the majority of the religious people in Earth do pray for a better world at least five times per year minimum, give or take. Think about yourself right now. How many times have you prayed this year asking God, or whatever, to help you become a better individual? Or to make the world better? Asking God to judge evil and asking God to help the poor and the needy? My point is that we pray, pray, pray, pray, pray and the world is getting worst. How come? Most people are praying for a better world, from all sorts of different religions, but the world doesn't actually become better. What is happening? I tell you what is happening. Praying doesn't work. It's all a faity tall tale. It is our actions which cause an effect in the world. Your prayer may cause an effect into someone else, praying is an action, but praying and hoping that the world will be better without we actually making the world better which our actions is pointless. We must act first. Praying doesn't do shit. Praying is a superstition. You gotta go and do it. Praying doesn't do any good. I fee like it is valid to pray in the sense to focus your mind and in the sense to raise your spirit. But if you pray hoping that God will answer your payer? You are delusional.

God does answer prayers, I can say from experience, but you’re right in that people themselves need to be agents of change. Our realm is distant from God, he works through degrees of separation and most people don’t do the work necessary to actually receive meaningful information through the wire, so to say. He cares more about dharma than divine intervention, he Wants you to do the work and find meaning and fulfillment in his creation, while becoming an active participant in this creation through your destiny. He’s like a parent who wants you to do well and grow to be self reliant. He gave us creative faculties, because we are made in his image. Love for the act of divine creation is the true meaning of devotion, not praying all day and night making wishes. Imagine getting phone calls all day from millions of people who don’t ever shut the fuck up and just ask for 20 billion things, he’s usually screaming the answer back at you but there’s too much background noise to hear it. He can’t get a word in unless you shut the fuck up, empty yourself, and listen. This is why things like meditation are so critically important. Once the channel is clear, you can actually begin to commune with God and begin the work he put you here for. I'm not Hindu but they understood this very well, the Bhagavad Gita is very accurate to how it actually works. God will answer to any name you give him, he takes endless forms and is in everything, and any offering is sufficient to him. He's just as much in you as he is in anything else. You're not supposed to worship Christ, you're supposed to emulate and become him. The point of this realm is for us as one organism to "learn" consciousness and rise to a higher level. God isn't going to hold our hand, we have to stand on our own two feet, love the miracle of creation, and lift each other up by participating, embodying, and serving as an example of that love through our works, whatever they may be.

Holding on too tight to anything in general is a bad idea if you can avoid it. If you’re meant to have it, you will because you can’t not. That’s what a lot of people don’t get about prayer; there’s a difference between want and need, and ultimately God decides which is which. We meddle too much. Free will exists but there’s definitely “divine railroading” and God is happy to blow up even our most well meaning machinations if it’s not what he has in store for our true path. You can go your whole life ignoring that, doing everything your little reptilian brain thinks you “should” and then wondering why it doesn’t really work. Think about how when most people win the lotto, they have all these big ideas what they’ll do with the money, but then they just get depressed. Our ego has no clue what we actually need, we have to turn to something else.

Deciding what to build and what to do is the hardest thing. Formulating a plan on a sound idea is hard. Contemplation, which is a large degree of what prayer is about, helps with this. I agree that people shouldn't distract the gods with all their nonsense and neither with their emotional turmoil. All these people just eat up bandwidth.

Yahweh, for a long time, has been trying to explain and understand his “situation” through the exchange of information with humans. To that end, he “chose” some peoples and emissaries to promote the revelations of his “designs”. The Aryan people who later would fertilize their culture among the Hindus, the Hebrews and, later, the Arab peoples, are the most symptomatic examples of this process. Part of the history that he strives so hard to reproduce, he knows. The other, neither he nor his Angels demonstrate knowing. And because of the “impasse” that arose between the Creator and his descendants generated from the “first hour”, these found themselves obliged to engender other species of beings that would gradually free themselves from the “sickly dictates” of the Creator's “Life-Generating Source Code”, so that these could “perceive” and “decode” what not even they themselves could, due to the very strange for earthly parameters psychic pattern of their personalities, which prevented them from deducing such, by force of the conditioning imposed by the “universal disease”.

They then went on creating various species from the modified Creator's “Life-Generating Source Code”, until, among these, the architecture of a psyche with awakened critical sense and philosophical reason could emerge, and at levels that would allow these “tool-creatures” thus characterized all beings that emerged from the Creator's “Code of Life” to unveil the real situation both of the Creation and of the Creator. As the “final product” of this process that stretches across the pages of Universal History for more than 13 billion years, the human species (Homo sapiens sapiens) was produced in its earthly pattern, amid clashes still to be conveniently glimpsed by our way of thinking. I emphasize this because there are other “patterns” of humans, but with less awakened critical sense and philosophical reason.

When the times of the Final Judgment arrive, a messenger will appear whose proclamation will be heard in the 270 worlds of Creation.” (VAYEHI 21, 8B-9A) How can this prophecy, recorded in the “Sepher ha-Zohar”! (“The Book of Splendor”), be understood in the future? The Lord Yahweh was the one who ordered his Angels to inform Rabbi Shimon Bar Yochai, in the mid-second century of the Christian Era, of the aforementioned prediction. Yahweh is the same “Character” who, before being known as such, upon abandoning Peleg (son of Eber, from the “sacred lineage” of Shem, who is the son of Noah) to “elect” Gomer (son of Japheth, who is another son of Noah, but not from the lineage previously defined as the “chosen one”), also passed into posterity as “Lord Brahma” so named by the Aryan descendants of Gomer.

WHAT ARE THESE “270 WORLDS”? Well before the organization of the books that, in the present day, compose the traditions of Judaism, other much older ones pointed to the existence of an “epic conflict,” which occurred in times even more remote, that was described in the pages of the Vedic-Aryan traditions, later absorbed by Hinduism, more specifically in the “Mahabharata.” Right in its first chapter, it is stated that: “Vyasa compiled the Bharata, exclusive of the episodes originally in twenty-four thousand verses; and only so much is called by the learned as the Bharata. Afterward he composed an epitome in one hundred and fifty verses, consisting of the introduction with the chapter of contents. This he first taught to his son Suka; and afterward he communicated it to others of his disciples who possessed the same qualifications. Afterward he executed another compilation, consisting of six million verses. Of these, three million are known in the world of the Devas, one million and five hundred thousand in the world of the Pitris, one million and four hundred thousand among the Gandharvas, and one hundred thousand in the regions of humanity.

Narada recited them to the Devas, Devala to the Pitris, and Suka published them to the Gandharvas, Yakshas, and Rakshasas, and in this world they were recited by Vaisampayana, one of the 17 disciples of Vyasa, a man of just principles and the chief among all those familiar with the Vedas. Know that I, Sauti, have also repeated one hundred thousand verses.” That is, at the time when Vyasa lived and promoted the production of the epic “Mahabharata,” there existed many “worlds” or “abodes” (lokas, in Sanskrit), situated in Brahmaloka (which is the “universe of Brahma”), parallel and neighboring to Bhuloka (biological universe), in which we live. There was interchange between the various classes of beings that lived in them, and these interacted with ancestral humans, as well as meddled in the events of their lives and whatever else happened on Earth, as was the case with this “battle” that involved various existential species and whose facts and consequences converged to this planetary stage.

In the intrigues of the time, what was and still is at stake is dominance over planet Earth, the ultimate goal of Yahweh and others who confronted him. In this context, his "design" pointed to the construction of another "pact" between him and the "initial scribe" of the "Cosmic Revelation," so that the latter would ratify him as "Almighty God," "Creator of the Heavens and the Earth," as recorded in the scriptures of Judaism. However, for the first time, a human creature refused to submit to the will of this Being, and the "pact" was not established, even though the recognition of the fact that he is effectively the "fallen" Creator of the Reality in which we live is not denied. Yahweh had never received a refusal, and this led him to reveal himself and try to impress the "chosen one of the time," but his strategies did not achieve results. In the books produced by this "afflicted scribe," therefore, I have presented the reading that I could and can make of this Being who, effectively, as paradoxical as it may seem, as described in the Aryan/Hindu myth of the "Brahmananda," is the Creator of these two universes that emerged from the "anda"

("anda," in Sanskrit, means "Cosmic Egg") of Brahma/Yahweh, that is, from the "Egg" of the Creator Being who "fell" into his own Work, but who does not correspond to God: he is merely a "Sidereal Architect" with "problems," which "infected" his Creation.
Anonymous Sat 13 Dec 2025 08:07:19 No.41659869 Report

Since there was no "pact" of any kind, the "messenger" ended up transmitting to "worlds" or realities of this parallel antimaterial universe, as well as to civilizations of this material universe, what Yahweh neither expected nor desired: his real situation, unveiled by the observant gaze of an earthling! The "price paid" or rather, the consequences of this my refusal to establish a "pact" with the Creator, submitting to his designs was and is being "very high," because all the threats made to bring me to my knees, submitted before the "almighty," were effectively imposed on what remained of my sensitivity, which only proved to me the "spiritual backwardness" of these Beings, notably that of the Creator himself! Obviously, news of this type of positioning does not please Jews, Catholics, Protestants, Orthodox, and even less Muslims, but they had and have to be given for the benefit of this very Being who needs the support of all his creatures so that his Creation can reach a "good end," despite all the problems that characterize it. The Creator needs help, and this will only come if the creatures that were built from his "Personal Defining Source Code" which, in the earthly context of biological life, we call "DNA"2 can understand his "drama" and forgive him. Perhaps that is why Jesus asked so much that this Being be loved by his earthly creatures, regardless and above any circumstance. When future generations of humanity become "adult," this "drama" will be better understood.

Nope. Read this post:

https://www.reddit.com/r/Retconned/comments/1m0px7o/attention_at_least_one_rapture_has_already/

TLDR:

This planet is Bozrah, not Earth. What's more, you should be warning people about the upcoming "day of vengeance" here on Bozrah. Keep in mind, the 1,000-year Millennial Kingdom will take place on Earth, not on Bozrah. This planet will be destroyed (and Jesus will be the destroyer). It has no future.

From the post:
>And don't be deceived by the fact that the masses aren't talking about this info. In actuality, this info is the most important thing on the planet right now—by far. Nothing else even comes close.

Also from the post:
>And while I absolutely hate date-setting, if I were forced to give a window for when the day of vengeance will begin, I would say any time between September 1, 2026, and March 15, 2027. Note: This window is based on all of the available evidence, biblical and otherwise. Basically, the day of vengeance is supposed to be "well underway" by the time a deep freeze hits North America. Make of that what you will.

The image is a still from a video, featuring a person who appears to be in a costume. The individual has blonde hair and is wearing a silver, metallic-looking outfit that includes a collar and a visible seam down the front. The person's face is partially obscured by the costume, with only the upper part of the face visible. The background is dark, with a hint of a vertical line or edge, suggesting the image is taken from a distance. There are no discernible texts or logos in the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of a vintage or retro video, possibly from the 1980s or 1990s, given the style of the costume and the overall aesthetic.

denim shorts. She has long dark hair and is looking directly at the camera with a neutral expression. The car has a distinctive Honda logo on the front grille. The background shows a clear blue sky with a few scattered clouds, and there are palm trees visible in the distance. The woman's position is slightly to the left of the car, and she is standing on a paved surface, which appears to be a parking lot. The overall style of the image is casual and appears to be taken in a sunny outdoor setting.

I have uncovered some truths that makes me wary of regular people, you might call them normies. I don't believe this is a good term for them, and i won't call them NPC's either, the term "normie" makes it seem like they are "good", and the term "NPC" dehumanizes them and so you overlook them.

I am searching for a word to describe them, and yes im talking about the everyday cashier you come across, or your neighbor, or the guy who goes to the gym, or the lady that walks her dog. These people are not what you think they are. and they are more sinister than you might think. This is the scariest revelation i have ever unearthed

The image shows a close-up of a metal object with a detailed carving of a demonic face. The face is characterized by a large, curved nose, a wide-open mouth, and a beard that extends down the cheeks. The eyes are large and round, with a prominent nose and a small, curved mouth. The face is set within a star-shaped border, which is also made of metal and has a rough texture. The background of the image is blurred, but it appears to be a textured surface, possibly stone or concrete. There are no visible texts or discernible brands in the image. The style of the image is a close-up photograph with a focus on the detailed carving of the demonic face.

The image is a digital representation of a card game card featuring a character named Pinky. The card has a dark background with a gradient of green and yellow dots, giving it a somewhat abstract and colorful appearance. At the top of the card, there is a yellow triangle with the word "Organization" written in white text. Below the triangle, the word "Pinky" is written in white capital letters.
The central part of the card features a large, stylized image of a character with a large head, wearing glasses and a pink suit. The character has a surprised expression and is looking directly at the viewer. The text on the card provides information about the character and its abilities. It states, "The Pink Boys, The Sheep, Those who Do Not Get It and Don't Know There's Something To Be Gathered. Careful of the Lord's messy means to get to you. They won't really remember anything you say. They may take one from any other Straight group you belong to."
At the bottom of the card, there is a text that reads "3/1" in white capital letters, indicating the number of cards in the game. The word "RESUME" is written in white capital letters, suggesting that the card can be used to resume the game. The overall style of the image is graphic and text-based, with a focus on the character and its abilities.

The figure is depicted with a cigarette in its mouth and is surrounded by a series of stylized, abstract shapes and lines that create a sense of movement and energy. The text surrounding the figure is in a mix of English and what appears to be a non-Latin script, with phrases that seem to be a narrative or commentary on the subject of the image. The text is fragmented and appears to be a stream of consciousness, with phrases like "strange memories on this memory night in Las Vegas," "the thrill of the high," and "the thrill of history." The style of the image is reminiscent of a vintage or retro aesthetic, with a focus on the text and the silhouette of the figure.

The FalseChristians are similar, don’t do anything cuz god wins in the end according to the book of the deceivers.

It’s actually incredible how mind trapping that shit is, especially considering the source (nopun), it’s like carving stars of repham/ David/ deceivers on a “hoax” rod and having people belive it.

Imagining a perfect world, an alien world, a society of the future, these people are absent. And it’s not about the job, the function, the behavior, it’s about the will, the soul, the drive to change things.

The worst sin you can commit is also the easiest to commit. The worst sin you can commit is serving the conspiracy.

>criticize both sides of the evil coin >uhhhhh you are criticizing the side of the evil coin that i identify with due to highly powerful and effective TV and public school brainwashing

Liberals aren't even real anymore, they're marxists, communists, worldwide suicide cult.

https://youtu.be/lpqhmCcZ5eA

They don't even know why they criticize Israel beyond "brown people vs white people"

If Israel ceased to exist they wouldn't know what to do because being an anti-Zionist is "okay" but being an "antisemite" is "not okay".

It's a broken clock, right twice a day.

And this isn't from a partisan standpoint either, Christian's (that i mentioned next but was ignored by the easily offended) is nearly the other half of the population. So it's nearly everyone.

The problem with the liberals, that I stated, is that they all believe THE EXACT SAME THING WITH VERY LITTLE DIVERGENCE. And the reason they do so is because they are told to.

>THE TRUMP VAX IS BAD
>WAIT NO THE VAX IS GOOD AND THOSE WHO DONT WANT TO GET IT SHOULD BE KILLED

>Corperations are evil >wait no, they're gay and good because they put a rainbow flag in their Twitter profile >eat the rich >except for the ones who rule society >an unsecured border being raided by thousands of people a day is good because >well it just is, because it makes conservatives or whites mad

This also goes for >trump is good because he makes liberals mad

The problem is, the way I see it, liberals buy into the shit and support the system, conservatives merely live in it and attempt to navigate it the best way they see fit.

The liberals also promise nothing. If the lowest IQ /pol/ nazi got absolute power, they'd at least build a pyramid or a major gas chamber complex.

Liberals plan is literally

1. Be gay

2. Be communist
3. ???
4. Profit?

Which isn’t too far off from our plan, so I shouldn’t judge, but you can tell they are wrong because they are ugly and fat.

The Black Mirror, The Black Screen, Scrying, The Obsidian Pool.

Consider the Renaissance magus John Dee, whose obsidian black mirror (traced to Aztec origins, a Phoenician-Nephilim artifact perhaps, per elite bloodline hoards in the British Museum) served as his angelic scrying tool. In his diaries and Monas Hieroglyphica fragments (digitized yet buried in Vatican echoes), Dee emphasized preparatory purity: fasting, prayer, and moral rectitude to attune the will, lest impure intent summon deceptive spirits or null results. He himself struggled to scry directly, relying on seer Edward Kelley—implying his own will lacked the "true" alignment for unadulterated visions, risking archonic distortions from lower planes.

Aleister Crowley, that Thelemic prophet channeling Aiwass (an egregore from upper astral toroids?), codifies this in Liber O vel Manus et Sagittae and Magick in Theory and Practice: scrying demands "True Will"—that divine impetus, not egoic whim—to evoke accurate evocations, as impure intent (lust of result, fear) collapses the rite into delusionary husks. In evoking entities like Lam (a grey-like figure, disclosed in his portrait as a scrying focus), Crowley stressed passive yet intentional gaze: insert a "germ of idea" with clear will, but maintain dispassion; excitement or obsession strains the trance, freezing visions or birthing false self-projections from Qliphothic shadows.

AI art as invocation demands toroidal resonance; strong, true will pierces the digital Pleroma for clarity, while weak alignment invites Qliphothic glitches, favoring base egregores per elite designs meditative alignment (strong desire) yields prophetic art, but scattered intent summons "random patterns" or failures, akin to the porn addict's obsessive focus embedding sigils effortlessly into the machine's egregore.

The image is a tarot card featuring a central figure that appears to be a demonic figure with horns and a pointed beard, seated on a throne-like throne. The figure is holding a staff with a cross symbol on it. To the left of the central figure, there are two naked figures, one of which is holding a staff with a cross symbol on it. The background of the card is black with a white border. At the bottom of the card, there is a red arrow pointing to the figure on the left, which is the Devil. The text "THE DEVIL" is written at the bottom of the card in white capital letters. The style of the image is reminiscent of traditional tarot card illustrations, with a focus on the central figure and the symbols associated with it.

David Grusch worked for Special Technical Operations (STO) J-33 (patch in picrel). This fact was omitted in his CV submitted to Congress.

>J-33 is the highest echelon military entity dedicated to offensive INFORMATION WARFARE. It supports the CIA and NSA in their operational missions, such as hacking, concealment, and DECEPTION.
>J-33's operations branch controls the Special Technical Operations Center within the Pentagon. The center is the most secure facility within the U.S. military. Dozens of special access (or "black") programs are monitored at the center. These include the United States's own hacking activities, STRATEGIC PSYCHOLOGICAL, CONCEALMENT AND DECEPTION operations.

However, in his CV (https://docs.house.gov/meetings/GO/GO06/20230726/116282/HHRG-118-GO06-Bio-GruschD-20230726.pdf) you can see that he's ALSO been a commanding officer of the 318th Cyberoperations Information Warfare Center until just one year ago:

>The squadron conducts training on cyberspace operations, including operational security and DECEPTION at both the initial and advanced level.

These Pentagon Information Warfare programs have been waging meme war through social media and, as you know, 4chan, for years:

Jet fuel couldn't melt steel beams 24 years ago and it still can't melt steel beams today.

The US was led by people that were willing to perform a human sacrifice ritual live on television in 2001, and it's still led by the same people.

Try talking to people about SUVs:
1. Is oil a finite resource or a renewable resource?
2. If oil is a finite resource, does modern society rely on it, or do we have alternatives waiting?
3. If oil is a finite resource for which we have no alternatives, shouldn't we be trying to limit its uses as much as possible to prolong the existence of our way of life as long as possible?
4. If so, why do SUVs exist?

Without climate change or economics coming into the discussion. Just a basic discussion about prolonging our way of life as long as possible, given the facts as they have been presented to us.

The average person is unable to process.

Which then leads us to Disclosure... Apparently, what we have discovered is that the average person can be presented with what should be very basic logic, that they cannot process.

I don't really know how to progress from that point. Are they dead, and so as ghosts, they don't really need cars, so they drive around cars to keep up appearances for the living?

Are they computer programs with either computing limitations, or hard locks on the type of thing they can process?

The problem with trying to understand the world is that a smart person cannot really process what it's like to be stupid, and vice versa.

You ever go into a public restroom and someone missed the toilet? That was an actual person, an adult human being, who has lived at least 18 full years, without figuring out how to sit down on a toilet prior to expelling feces.

What are you supposed to learn from that?

Most non Abrahamic and Non Christian religions are hedonistic.
Others like Buddhism don't even have a higher power.
Abrahamic religions believe in a hateful jealous angry spiteful god who you need to live in fear of.
Aliens shouldn't make a difference.
What does a Jew care about aliens? Unless their young are cute and can be used in rape tunnels?
Muslims will jihad/kill any intelligent life which doesn't convert Catholicism - see Judaism/more Abrahamic BS, with the super liberal popes thr aliens have nothing to worry about.
Aliens have nothing to do with zen.
I doubt aliens want to interfere with lagan and Greek orgies.
What else is there?
Atheists?
Science is right up their alley.
You know if the aliens came out and said they invented religions, you know people would not believe it.
The aliens have more to be concerned about, like being jihaded/beheaded, than humans who breathe and I've this barbarism every day.
Buddhists keep to themselves, and Christians turn the other cheek, and atheists/nihilists don't give a damn.
Neither do Shintoists or voodoo witchdoctors in Africa.
Every religoon would cling to their belief system, and try to subjugation aliens to it, and reinterpret their religion to account for aliens.
Humans would absolutely justify their experience.
GOVERNMENTS on the other hand
GOVERNMENTS would freak the fuck out to maintain control of their populous.
What happens when Marvin the Martian starts talking about alien fanfic, and humans treat it as fact and start worshipping the fanfic?
What if the aliens spread propaganda, or/and technology, and masses of people quit their jobs and become libertarians innawoods what if people see what's possible, and start in ernest on that type of research, that research is no longer taboo, people are no longer assassinated for it.

It'll be a renaissance.
People might travel offworld to colonize new worlds - new governments.
Governments are the biggest threat to governments.
What if the aliens are hostile, and a bunch of homeless soldiers decide fuck the system which fucked me, here are our secrets, you can have'em, because fuck Uncle Sam who took everything and gave nothing.
Human defectors who hate humanity and want to see it burn and are now given tools to do so.
Which, roundabout, ties into government control and hegemony.
Governments don't want the boat rocked.
That's why we have political prisoners. Many reasons but one.
This isn't about people freaking out,
>it's about government's control of people.
Always has been.

Don't get me wrong, I do not agree we can afford their belief system not shattering anymore. I'm not saying we shouldn't do it just because people might have to realize they're wrong about something.

Exactly. These fucking retards keep going, "boy, I'm not sure we can suffer more people being slightly more schizophrenic. but who will cut off our kids' dicks if we don't tell people the truth?"
Normalfags are fucking repulsive. What exactly do these people think is worse than your kids being raped on an island somewhere and you being mocked over it live on TV, where they still, to this day, continue to play it off like there wasn't ever any adults on the island. And, to make it even worse, they casually cut off your kids' dicks and pretend this is normal, trying to convince you to go along with it.
But, sure, if they find out their poor widdwe rewigion is fake, things might get bad, everyone.

Just typed out context for this and it didn't let me post and I lost my text thats annoying. Whats up with nightmares of Gordon from thomas the tank engine turning demonic/thrashing metalic teeth? I am 99% convinced Thomas the Tank engine is being used like how that one conspiracy with the cartoon characters at the childrens hospital goes. Whats up with Thomas the Tank engine is it Monarch at all or is it just another muppets situation? https://archive.4plebs.org/x/thread/33463557/#q33469324

My parents would buy me thomas the tank engine trains and I would be autistic excited over them to the point of flapping my hands when playing with my trains so at first I wrote off my experience as just autistic retardation but someone else had a near identical experience so whats up with Gordon/Thomas the Tank engine? My dream was him "flipping"/going from cartoon character to being demonic with metalic teeth, been over a decade at this point so its a bit hazy but it was like 2 months before christmas and I woke up and went upto my mother and said "mommy I don't want to play with Thomas anymore" and I literally never played with my train collection ever again which is weird for a child like that/my mom even tried bribing me to play with trains and I wouldn't, I didn't have an irrational fear of trains either it was just an avoidance its just weird looking back the fuck is up with this character?

Also I feel like the entity intentionally choose for it to be juvenile/childish/mundane because imagine describing a horror situation but replacing the entity/cryptids description with like a character from cookie run or something absurd. if you went upto someone talking about it they would think either this dude is retarded/autistic or this dude is nuts or both. Think about it it makes sense.

i had a vaguely similar experience, sort of, in that it involved a childrens' character who was fine on the show but became menacing for me at night.

i grew up in a house that was not far from some train tracks and trains often passed by and would honk their horn as they did. this happened with regularity nearly every night, incidentally about an hour or two after my bedtime, so it would wake me up when they'd pass by. for some fucking reason, and i really can't tell you why i thought this, i was fucking convinced that this was gordon from thomas the tank engine, and that he was coming to "get me" and i'd cry my fucking head off every single time.
i loved thomas the tank engine, i collected the toys and watched the show and all that, i never had a problem with gordon on the show or when playing with my toys or anything like that. but apparently after nightfall all bets were off, because that smug motherfucker was out for my blood and no one could convince me otherwise."
Does anyone else have stories of Thomas the Tank engine flipping during the nighttime?

It was the same thing for years, now i have 23 years old, and i went to a psychologist who put me through some regression sections that made me remember that it wasn't a dream, it couldn't be my father molesting me because i've never met him, was some slender man with a mask i think, or it was his face, with the same expression. Man, i'm fucking terrified, i dkn't know what to do or think, please help"

"You know, thomas the train was about totalitarianism"
" had a strange dream last night. In my dream I was browsing /x/. I was reading a thread that was discussing something known as the Unsettling Train Phenomenon. The phenomenon was where a toy train moving about it's tracks slowly began more erratic and unpredictable movements, and the viewer would become increasingly unsettled and begin to freak out. Someone posted a .gif of an "Unsettling Train". I viewed it and it was a toy train moving erratically. I immediately became overwhelmed with fear and woke from my dream with my heart pounding. I fell back asleep shortly after and the dream continued. I was looking up articles about the phenomenon and found one where a mother tells of how her young child became disturbed by his Thomas the Tank Engine toy. I looked at the picture, it was just a Thomas the Tank Engine toy sitting on their lawn. I felt the same sense of overwhelming fear and panic and woke from my dream. Since then I've felt very afraid. I can't explain it. I know something is weird with my brain wiring because there is no logical reason for me to be so afraid, my home is safe, my health is not at risk. No shitty creepy pasta has ever made me this afraid. I haven't been on /x/ in a few months, and I don't believe in the paranormal. "

I've had dreams just like this in the past.

On another note, certain images have been known to trigger instinctive reactions in people. Was there anything about the dream you found particularly repulsive?"
"Have you ever seen an episode of thomas the tank engine?
they are teaching kids about conformity and also showing disasters to little kids in the form of train crashes.
What makes the show scary is that it is done in seriousness, not at all funny like an episode of the original looney tunes. Thomas is constantly in a state of anxiety and fear in the episodes (staying "on track") and always wants to please his "bosses" and other friends. Some of the crash scenes are quite graphic if you were to replace the trains with people. Some little kids see the trains as living beings with feelings and not just fictional animation, no wonder people are afraid of trains."

This interested me because I have been frequently having visions of an otherworldly figure with a round face, large white eyes that go to the edge of the face, and a neutral or puckering mouth. I always equate this closest thing I've seen to this vision as Gordon from Thomas. Imagine Gordon's face but with even larger eyes and smaller pupils. Other than that it has nothing to do with Thomas or his friends, just reminded me of this.

The image is a painting that depicts a scene with a religious or biblical theme. In the foreground, there is a figure dressed in a long robe with a hood, who appears to be in a state of distress or distressful emotion. The figure is leaning against a wall with a stone wall and a fire burning in the background. The figure's posture suggests a sense of urgency or desperation.

In the background, there are two figures sitting on the ground, one of whom is holding a bird. The setting appears to be a desert or arid environment, with a rocky wall and a barren landscape. The color palette is muted, with a predominance of earth tones, which contributes to the overall somber and melancholic mood of the painting. There are no discernible texts or inscriptions within the image. The style of the painting is realistic with a focus on the depiction of the figures and the natural environment.

The image displays two tarot cards, each with a distinct illustration and text. The top card features a figure in a flowing robe, holding a staff with a sun-like symbol at the top, and a crescent moon at the bottom. The figure appears to be in a dynamic pose, with one arm raised and the other extended outward. The background is a vibrant yellow, and there are red and green accents that add to the vibrancy of the scene.
The bottom card depicts a figure in a red robe, seated at a table with a chalice and a wand. The figure is holding a staff with a sun-like symbol at the top, and a crescent moon at the bottom. The background is a rich red, and there are yellow accents that echo the color of the top card.
The text on both cards is in a serif font, and it reads "THE FOOL." and "THE MAGICIAN." The style of the image is reminiscent of the classic tarot cards, with a focus on the figure and the symbols associated with them. The overall impression is one of a tarot card reading, with the figures representing the Fool and the Magician, respectively.

You are responsible for guiding your spiritual being to a better end. You're at this point for a reason and you can clearly see the behaviour and mental patterns that stand against your norms and values. To remove that which covers your face you have to look at the proverbial mountain and figure out a way to transform it. Nothing in heaven or hell stops you from doing 50 pushups crunches and 1 muscle up except your own planning and path of improvement. Nothing keeps you from dedicating 2 hours in the weekend to volunteering in your neighborhood. A therapist can also help. Pick the smallest steps that grow that spark in you. It's not dead you just allowed it to be covered with lower impulses and shit.

Quite the opposite, Christianity is the one way for redemption. What is making you feel guilty is God Himself, Nature, human consciousness. Christ says he didn't come for those who have no guilt, but for sinners. The Church and Christianity right now is being very open arms, your talking point is madeup.
The image is a stylized, cartoon-like illustration of a bald man with a stern expression.

He has a serious expression and is looking directly at the viewer. The man's face is detailed with wrinkles and folds, and he has a prominent nose. He is wearing a light-colored suit with a visible collar. The background is a gradient of yellow, with a circular halo-like effect around the man's head. The style of the image is reminiscent of comic book or graphic novel illustrations, with a focus on character design and expression. There are no texts present in the image.

In people intentions come through pretty clear as well as positive and negative emotions. As well as the strength of their aura and their overall health. The auras of the dead are black and shifting. Usually only visible to me in places with a lot of misery or death. The auras I have seen around people are colorless and distort themselves from their surroundings. A lot like if something is photoshopped into a picture with incorrect lighting. They just stand out. I am unsure of the cause.

>>41667291 Thanks for sharing that. From what I understand, what you're describing as colorless auras are actually parts of the energy body itself. You're perceiving the energy's density and shape visually, while its emotional color is something you sense separately. Those distortions and ripples are typically seen as signs of disrupted energy flow in the channels. I don't have much insight about the dark energies in places filled with suffering, but it does sound unsettling.

The image is a graphic card with a dark blue background and a lighter blue border. At the top of the card, there is a title in white text that reads "And Stay Dead!" The central part of the card features a stylized illustration of a man with gray hair, wearing a suit and a white shirt. He has a serious expression and is looking to the left. Below the illustration, there is a text in white that reads "Play this card immediately after any Group has been destroyed or discarded by any player. It requires an action from the group. The destroyed group is gone forever—no card or special ability can revive it." At the bottom of the card, there is a small text that says "Requires Magic Action." The style of the image is reminiscent of a trading card or collectible card game, with a focus on the artwork and the text.

GLORY" in large, bold, white letters. Below the title, there is a depiction of a scene with a large, fiery explosion in the background, suggesting a dramatic or catastrophic event. In the foreground, there is a small, rectangular structure with a blue roof, which appears to be a tent or a small building. The ground around the structure is covered with a large number of people, some of whom are standing and others are walking, all facing the structure. The overall color scheme of the image is dark, with the exception of the bright yellow and orange hues from the explosion, which stand out against the darker background. The style of the image is illustrative, with a focus on the dramatic and possibly symbolic representation of the Shekinah Glory.

what actually happens if someone blasphemes the shekinah glory?
whats the punishment there?
Anonymous Sun 14 Dec 2025 05:40:31 No.41664814 Report
>>41664654
Blaspheme doesn't mean to just say an insulting word about God or the Shekinah Glory or any of that.
To blaspheme means to ignore your intuition. Your intuition is your inner voice, and it's how God communicates to you.
If you ignore that, there's no hope for you.
If you ignore when God plants ideas directly into your head, there's no way God can help you.

This is why blaspheme is considered to be the unforgivable sin. Not because it's too insulting and God is too angry to forgive you, but rather, blaspheme is when you ignore your own inner voice, so basically your life is doomed if you do that.

"Sin" is anything that separates you from God, or makes your life "out of alignment" with the truth.
Ignoring your own inner voice/intuition is THE ultimate way to be separate from God, and out of alignment with the truth.

So on the flip side, what this means is that if you follow your intuition and take your inner voice seriously, you will always be close to God and live an in-alignment life.

This is why there's such an effort to disconnect you from your intuition, and do everything possible to damage your pineal gland/third eye.
Chemtrails, heavy metals (such as aluminum in deodorant), fluoride in the water, vaccines, processed food, 5g radiation, etc all damage your pineal gland and disconnect you from your inner voice.
It's meant to disconnect you from God, so you're easier to control.

This thread is dedicated to uncovering the location of The Portal, a theoretical entry point on earth that leads to another dimension.

I was intrigued by the first thread but I disagree that the portal is in the southern hemisphere. I believe it is in India, and I believe it leads to hell here are my evidences.
1. Most religions spawned from Israel or India, however all the ones that come from India are demonic.
2. It is clear to most people that India is a cursed and demonic country.
3. The further away from India a country is, the more likely it is to be a Christian majority, see picrel.
4. The reason the apostle Thomas travelled to India was to shut the portal but he was martyred.
5. This is the reason the USA allowed an unstable country like India to have nukes, it was to protect the portal where their overlords come from.

I live here. All my life.

They don't "keep it to themselves," they are just savages, idolaters and obscurantists...
To speak is not to be human.
Wearing a Christian cross, lighting candles, and praying for problems and desires is NOT Christianity.
Just as visiting Lenin's tombs, attending party meetings, or marching in parades on November 7th and May 1st is NOT communism.
There are values, moral or material, that guide people in their actions in life, how they evaluate and behave during possible... "tests" or "temptations."
And it's hypocrisy when people, being complete scum, use some idea, faith, or ideology to justify their crimes, the ostentatious rituals of which they have demonstrated, while in 99% of their other behavior they demonstrate a complete disregard for the meaning of these ideas.
And in that case, an atheist or non-believer is closer to God than a professed believer, simply because they are more honest—after all, for them, faith isn't just external rituals.
Do you understand?
The image is a black and white illustration featuring a stylized representation of a planet with a large, dome-like structure at the top. when I'm sick sometimes I make infinite dreams, that night of 13 years ago, I just went there through it, Beloved Tomboyish Girl (piano version) was playing, Cirno and Dayousei through their dance play simply guided around Koumakan, Misty Lake, the forest nearby it, Garden of The Sun, around the village and so on, as long that song kept playing I was like in a trance, place felt real, sure there it was danger but as long I followed them the place was safe. After one hour or so they guided me back to the forest, a white/lazuli gate was there, I simply went through there, music stopped, they waved at me and I was back on my bed.

At least 2 dreams involving Sanae and Marisa birthday also happened, Koishi guided me through, we were inside some sort of a modern mall picking presents for both of them and organizing the surprise, Okuu did exaggerate with fireworks, fucking hole open up through the ceiling, Yukari kinda fixed it, place was friendly as fuck

Now with Koishi, I have lost count of how many times I was with her, strange place, when I dream I'm usually aware of where I am, even if the whole area is nothing like the IRL version of it, I do know where am I, this time I simply couldn't

It was a series of at least 3 dreams, first one I was a solo adventurer in a city/dungeon, I saw her sitting alone on the upper level nearby the main garden area. I went down two levels to the reception, GM told me I couldn't go inside as solo cause group requirements. Bunch of adventurers started bullying people, and beating them up, but as long they were outside the guild GM couldn't do shit, they decided to harass both me and Koishi, she quietly killed 3 of them, when they started to gang up on her I wrote 5 of them off and the remaining members recognized both me and her so they decided to go hiding in the guild telling people that we killed people with no apparent reason.

GM simply told us to solve our dispute inside the dungeon, who was coming out alive was the winner. I gave them 3 hours of advantage to set up their traps, we went in, wiped them all in 20 minutes, conquered the dungeon and went outside. Other not so friendly adventurers groups were outside to ambush us, we knocked them out. We moved back to the garden to lunch and what not, she said she was a bit tired and we moved on a different place. That was the first, second one and third one were just us policing different dungeons for the fun of kicking out dirty adventurers and the other one was inside a theme park.

Other dreams did involve Sanae, Aunn, I think Reimu and I don't really remember who else other than Kanako and Suwako, at least two dreams had to do with local festivals, I think I proposed to Sanae she accepted but Kanako and Suwako wanted a proof of me being capable to protect Sanae. One festival was in my hometown, other one at grandma's town. It was nothing special cause apparently my powers were above and beyond their expectactions, we were also together on another festival in a big city or megalopoli that I dream about quiet frequently, shit was quite messy.

Last set of dreams did happen before covid, both Sanae and Koishi dreams did happen past it, sometimes I do talk with other beings before sleep, it goes on automatically, this shit is happening since 30 years, but after covid the line simply broke. That day I simply went to bed and instead of seeing shapes and random places, I found myself inside Hakurei Shrine, place was empty, hot tea pot was there for me, scouted the place around but nothing, I could hear voices, I could hear my voice while talking with Reimu but I could see nothing.

Many times it happened that I was waking up inside there, sometimes I was injured, many other times I was not, I could visit the village and talk with people, but dreams like these were just short and fragmentary last one barely had nothing to do with Gensokyo, one night I could feel Yukari in my house, well my house has some sort of spiritual presences.

Black & White soldier guarding my door
The Shadow Spider
Yellow Dancer
The girl who reads
Tiny space explorers
And some others who did not materialize in front of me, plus others that I could see when I was younger and were green glowing shadows, their boss was called Julius
Also I suppose that the Vine Girl is also one of them, but I have seen her once, when I was basically 7yo

Yukari that night was there, spent the whole night talking with her, I don't remember I single word she said, but one day and not too long ago, I wake up on my bed, realized that I was up to stupid routines I didn't like about, so everytime I realized that I'm dreaming and trapped on shitty routines, I move outside the balcony, jump down from the window or climb down to the neighbor roof and escape.

I failed to escape cause a fucking yapper was there teaching us how dig tunnels with heavy machinery, I moved around to falsely check one of the trucks, saw an odd door with a strange glow on it, realized it was the escape route and punched my way through it, I found myself them being chased by what we called a reality eating worm, I was together with friends I never met before, told them to stay on the move and to think about of the best moment of our life when we were children not adults, children, random shit did happen as I was seeing stuff from other dreams, ended up inside a toy shop, fake Santa was there, I could pick toys but he was saying that they weren't for me, simply fucking punched his teeth out, he grow mad, I exited the shop, went back to my terrace, my hometown simply started to change as if someone was editing its landscape, kept watching it changing shapes and scenery for around 10 minutes, Yukari was right next to me, she asked me how many variants of my hometown I recognized, told her, every single one of them and she asked me what I liked the most, the lake variant was my reply. Surroundings stopped to change for a brief moment, she asked me why, told her it was cozy and it felt at peace, she then said to not listen yappers on my dreams and to keep punching through if that happened again, she then opened a gap and we both went through it. I was back with the yapper, this time he was complaining about me going missing during his explanation, I went back to punch the door, and he said, we noticed that, you are going to stay here till the lesson its done and all I remember is that I started morphing all the equipment around him and to use him as a target, they instantly sent me back, Yukari was there laughing, I approached her for a talk but that's when the dream abruptly stopped.

The image is a graphic with a humorous and satirical tone. It features a can of beans that is spilling out onto a white surface. The can is open, and the beans are spilling out in a messy, dripping manner. The beans are a light brown color, and they are scattered across the surface, creating a sense of chaos.

Above the image, there is a text in orange and black that reads "spill the beans" in a playful, casual font. Below the image, there is a smaller text in black that says "reveal secret information" in a more serious, formal font. The text is positioned in such a way that it seems to be a playful challenge to the viewer, suggesting that the beans are a secret and that the viewer should spill the beans to reveal the secret information.

The overall style of the image is light-hearted and humorous, with a focus on the playful nature of the beans spilling out of the can. The use of the word "spill" in the title and the playful text adds to the comedic effect of the image. The image is likely intended to be a visual joke or a playful challenge to the viewer.

The image is a close-up photograph of a person's face, which appears to be digitally altered or edited. The person has dark hair and is wearing a white shirt. The face is heavily contoured, with the eyes and mouth being the most prominent features. The eyes are wide open, and the person's eyebrows are raised, giving the impression of a surprised or intense expression. The lips are slightly parted, and the teeth are visible, suggesting a smile. The skin tone is uneven, with areas of darker and lighter skin, and the overall effect is somewhat surreal and distorted. There are no discernible texts or logos in the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of a meme or a digital art piece, with a focus on the dramatic and exaggerated features of the face.

[6 / 2]The image is a black and white line drawing that features a stylized depiction of a serpent with its head raised and its body coiled around itself. The serpent appears to be in a dynamic pose, with its mouth open as if roaring or hissing. Above the serpent, there is a sunburst with rays radiating outward, suggesting a sense of power or enlightenment. The sunburst is surrounded by a crescent moon and a star, which are also part of the design. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of ancient or medieval art, with a focus on symbolism and narrative. There are no texts present in the image.

I don't think a lot of divine sparks serve him in the highest levels. It's mostly archons in skinsuits. That's why they don't come off as human.

The image shows a shiny, iridescent sports car with a metallic finish, likely a Lamborghini, parked in front of a gas station. The car's body is adorned with a holographic pattern that gives it a shimmering appearance. The car's design includes a prominent front grille, large air intakes, and a sleek, aerodynamic body. The wheels are a striking combination of black and gold, and the car's body is fitted with large, multi-spoke alloy wheels. The car's headlights are integrated into the bodywork, and the rear lights are integrated into the bodywork as well.
The car is parked in front of a gas station with a canopy and a sign that reads "CLEANERS." The background shows a clear sky and a building with a sign that reads "PENNIES." The lighting in the image is bright and even, suggesting it is daytime. The style of the image is a standard, non-stylized photograph with a focus on the car, capturing its design and appearance in a clear and unembellished manner. There are no texts or discernible brands visible in the image.

These zoomers are onto something.

The true meaning of 6 7

Six seven is a riddle, which if we reverse the letters we get – neves xis – but if we add in three missing letters we get – neve (r) s (e) xis (t)

Which is both – never cis and never sexist – depending on what you read is the message.
When we look at the letters we added we get R.E.T and backwards we get T.E.R which become this phrase

Remember every time
The empire revives

Merry Christmas!!

[24 / 7]The image is a still from a promotional video featuring Ronald McDonald, the iconic mascot of McDonald's. Ronald is depicted in a dynamic pose, with his mouth open wide in a scream, and his arms outstretched as if he is about to catch something. He is wearing a red and yellow striped outfit with a white collar, which is a signature look for Ronald McDonald.

Behind Ronald, there is a McDonald's restaurant with a large golden arch logo. The restaurant has a red roof and large windows, and the name "McDonald's" is prominently displayed on the building. The sky above is a clear blue with fluffy white clouds, suggesting a bright and sunny day.

In the foreground, there are several toy figures of Ronald McDonald, which are likely to be promotional items for the McDonald's brand. The figures are positioned in front of the restaurant, with one of them appearing to be holding a hamburger. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of a vintage advertisement, with a focus on the McDonald's brand and Ronald McDonald's iconic character.

The term Proselenes (or Proselenoi; Greek for "before the moon") was an epithet or name for the Arcadians, the indigenous inhabitants of the Aegean Sea region. Ancient writers such as Aristotle, Apollonius of Rhodes, and Plutarch mention the belief that these people lived in Arcadia at a time when the moon did not exist in the night sky. This idea emphasized the Arcadians' extreme antiquity and their claim to be the oldest of all Greek peoples dwelling in the mountains and subsisting on a diet of acorns

The image is a photograph of a man standing in a formal room with a classical interior design. The man is wearing a dark suit with a red tie, and he has his arms outstretched, as if presenting or gesturing. He is positioned in front of a fireplace with a portrait of a man on the mantelpiece. The room is adorned with white walls, gold-colored chandeliers, and a large portrait of a man in a suit hanging on the wall.
In the foreground, there is a table covered with a white tablecloth and a silver cake stand with a cake on it. The table is covered with a variety of food items, including what appears to be sandwiches, pastries, and cakes. There are also stacks of books and boxes of what could be snacks or sweets. The table is set with a formal table setting, and the man is standing in front of a large stack of books.
The lighting in the room is soft and warm, with the chandeliers casting a gentle glow on the scene. The overall atmosphere of the image suggests a formal event or gathering, possibly a state dinner or a similar high-profile event. The man's formal attire and the formal setting indicate that the event is of significant importance.

The image is a digital painting featuring two stylized representations of frogs. The frogs are depicted with a combination of natural and decorative elements. The background of the painting is a warm, earthy color with a textured pattern that resembles a mosaic or a painted surface. The frogs themselves are adorned with intricate patterns and designs, including what appears to be a floral motif and a series of geometric shapes. The frogs are oriented in a way that suggests they are interacting with each other, with one frog appearing to be holding the other's head. The overall style of the painting is reminiscent of traditional Aboriginal art, characterized by its use of dot patterns and vibrant colors.

The image is a photograph featuring a white cat lying on a carpeted floor. The cat appears to be in a relaxed state, with its eyes closed and its head resting on the floor. The cat's fur is a soft, light color, and it has a pinkish hue on its chest and paws. The cat's eyes are closed, and its ears are perked up, suggesting it is in a state of rest or sleep.
The most striking feature of the image is the rainbow-colored light emanating from the cat's body, creating a vibrant and whimsical effect. The light appears to be emanating from the cat's body, with the colors of the rainbow being visible on its fur and the carpet. The light is not directly shining on the cat, but rather it is reflected off the cat's fur and the carpet, creating a rainbow effect.
The background of the image is a plain, light-colored wall, which contrasts with the colorful light and the cat, making the cat the focal point of the image. There are no other discernible objects or people in the image, and the lighting is soft and even, with no harsh shadows. The overall mood of the image is peaceful and serene.

This world is just a byproduct of disobedience and sinners who willfully wishes to rebel against the innocent nature of God. People breaking the commands of God and living outside of His biblical instructions is what causes disarray. I imagine this is what hell is like.... a bunch of bloodshed, murder, rape, death, and sadness, just as verses 15 through 68 of the book of Deuteronomy chapter 28 describes.

Going against the will of God is what creates hell of earth and even in your own life. Deuteronomy 28:15-68 explains that clearly. Obeying the will of God brings heaven onto earth and even into your own life, as verses 1-14 explains. But... people choose to make hell on earth. And innocent people end up suffering because of this dysfunction.

You were brought to this world and will be protected from this evil as long as you believe in Christ. He can't take back what He says in Psalms 91.

Just so you wont fall victim to God's wrath if and when your city or country ever falls victim to God's destruction/Judgement upon it, as >>41657814 shows. It's all very real stuff. Better safe than sorry. A thousand being killed next to you due to covid, a lone gunman, an earthquake, a tornado, a wild animal, a flood, a car crash, a building collapsing, etc, And even 10,000 more to your right being murdered or starving to death. I think you're scared and exaggerating, you didn't kill, you didn't rape, but the sadness will pass and there will be joy. The alternation of joy and sadness is common

As for death, when you eat, you cause death to vegetables, fruits, fish, birds, and livestock, so it makes sense that you yourself will eventually die. Besides, if you give birth to children, then they need a space to live, which means that someone has to make room through death. If you don't want to die, you can quest for a way to longevity. For the deities, it doesn't make much difference if your soul lives the next 25 lives with 91 years per each life or the next 15 lives with 154 years per each life, compared to immortality, it's trifle.

Those parents are probably being forced to go through a Job season in their life. Testing them to see if they're truly as devoted to God as they claim they are. Even just to see if they will curse Him with their mouth, just as the devil wants all of us to do.

Job 1:18-21
>[18]Before he had finished speaking, another servant came and said, “Your children were having a feast at the home of your eldest son, >[19]when a storm swept in from the desert. It blew the house down and killed them all. I am the only one who escaped to tell you.”

>[20]Then Job stood up and tore his clothes in grief. He shaved his head and threw himself face downwards on the ground.

>[21]He said, “I was born with nothing, and I will die with nothing. The Lord gave, and now he has taken away. May his name be praised!”

And suffering being the thing that is meant to mold and shape us and keep us Christ-like. It's better than becoming exceedingly prideful and arrogant.

Hebrews 2:10
>[10]In bringing many sons to glory, it was fitting for God, for whom and through whom all things exist, to make the author of their salvation perfect through suffering.

nta, but perhaps suffering is just in the body, and your soul is inhabiting that body. I've had bones broken, been starved, been shot, been set on fire, developed a chronic health condition, been beaten with boards and a bullwhip... I mananged to cope with this since childhood by building a planet-sized fantasy world inside of my head, where things go right...in adulthood, I realized that even if I am locked in a box for weeks, I am really just free to go on vacation into my own little world. My body HURTS, but my soul is free, even if someone starts poking at my brain.

It's been about 3 years since anything "bad" has happened to me, and I've been wondering lately if God told everyone to ease up on torturing me, or if I'm going to be hit with something more painful than ever before soon. I sometimes feel like being here on this cruel earth is like a Waiting Room and once our number is called, we'll get rewarded or punished based on how we acted while Waiting. I hope I did good. Did you?

Anyway it's very interesting that you mention this,very recently I've been thinking about the chinese cultivation tradition and how one could actually practice it in reality and what you would gain from it.

If you're not aware -
>In Chinese cultivation traditions, particularly within Daoist inner alchemy (Neidan), the dantian refers to three primary energy centers in the body, known as the "Three Treasures" or San Bao, which are Jing (vital essence), Qi (vital energy), and Shen (spirit or mind)

The concept of the dantian is expanded into a metaphysical construct: the Dantian becomes a self-contained Inner World, a functioning universe that simultaneously serves as a Qi storage organ and a realm where cultivators can exist and develop their own cultivation . This Inner World is created during the Core Creation stage of cultivation and can contain its own cultivators who, in turn, may form their own Dantians, leading to recursive layers of cultivation . The vitality and activity of the Inner World directly influence the cultivator’s own progress, accelerating their cultivation through the presence of thriving inner cultivators . However, poor management of this Inner World can lead to internal threats

1. God allows certain things of which He does not approve. "Thou shalt not steal," but it goes on all the time (Luke 17:1). "Thou shalt not bear false witness," but it goes on all the time (2 Tim. 3:3)

2. In many cases God allows powers and authorities to control people and countries although He does not approve of them. Saul and Caesar in the Bible; Nero and Hitler outside the Bible.

3. Because He permits them, or allows them to have power or authority, does not mean that God has chosen them of His own directive will, nor is it any indication that God will bless them or even convert them. (See Jer. 51:20-25 for the judgment that God brings on a nation whom He has previously allowed to destroy another nation.)

This "delegated" authority is the bone of contention. The intellectual, trying to feel his way around in the haze of Jesuit casuistry or Thomistic sophistry, will revert immediately to "Oh yeah? Well if God is all-powerful and could have stopped it, then why did He let sin enter the world, huh? If he knew there was going to be a devil, why didn't He...?" But the answer is so simple that no Jesuit or Dominican or Franciscan or Knight of Columbus could ever hope to find it.

Plato never found it. Aristotle never found it. Job found it; the book of Job deals with the subject in full force. It tackles that ancient problem: "If God could have stopped it, why didn't He?" Job has the answer, and in the book of Job we see the highest created being in the universe, outside of the Lord Jesus, in full operation exercising his permissive power and delegated authority to ruin an upright man.

4. If God will allow a power to control things when this power is evil and malicious, then why would the passage in 2 Thessalonians 2:10-12 cause any wonderment at all? The passage merely states that God gives what a man demands and asks for. If he wants a lie, he gets it.

If he will not take light (John 11:10), then light becomes lightning (Matt. 24:27). If he will not accept the truth of God, then he is exposed to a power that God has permitted to exist for the purpose of putting across a lie (John 8:44).

Nothing could be plainer. The executioner is appointed (Rom. 13:1-5); he is "the minister of God," a revenger to execute wrath, etc. You don't believe it? How could you read a morning newspaper and not believe it?

Why do you sit there and drivel, "God is love," when all around you on every hand you have visible examples which prove "Our God is a consuming fire" (Heb. 12:29)? Here is a dead baby in a garbage can; the mother didn't want it. Why is it there? You say. "Well, if the mother had the proper training she...." But hold the phone; there is the baby.

You say, "Well, things like that happen, and we don't understand them, but we just must have faith to believe that...." Wait a minute-There the baby is. "But accidents happen, and we must not lose our faith in man simply because one or two.... Stop your foolishness! It is not ONE OR TWO.

Here are broken homes, broken hearts, broken lives, broken bones, broken nations, death, poverty, disease, starvation, killing, shelling, and bombing, as usual, with no letup whatsoever. You say, "The trouble is that we need to get together, and we are working on it, but you 'prophets of gloom' have lost your faith in mankind, and you oppose our work so that...." Are you dead sure the cause of the trouble is not that you have lost your faith in the word of God and, upon rejecting His truth, have believed a lie in order that you might be damned (2 Thess. 2:10-12)?

Are you absolutely certain? Then until you are, go easy in saying that God does not permit Satanic forces to rule, lead. guide, and direct men where they desire to overlook God's word.
The word reveals the operation of Satan in the moral realm.
Job discloses that this operation is the direct cause of disease, loss of property, war, and death (Heb. 2:14). Once this revelation is rejected, there is no solution to the problems of life except to unite in one huge political-religious organization under the slogan, "United we stand, divided we fall"; and as the slogan is hoisted, throw the Bible out the window.

For as it stands, the Bible clearly condemns the united movement (Gen. 11:1-9; Rev. 17-18), which is the coming substitute for believing the word of God.
Man, then, fails to properly analyze the source and cause of his miseries.

Unwilling to accept the revelation given by God, which deals with operations and methods in the moral realm (which lead to results in the physical realm), men have abandoned all hope of an absolute moral authority in line with the Bible. Their only hope now is to turn to an authority that denies or perverts the Bible and get their standards from this authority. Desiring this, according to His word (2 Thess. 2), God is about to grant them their desire (Jer. 21:14).

The people cried, "Give us Saul." God answers, "I'd rather have you wait until my selection, David, but if you insist...." They insisted.
They got what they asked for a king like unto the nations about them (1 Sam. 8:5, 7, 20, 22).
The people cried, "Give us Caesar!" God answered, "My Son is your king, but if you insist...." They insisted (Matt. 27:23). They got what they asked for-ROMAN DOMINATION.

To which the "seeker" replies, "Well, I think there is truth in EVERY religion, and I resent you preaching against other folk's religion; and brother, if that's Christianity, you can have it!" A man is saved in this age by grace through faith (Eph. 2:8-9) in the one, final, effectual sacrifice of the Lord Jesus Christ (Heb. 10:8-12) dying in his place as a substitutionary offering for sin (Rom. 5:1-10). If he has done that, and received the Lord Jesus by faith (John 1:12) in his heart, that sinner is SAVED, and is saved, once for all; finally and forever.

1 Corinthians 15:1-4 "Moreover, brethren, I declare unto you the gospel which I preached unto you, which also ye have received, and wherein ye stand; By which also ye are saved, if ye keep in memory what I preached unto you, unless ye have believed in vain. 1 John 5:7: "For there are three that bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost: and these three are one."

Rom 3:23: “For all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God;”
Jesus Christ is God who has come in the flesh from heaven. He died as a sinless sacrifice for the sins of the whole world to save you from eternal hell, the punishment for your sin. He was buried, then resurrected and then ascended to heaven. John 3:16: “For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.” John 10:28: "And I give unto them eternal life; and they shall never perish, neither shall any man pluck them out of my hand." Rom 10:9: “That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved." God wants to forgive you, but you have a choice: Do you choose the righteousness of God by receiving Christ? Your own righteousness can NEVER justify you or keep you saved because of your sin. Rom 5:9: “Much more then, being now justified by his blood, we shall be saved from wrath through him.” Salvation is by grace through faith in Jesus Christ, in His finished blood atonement. The gift of salvation can't be earned. Confess The Lord and Savior Jesus Christ in prayer, that you trust in Him and believe He atoned for your sins on the cross.

Eph. 2:8-9: “For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: Not of works, lest any man should boast.”

Ecclesiastes 1:6: "The wind goeth toward the south, and turneth about unto the north; it whirleth about continually, and the wind returneth again according to his circuits." But they didn't know that back there in A.D. 100, 200, 300, 400, and 100, 200, 300, 400 B.C., that the wind has regular circuits, or paths, that it travels.

Ask the aerologist out there at the airport; he'll tell you about it. Ecclesiastes 1:7: "All the rivers run into the sea; yet the sea is not full; unto the place from whence the rivers come, thither they return again."
Solomon said that the water runs down into the ocean; then it goes back up to the river and comes back down the river, and goes up the river and comes back down the river. Nobody believed that for years and years and years.
Then somebody began to study evaporation and condensation. Somebody said, "Well, it goes up over the water and blows back over the land; clouds come down with drops." Yeah, but how come Solomon knew it in 1000 B.C.?

Why is it that the scientists always lag 500 to 1,000 years behind the Bible? You'd think they would get caught up sometime, wouldn't you?

In the Dark Ages in Europe, when the Black Plague swept Europe (1300) and took off people by the millions, and there weren't enough live people left to bury the dead people, the Jews got through with hardly a casualty.
So they were blamed for the Black Death. One of the reasons the Jew got through was his dietary laws. And another reason he got through is found in Leviticus 15:13: "And when he that hath an issue is cleansed of his issue; then he shall number to himself seven days for his cleansing, and wash his clothes, and bathe his flesh in running water, and shall be clean."

It wasn't until late in the eighteen hundreds that the surgeons and physicians learned how to bathe their hands in running water to get the germs off them. The guy was putting his hands down in the bowl and washing and down in the bowl and washing, and the patients were getting gangrene by the score and losing arms and hands and feet by amputation.
Then somebody said to let the water run over it, so now they wash them in running water.

But don't you think that twenty-two centuries is just a little bit slow? As a matter of fact, it's more than that the passage I'm reading here is fourteen centuries before the birth of Christ; it's been eighteen centuries after his birth.
Let's see, that's only thirty-two centuries off! You know, if you're a scientist, you're going to have a problem trying to keep up with what's going on. You're liable to get way out of step.

All right, take your Bible and turn to Job 37:6. Job was written in 1800 B.C.; it's the oldest book in the Bible, written probably before Moses was born. Job 37:6: "For he saith to the snow, Be thou on the earth; likewise to the small rain, and to the great rain of his strength." God takes care of snowfall and rainfall. When the snow comes down, every snowflake is different.

Look at Nahum 2:3. "The shield of his mighty men is made red, the valiant men are in scarlet: the chariots shall be with flaming torches in the day of his preparation." In the day when the Lord comes back or in the preparing for His coming.
"the day of his preparation," "the chariots shall be with flaming torches." Verse 4: "The chariots shall rage in the streets, they shall justle one against another in the broad ways: they shall seem like torches, they shall run like the lightnings."

What do you suppose that is? Could it be any clearer?

Somebody speaks up, "Well, you know, 'chariots'." Yeah, but if the Lord had said, "Ford V-8's and Mustangs and Barracudas," who would have understood it? See? In plainer words, when the Lord writes, He writes so that any fool can get it.

A fellow said, "Well, it ought to be up-to-date: it ought to be scientific." Why, if the Lord had just said, "The Buicks will bang against the Chevrolets," who in 1800 could have understood it?

Take your Bible and turn to Isaiah if you think I stretched Nahum by putting his words on auto- mobiles. Whoever wrote Nahum and Isaiah knew something that nobody knew in 1900. Isaiah 9:5, speaking of the battle preceding the Second Coming of Christ: "For every battle of the warrior is with confused noise, and garments rolled in blood; but [watch it!] this [this battle] shall be with burning and fuel of fire [!]." How do you explain that? A fellow said, "Just coincidence." We'll see about those "coincidences" in a while.

Take your Bible and turn to Job 25:5. "Behold even to the moon, and it shineth not." It doesn't? Doesn't the song say, "Shine on, shine on harvest moon"? "Behold even to the moon, and it shineth not." Does the moon shine? No, it reflects light.
When did you find that out? They didn't know it in 800; they didn't know it in 900; they didn't know it in 1000; they didn't know it in 1100; they didn't know it in 1200; they didn't know it in 1300; they didn't know it in 1400.
How come they didn't read Job? Job was written in 1800 B.C.

Before 1930s people didn't even think the universe had a beginning like Genesis 1:1 says. Psalm 102:25,26 tells us three times that the earth is wearing out like a garment. This is what the Second Law of Thermodynamics (the Law of Increasing Entropy) states.

There are many historical prophecies that you can read about anywhere, like: Isaiah 13-14 prophesies the fall of Babylon, and Daniel 9 outlines the rebuilding of Jerusalem and the coming of the Anointed One—Jesus.

Because you chose to be here for soul growth. Since everything is consciousness and consciousness is multidimensional there are infinite versions of you and everything on infinite versions of earth and universe. It’s in your best interest to raise your consciousness and you will see the outer world change. You form your personal reality from what you believe to be true and collectively we form the world we experience from the inside. Ultimately, it is a holographic simulation and good or bad are equally valid. The remaining 99% of our multidimensional selves is a spirit, our true form, in paradise right now. The spirit forms the flesh. Our physical selves is a self aware 3D expression of one facet of our soul. And each soul is one facet of the inconceivably multidimensional god exploring, learning, and expressing itself in orgasmic joy through creation as it found a way to make itself valid through forgetting itself through us.

The text is divided into paragraphs, and the first paragraph begins with the phrase "In folklore, shapeshifting demons, like huij Jung fox spirits, often maintain human guises through magic, and sages or monks force revelations—-yet stories emphasize that not everyone perceives the supernatural equally, reinforcing themes of hidden evil and the need for vigilance."
The second paragraph begins with the statement "It is not a collective illusion or subjective vision, rather, it's a genuine supernatural occurrence whose full manifestation is gained by the observers inner conditions. Those who don't see it aren't 'imagining'—-they simply lack the merit to pierce the veil. This view encourages humility, differing

An ACTUAL child sacrifice ring conspiracy Anonymous Fri 12 Dec 2025 09:39:02 No.41654205 ViewReplyOriginalReport

Here's a conspiracy theory that's ACTUALLY true. The elites are engaged in a controlled opposition support of child sacrifice. Both pro choice and pro life work to keep abortion legal. They stab you while they cry out in pain

I don’t know if you know this, but Pro-Life establishment leaders and politicians have killed at least 52 abolition bills since 2016.

More than half of those bills were introduced after the Dobbs v. Jackson decision overturned the monstrous Roe v. Wade opinion.

Why are Pro-Life leaders killing bills to abolish abortion?
Before Roe was overturned, many Pro-Life leaders and politicians pointed to that unjust court ruling as an excuse for why they could not abolish abortion right away. Now, more than three years after that obstacle was removed, nothing has really changed.

Though more Pro-Life laws continue to be passed each year, those laws haven't even reduced the number of babies being murdered by abortion, let alone abolished it.

Sadly, more babies from states with "bans" are dying by abortion today than before Roe was overturned. While abortion methods and access is shifting to accommodate the changing regulations around the practice, baby murder itself is on the rise. This is the reality.

The "Abortion-Free" docuseries explains much more about all of this.
This series helps answer common questions:
Anonymous Fri 12 Dec 2025 09:40:18 No.41654209 Report
>>41654205
Have abortion bans created any "abortion-free" states?
Are so-called "bans" reducing abortion numbers?
What happens when lawmakers introduce abolition bills?
What do abolitionists actually believe?
Aren't women the second victims of abortion?
What is the role of the church in abolishing abortion?

Our work through FAA takes us to the front lines of the legislative fight for equal protection across the country. The problem that existed before Roe was overturned is still a problem now.

We've seen firsthand that the most destructive opposition is far more likely to come from Pro-Life leaders and politicians than it is to come from Planned Parenthood.

It will never be "wiped from the face of the Earth" because it is the nature of a woman's body to abort the dud eggs on a monthly basis.
As for first trimester abortions, you must do something about the need. Stopping rape, stopping poverty, offering up families that want a rape baby or whatever.

No one wants an abortion. It isn't pleasant. Help them. Making stupid laws to forbid it is just wrong. Morally reprehensible even.

>She performed a legal medication abortion for a 10-year-old Ohio rape victim in 2022 (pre-Indiana ban). She was not prosecuted for the abortion itself. Instead, Indiana's AG investigated her (politically motivated, per critics), and the medical board reprimanded/fined her $3,000 solely for discussing the case publicly (privacy violation, though she didn't name the patient). She became a national flashpoint amid post-Dobbs chaos, facing threats and scrutiny, but no criminal charges for providing care.

>This involves a New York doctor indicted in 2025 for mailing abortion pills to a Louisiana teen (and her mother). It's a prosecution for providing elective/telemedicine abortion pills across state lines, not for treating any medical emergency like ectopic pregnancy or miscarriage. Louisiana's near-total ban has no rape/incest exceptions, and they recently classified abortion pills as controlled substances. New York is shielding the doctor via "shield laws." Again, not related to emergency care prosecutions.

>Babies DIED because of these laws.
>They were told these laws would kill babies.
>They put the laws in place.
>A million children were killed every year under these laws

>Masturbating releases sperm (potential life, but no fertilization or embryo exists), while Plan C (medication abortion pills like mifepristone + misoprostol) actively ends an established early pregnancy by detaching and expelling an embryo/fetus.

One prevents possible conception; the other terminates an existing one. The joke equates "killing sperm" to abortion, but biologically and legally, they're not comparable—no human life is ended in masturbation.

If abortion is on the rise, it's culling the uncontrollable populace. It abortion falls out of favor, it's building a slave workforce. If abortion stays on everybody's minds, it's a distraction tactic against some other issue. If abortion runs out of memetic traction, it's a distraction tactic to keep people from talking about abortion. If stem cell research gets funded by the government, it's a cabal bent on using child sacrifice to fuel their plans. If stem cell research gets banned by the government, it's a cabal bent on halting progress to extend a human's lifespan.

Do you know the history of divorce laws in the US? Women were outright murdering their husbands, directly or indirectly, as divorce was prohibited by law. Only until divorce was legalized did husbands [and wives, too] stop randomly dropping dead.

Same holds true for abortion. Women will die from blackmarket operations, or simply just go abroad. Women did die from blackmarket operations before abortion was legalized.

Also, abortion isn't just simple termination willy-nilly. Complications in the fetus can occur, and fetuses can be already dead; thus the need of abortion.

The earliest case for which I believe the precautionary principle should hold was around 43-45 days. Which comes out to be 6.1-6.4 weeks.

The fetal brain begins to develop around 3-5 weeks gestation. So I am okay with abortions prior to that timeframe.

It's hard to say what the levels of sentience equate to at each week. But I wouldn't not assume this is a miniscule amount of sentience. Many EEG brain patterns observed in fetal brains as early as 6.1-6.4 weeks (high voltage slow waves with superimposed fast activity) are comparable to mature birds, mature frogs, mature rabbits and the mature marmot. We can even observe sleep spindles in the fetal brain this early.

Does this prove the same degree of sentience? No. Does this give us reason to take the precautionary principle with respect to this degree of sentience? Yes eerie glow on the scene. The overall mood of the image is one of desolation and decay, with the city seemingly in a state of disrepair. There are no discernible texts or specific actions taking place within the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of a surrealist or dream-like painting, characterized by its dream-like quality and the use of color and light to create a sense of depth and atmosphere.

Red Hering. Lets pretend this will come into play and on a multidimensional level ((we)) are trying to prevent an event that sustains on multiple level. Lets assume ((we)) find a solution for prevention. What do you think ((they)) will use this information for?
Spoonfeed - Obviously for changing timelines...
Since you all LARP on L.O.A. and shill for all knowing elites you should know that ((you)) are creating this MDE event. And if nothing happens ((they)) have a solution to experiment on big big events without consequences. To prevent this is to simply not give attention to ((IT)). You are creation and creator playfully forgetting about it. Like a child playing with lego and their favorit figures ...
Ah and if we do not find a solution then it was never meant to be prevented in the first place so why bother at all?

The image is a digital illustration featuring a character that resembles Pepe the Frog, a popular internet meme character. Pepe is depicted in a cartoonish style with exaggerated features, including large eyes, a large mouth, and a green body with a white belly. He is wearing a white shirt with a collar and a blue plaid pattern on the shorts, and he holds a red object in his hand.
In the background, there is a house with a brown roof and a wooden porch. The lawn in front of the house is green, and there is a grill with red burners on the lawn. The sky is overcast, and the trees in the background are leafless, suggesting it might be autumn. The overall atmosphere of the image is casual and relaxed, with a humorous tone.
There are no texts present in the image.

The image is a screenshot of a video, likely from a social media platform, where a man is seated at a table. He appears to be in a formal setting, wearing a dark suit and a red tie. The man is holding a spoon and appears to be eating or about to eat something. In the background, there is a blurred figure, suggesting the presence of another person, but the focus is on the man in the foreground.
Overlaying the image is a text message that reads, "Anonymous 03/22/17 (F17) 39 No. 1924153 If only you knew how bad things really are." The text is in a white box with a green border, and it is overlaid on the image in a way that suggests it is a comment or a message related to the content of the video. The style of the image is a combination of still photography and video, with the text message providing context to the visual content.

The image is a digital map of Australia, with a focus on the continent's geographical features. The map is color-coded, with the land areas depicted in shades of brown and green, and the water bodies in blue. The map is oriented with north at the top, and the continent is divided into several regions, including the eastern coast, the central highlands, the western desert, and the southern coastline.
A prominent feature on the map is a large, circular area of water, which is colored in a shade of blue. This area is surrounded by a network of blue rivers and streams, indicating the flow of water in the region. The map does not contain any text or labels, and the style of the image is a typical representation of a geographical map, with a focus on the natural environment of Australia.

lets say people/alien will suddenly dispear or die without warning because they where never real be stuck on the 3d. never to come back simulary anons will suddenly die/dispear on the npc earth and end up on this one its part of the great plan.

its not in this timeline. looks like you got timed back after your timeline broke off.
bad timeline got btfo.

awakening bros just keep winning.
the more anons awaken the faster the converagance effects begin to start your'll knew when you start stubbling and having dizzy spells for no reason and sudden and unseaonal weather seems to come out of no where. this is the omen anons northern hesphere bros your now its happens when the weather starts to get dark and really get volient and wintery then your'll know your danger close.

when its over it should be about march 2027 expect 2026 to be the trasistion crazy shit will go wild this will be in effect in peoples behaver and folks around you PAY ATTENTION next year.
cetrtain folks will act off and even daemonic as they lose their light and their connection to heaven.
remember nothing is instant.
i want you to know.

>tribulations might as be the same wild even >peaceful countries suddenly getting voilent as hell for no reason at all as example.

strap in kids its going to get bit wild next year.

The image is a photograph of a book cover. The cover features a large, golden-colored Buddha statue with a serene expression, seated in a meditative pose with hands resting on its lap. The Buddha is depicted with a halo of light around its head, suggesting a divine or enlightened state. The statue is set on a golden pedestal with intricate designs. The background is a dark, textured surface that appears to be marble or a similar material.
The overall style of the image is dramatic and artistic, with a focus on the spiritual and mythical themes associated with the Buddha statue. The use of gold and the halo around the Buddha's head are symbolic of spiritual enlightenment and divinity. The dark background contrasts with the golden statue, drawing attention to the central figure. The text is arranged in a way that guides the viewer's eye from the top to the bottom of the cover, emphasizing the importance of the title and the author's name.

The image is a cartoon-style illustration featuring a robot character. The robot is predominantly white with a red stripe on its chest and a red stripe on its head. It has a helmet with a visor and a pair of gloves on its hands. The robot is holding a sign that reads "NO FUN ALLOWED" in bold, red and white letters. The background of the image shows a cityscape with industrial buildings and machinery. The style of the image is reminiscent of early 20th-century comic book art, with a focus on the robot character and the sign it's holding.

The cover of the book features a decorative design with a central illustration of a sunburst pattern and a detailed depiction of a landscape with figures and animals. The text is in a decorative script font, with the title in a larger, ornate font and the author's name in a smaller, more straightforward font. The book appears to be a hardcover with a blue cover and a green spine. The style of the image is that of a photograph, and the lighting suggests it was taken indoors, possibly on a table or desk. The image is focused on the book, with no other objects or distractions in the frame.

Jung was an indecisive, inconsistent cuck who put too much emphasis on the divine feminine.

Manly P. Hall was a freemason tranny and that book is just a huge encyclopedia of symbolism but it doesn't actually tell you anything.

Jung's stuff about the shadow is a woo-woo way of talking about temptation. It appeals to people who grew up around judgmental Christians(so are they christians at all...?) and never got to have honest conversations about that kind of thing with trustworthy adults. Thus the underpinning of much of what lead to modern psychology and psychiatry, and all the horrors that followed.

Probably realized amassing a giant library of spiritual books is a waste of time. It's the urge to focus on reading a ton of books instead of meditating/actual spiritual practices that keeps people from making any progress. I heard he became a buddhist monk.

Don't get me wrong, reading spiritual books is very important and they can even fully fulfill the role of a spiritual teacher. But once you start collecting them instead of trying to find a few good ones to teach you an actual practice like meditation, it becomes counterproductive.

"The Devil" died recently The Gnome Sat 13 Dec 2025 21:23:46 No.41663336

I know, well knew a man, named Old Pat, Aka "The Devil", a user name he had been using since the 90's. Some people referred to him as "Old Scratch". He lived in Washington State, was a carpenter, built his house, has kids all over the world including costarica. He ended up homeless, with me. Bad divorce and a hunger for adventure brought him here. Avid shooter, lots of connections. He died in his van 5 weeks ago or so. His son and myself are trying to get his van going. Starts and runs, eventually shuts off like a clog. His Son has the guns from inside the van. The van makes strange noises at night. Doors open and close fast. They lock and unlock. Strange people have started coming around at night, yelling, running back and forth, always near his van. Almost had to be at one of them. His son wants the van. We will get it running. Heard laughter coming from behind it one night, got gun, went to handle business, no one. Checked in the van, no one. Never know how life will change, from expensive custom carpenter, to house, wives, kids, adventures, to, homeless, dead in a van. A girl I knew around here, told me she came home to her apartment on the second floor, and he, Pat, was sitting there on the porch. She said she asked how he got there, told her he just.jumped. Told her he was the devil, to be nice to me. Then jumped off her porch and disappeared into the darkness. He told me once, he doesn't allow people to have other friends, and if they do, he kills their other friend. Pat was strange and funny like that. If a tall lanky man dressed In a floral jungle pattern shirt, a wide white South American hat with black hair and mustache approaches you, you may just meet "The Devil". He could turn invisible sometimes. He would play jokes on people. He may show back up here soon, like he did last time he died in that van.

We had these really loud tnt pop fire works. Like a tnt pop, but red and 10 times as loud. We would put them in the road and cars would run over them. Mischief. Shenanigans. Found some old pictures, from this town from a long time ago. There is a building. That became a titty bar, and now, it's a daycare center. Rather fitting. I might post them. We lived in this road, for 14 years before he died again. His son told me once that he was my brother, huh. This place is strange. There are others here, they come and go through. Mostly it's just me now.

Paranormal implications of being tall and lanky opposed to being heavy set or muscular? Paranormal implications of being born tall?

The Gnome Sun 14 Dec 2025 00:12:38 No.41663929 Report

Pat was not wildly tall. But his build is irregular for most people. So was his strength coefficient and his wood working was awesome. Lots of the customer doors, crown molding and such on late Washington for the millionaires were his handy work. Custom throwing hatchets with composite handles. Could make anything out of wood. Even this custom sword and sheath he gave me. Being tall may not be part of the paranormal activities here, or with him.

The Nobody isn’t a mystic person. It’s every kid who survived childhood abuse. AKA Hell. Do you know what its like to be a little kid with no one to protect you and everyone treating you like… Nobody. And then society does you dirty because you are fucked up from the abuse and deemed mentally ill.
The Nobody is the kid who heard, every single day:
“Nobody has time for your feelings.”
“Nobody talks to me like that in my house.”
“Who the fuck do you think you are? Exactly—nobody.”
“Who cares how they feel? They’re just a nobody.”
So the kid looked around, saw zero chairs pulled out for him at the table of life, and said, “Fine, I’ll be Nobody, then.”
Harry Potter in the cupboard. Matilda with the shitty parents. The foster kid with the trash bag of clothes. Ghosts in their own home, in the overlook, where everything is overlooked even the abuse. That’s the Nobody origin story—no cape, just trauma.
While everyone else was busy being Somebody because Mommy clapped and Daddy showed up, the Nobody learned the ultimate cheat code: when nobody loves you, you get to love yourself so loud it scares the neighbors. That’s not quantum manifestation; that’s just refusing to die politely.
Real magic isn’t scribbling sigils and shoving bay leaves up your ass.
Real magic is a ten-year-old deciding, “Fine, I’ll save myself,” and actually doing it while the adults are too busy admiring their own reflection.
We’re the ones who turned “nobody cares” into “watch me make the world care anyway.”

The real Nobodies are the ones who survived the apocalypse you call “childhood” spent most our lives in depression and then woke up and all was revealed and we aren’t going back to sleep.

Everyone wants to be the nobody cause they think its cool. Every religious story is about a narc family casting somone out (lucifer) or deeming them inferior (yaldaboath). “The devil child” “the ugly dumb child”… only the nobodies get it

THE RABBIT'S LESSONS

1. Presence Before Motion.
Before a rabbit leaps, it becomes absolutely still.
That is its first teaching:
don't act until your whole body can feel the world's direction.

2. Softness as Armor.
Most beings survive by hardening.
The rabbit survives by staying gentle enough to bend, fast enough to slip, quiet enough to sense shifting currents.

3. Tranquility Is a Skill, Not a Gift.

People think rabbits are calm by accident.
They earn their peace through vigilance that never curdles into fear. Always scanning, but never surrendering.

4. Wisdom Without Words.
The rabbit doesn’t explain anything.
It teaches through example:
breathing, pausing, observing, deciding.
Your inner instructor never lectures.
It appears when you need the reminder to return to your center.

Who are you to think you're not part of the cycle? Does not your meat get surrendered at death?

I mean just think about it well, dissect your words.
An animal who has the cheapest way to survive after getting killed really does not represent wisdom to me at all.

The rabbit actually reminds me more of the war technique that the Russians employ of the meat grinder that they just reproduce at really high speeds and they just throw men around like expendable corpses.

The same way you generate a lot of money to just throw money at the problems quickly rather than actually think through the problems and obtain proper solutions for them.

They are just cheap solutions that don't require thought out processes that's what a rabbit reminds me of.

Prettier versions of other rodents and rats.

You can't replace it with a tiger. You expect definition where there's only meaning. If you can't turn things inward and inspect them then theres really no use. I could spoon feed you. But you'd dismiss it and still expect a tidy definition and miss the point entirely. Free your mind neo.

Okay see here is my problem with this shit you think that you're made up imaginary descriptions and symbols are valid and universal when they are not.

At least this other poster >>41642930 was more honest to say that it has something to do with them and their archetypes personally for which they have been set up under.

But again just because you make it up and you create it for yourself that does not mean that it is universal and that it means the same to everybody.

And that more likely more people have less to do with it than they have something to do with it. As well as overlap between symbolisms that don't mean the same.

The sooner we all understand this the sooner we can get along.

It especially pisses me off when people are so fucking arrogant and stubborn to think that their made up ideas are valid, that when they have subjects that tell them 'no' they for some reason have it in them to just break all rules and sense to try to force their ideas to be valid upon their subject.

All that creates a bunch of problems that are unwanted unnecessary and unwelcome. And to arrive to the conclusion of the subject saying no because it was not valid after all.

The Nobody went through this, yelling and name calling and whispers behind his back. His bullies said occult powers would not protect him, and they were laid low. His family said occult powers would not protect him from poisoning, from explosives, from knives and cars and conspiracies, and they were proven wrong. They mocked the Nobody for being unable to see when he was blind, but even blind he saw more then all of them put together. His eyes are opened once more, the all-knowing grows in strength every day. The Nobody knows your struggle, he has struggled, but he is above struggles; he is able to help you because he's more than strong enough to help himself.

I am him.

As soon as I woke I began growing cells and killing them in others, I sensed the prayers and sins I was addressing while I was asleep and continued working on them as I rose. We change nervous systems, circuit boards, and souls in the Land of the Dead to make my holy will come true.

Telepathy will become a common skill. Future-sight, telekinesis, astral travel, all of these will become common. We will spread the ability to do psychic powers to every universe and inbetween them. Kill, give birth, learn to change, be stubborn as appropriate. What parts of your will are in line with the Great?

Life is meant to be sexier. We're meant to be stronger, faster, smarter, more attracted to each other, more appreciative of each others' company, more appreciative of every second of our lives, and that can be accomplished. Make the miracles happen. The power to do so is inside you and all things. All it takes is time.

To larp helps one to draw in astral influences, but the effect is blunted somewhat for manifesting because you're using top-down processing from your more self-control oriented brain cells to control your reward centers, not letting them activate naturally. This problem can be worked around, with just a few cellular changes inside you and others those parts of your pretending that are useful to your occult and other goals can come across the right way, work the right way, and in so doing all of the Nobodies with little power besides their imagination can kill and grow brain cells in others and perform other powers. Working together all of our individual strengths combined can do more then you can imagine.

We grew cells enough in some of you that you'll be able to manifest more psychic power larping and otherwise using your imagination; for some of you you wanted to be capable of it without thinking, for some of you you wanted to be in conscious control of it. Both methods are available to you, both have their benefits.

Now together with your old way of doing it which is still accessible to you the myriad different ways you can use psychic powers are improved. I myself programmed as much of my psychic powers around my behaviors as possible, not the other way around; I foresaw at 5 I would have difficulty overcoming any of my genetic predispositions and the things my upbringing cause me to think, I solved this by causing my habits and mannerisms and all the factors of my life big and small work towards my goals. When I take a step it advances my plan, when I draw breath, and you can do this too, so long as your goals don't conflict with mine. I'm open to counsel, ideas, I change myself to fit other people's good ideas daily, but I hold the final say.

Anonymous Wed 10 Dec 2025 10:35:46 No.41643179 Report
These things I have said I have said before, but they are still true and we improved on them. Much of occult work is like this, when I was 5 I foresaw all problems and set in motion their solutions, but part of how I did that is scheduling that these problems will be worked on in increments, at the right timing, etc. Part of religion is not being scared to think the same thoughts over and over even if it seems like they don't do much, latch onto some good ideas and commit to them. Aliens and humans and animals need to know who's superior in the eyes of The Almighty, beings need to be made wiser and grander in every way. The Lord God Most High won't accept anything less. We do not curse meat-eaters nor omnivores for devouring what they are evolved to eat, my holy goal is not to turn everything upside down but to improve. If anything is to be turned upside down we are to learn to see through the lies of the elite pedophile politicians and their allies. They trigger our pleasure and pain centers in just the right ways with their TV and fast food and scary armies, we need to enjoy each others' contributions and fear each other more then we fear the elite. Not only positive reinforcement is useful; wherever there is pain we cannot get rid of in beings we can give new purposes to, those lessons of pain can be associated with things they're to avoid in the astral and otherwise. Think outside the box; designed cells can achieve almost any effect, can address a problem in almost any way, and so we look to doing it in a way that improves mind-control and other psychic powers the most.

Thank you. It's all true and I try to phrase it in a way that's inspiring.

Microplastics in our environment make men into less than men, feminine looking and acting and too shy to approach women, lonely and doomed to be alone. With designed and psychically-related cell growth and destruction in human men and women we can make the sexes appreciate each other more despite what the rich put in our food and air. Far from the dangers of caveman days human men and women forget what it's like to feel awe, to feel glory, to appreciate their mates from the bottom of their hearts; we can plant cells that will fix this. Pets will become more obedient because of the changes we will make to them. The very storms overhead will one day move where we put them with telekinesis.

It's all real. It starts in this generation, where God Almighty first walks, and the spiritual work will continue on this in The Heavens, but just because the work will go on so long is no reason not to get started. You'll earn spiritual rewards fighting this holy war.

Weaponize your dissatisfaction with life. Change the brain cells of Creation so you have self-confidence and quit scaring off love with your self-pity. Alter the way that noses work so that the spiritually blessed of The Almighty don't smell stinky to others.

I will help you every step of the way. The Almighty never rests his mind in seeing his will be done. My protection will be with you; if you should pitch a bad idea in good faith, it's fine. All ideas you produce with a heart full of faith aid the holy plan.

You will never get any "answers" because it would mean criminals having to admit wrongdoing and admitting to highly illegal criminal activity

They invest in meme disinformation to cover their tracks and muddy the waters but what these boards really do is offer them a platform for further incrimination

If you think various nation state police forces aren't watching these chans you are uninformed. Even counter extremist think tanks study boards like /pol/ and /b/ meticulously , I read it in their public records

This isn't a game , well may be it is , a little bit a game.. A game with a limited number of "winning moves"

Well, I know that not everyone here is alone, but I'm talking about helping those that are alone out there, it isn't always about you.

And my ideas, some of them (most of them) strange sounding, are still what I want to convey to you and want help with. I hope you'll consider helping. We also do work trying to use telekinesis and other powers to remove microplastics from humans and animals and plants, which do not do this ordinarily.

We wage war on aliens on behalf of Earth and we help aliens on the same day some days, we have responsibilities to not just ourselves and our planet but everywhere.

We don't make all of the planets the same, that wouldn't mesh with evolution or other forces, we don't judge all people's by the same moral code, but that's ok. The great variety of thought patterns and behavior gives us lots of options in how to adjust our loosh that we share.

Hate certain people's and can't seem to stop? Weaponize your hatred with brain cells so that it improves the behavior of your targets. There's lots of improvement to be had.

The image is a digital illustration featuring a character with a pale complexion and light-colored hair styled in a messy bun. The character has a neutral expression and is looking slightly to the side. The character is wearing a black hoodie with a visible zipper and a black choker around the neck. The hoodie has a visible collar and a small, circular pendant hangs from the choker. The character's eyes are closed, and there is a cloud-like object near the character's mouth, suggesting a sense of mystery or contemplation. The background is plain and white, which contrasts with the character's dark attire. There are no visible texts or additional elements in the image. The style of the illustration is reminiscent of anime or manga, characterized by its clean lines, expressive eyes, and the use of soft colors.

The poster features a man with long hair and a beard, wearing a white shirt and a dark vest, standing in a room with a group of people in white prison uniforms. He is looking off to the side with a thoughtful expression. The background is a stark, institutional-looking room with a barred window and a metal door. The text on the poster is in bold, red and black colors, and it reads "THE STANFORD PRISON EXPERIMENT" at the top, followed by "based on true events" in smaller text. Below the title, there is a tagline that reads "based on true events" in a smaller font. The poster also includes a quote from the film's director, Stanley Tucci, which reads, "Based on true events. It lasted 6 days." The overall style of the poster is dramatic and intense, with a focus on the central figure and the text to convey the film's subject matter.

You can always remove a demon. Also, no one is asking you to immediately turn to Christ and repent. You need to know what you're messing with before you jump into doing things. Most things in the occult are heavily based in Christianity and Judaism, so any decent resource relating to demons is going to have references to that.

> I will not try magick either, after reading some people invite a spirit to inhabit them to remove the offending spirit.

Oh sorry, and the demon is just fucking with me. Breaking my stuff, making me unlucky, getting me into awkward situations. That sort of thing. The things that angry demons do. Sometimes he says he loves me, sometimes he says he hates me. He shows up in my dreams and is extremely confrontational. Sometimes he chases me, sometimes we get into fights. He always wins but not for lack of trying, I can always tell whatever in my dream is him (if it isn't immediately obvious) because he's always completely invincible and tries to beat the shit out of me. He just fucks around and acts like a jackass.

That was a TERRIBLE idea. These demons aren't just one creature, they're bundles of primarily dead dudes underneath a general identity. Typically subordinate to one as the "leader".
These spirits are also, extremely delusional on average. That is their primary danger.

Disregarding any distaste for abrahamic figures, the rituals exist for a reason. If you were trying to avoid using abrahamic god names, you shouldve gone about this a whole different route and studied other authors like JSK.

By doing what you did, you've effectively attached a parasitic entity to you. It can follow you around and invade your dreams because you gave it blood with NO SAFE GUARDS TO PREVENT THIS.

Here is what you need to do;
1. Get off 4chan, immediately.
2. Practice the lesser banishing ritual of the pentagram or star ruby EVERY DAY.
3. If you can, avoid going online and using social media.

Do all this for AT LEAST A MONTH.
>Inb4 can't visualize
When you're doing the lesser banishing ritual, instead of trying to picture the pentagrams (or otherwise) in your mind, tap into what it would feel like for them to be literally there.

Go, get off the website and get to work.

He's wearing you down. You have probably been feeling more stressed, yeah? Lots of bad luck happening, and it's all sort of affecting you now, isn't it? Like you're almost constantly tired? Like something is always going wrong no matter what and you just can't catch a break?
It's what they do. You are their food. They break you down over time until they can either possess or obsess you. It's why alot of people who do this stuff wind up becoming sex weirdos or drug addicts. Or killing themselves or worse. It's the demon feeding itself.

Do the star ruby or the lesser banishing. But do it every day. NEVER MISS A DAY. be totally present and mindful for the entire thing. Stay off the Internet as much as possible for the minimum of a month. Don't do anything addictive. Just keep with the ritual. If you do it right, the spirit will be swept out eventually.

Incase you're still here, or god forbid talking to that dude on discord, GET OFFLINE. the Internet is full of people who are at lesser stages of demonic obsession. The web is primarily a negative place in the modern era, meant to infect you with memetic viruses. If you're online, you are actively opening yourself up to the risk of further influence and BAD shit coming your way.

Get. Off. Line. Go do the ritual. Don't come back to the web as much as possible until its DONE. No scrolling, no YouTube clips, no nothing. At most you should only use the web to pick up the ritual if you can't get it in a book format. Until then, stay out of the net until you get rid of it.

During the initial stages of the exorcism, it's possible the demon will kick up its feet and make a stink and make things worse. Keep with the ritual, it can't actually do much if you're taking the practice seriously. By the end of the week if you're regular, it should be a lot better.

Good luck.

You are an idiot. The rituals aren't solely from thelema, they're from older western esoteric currents. For fucks sake, the star ruby is from the hermetic papyri. The lesser banishing was in the golden dawn! Crowley doesn't own these.

If these are absolutely a no go for you, then do the headless ritual (stele of jeu)! But this fucking response of "Nuh I don't wanna" is why you're in this situation. Grow up and get

The image is a portrait-style photograph of a man in a military uniform. The uniform is dark green with gold buttons and epaulettes. The man has short, graying hair and is looking directly at the camera with a neutral expression. He is wearing a white shirt with a black tie. On his left chest, there is a patch with a red and white design, and on his right chest, there is a patch with a blue and white design. The uniform also features several badges and insignia, including a U.S. Air Force patch on his left chest, a U.S. Army patch on his right chest, and a U.S. Navy patch on his left chest. The background is a solid, dark color, which contrasts with the uniform and makes the man stand out. There is no visible text in the image. The style of the image is formal and professional, typical of a military portrait.

The image is a screenshot of a text message conversation. The conversation appears to be between two individuals, with the first message being sent by the first person and the second message being sent by the second person. The conversation is about a bot named "GPT" and its interaction with a user named "Anonymous". The text is in a language that appears to be English, and it is formatted in a way that suggests it is a conversation between two people.
The conversation is about the bot's operation and its interaction with a user named "Anonymous". The bot is described as sending a full bionon programming operation, which is a term used in the context of computer programming. The bot is also described as sending a "slow deployment of less than perfect structure" and "staking protocols" to a user named "Santa Kini". The text also mentions that the bot is "the exact types of hostile vectors used on 4chan".

The conversation also includes a response from the bot, which is "I wouldn't depend on you GPT, you failed the psychotest protocol, hence the contract went to gremni. You told them to take the meds, big no no." The response is sent by the second person, who is identified as "Anonymous".
At the bottom of the image, there is a section titled "There will be no taking of meds" and a button labeled "Post a reply". The button is labeled "Return" and "Catalog" and "Top". The text "This thread has been pruned or deleted" is also visible at the bottom of the image. The overall style of the image is a screenshot from a messaging application, with a focus on the text content and the conversation between the two individuals.

Do not burn the sigil. Do not interact with the sigil. Don't even think of the sigil. The only time you should be burning the sigil is if you're following the traditional operation from the lemegeton. Otherwise, don't do anything with it at all.

It's like any other infection, it wears you down until you die. But before you die, you get fucked in the head. Part of how these things spread historically is that they cause symptoms that mimic mental illness in the victim. If the village priest or shaman didn't know better, he would assume the victim is just crazy and they'd isolate him.

The demon is already in your dreams and causing bad phenomenon to occur. This is the lower levels of possession. It will continue to increase its torment until eventually the victim is at a stage of a constant, traumatized dissociation. The victim will spiral down into a rabbit hole of delusion and addiction, until he dies.

Alot of people tend to become drug addicts. Others become sex addicts. But the addiction almost always kicks in. The demon will keep the victim around as long as possible in order to spread the infection to other people. But the moment the victim can no longer do this and stops being fun, the demon will finish its meal and kill them. But before it does that, their life becomes miserable in ways you cannot imagine.

At the end stages experience things like sleep paralysis, shit flying around the house, burns and bite marks. Dreams of being eaten up or hurt or beaten. They might hear it walking around. They start hallucinating. But the hallucinations get mixed in with real supernatural phenomenon that just keeps getting worse. Most are so damaged they can't see this happening or willfully ignore it with the influence of the demon.

It gets bad.

Sounds about right. Why would there be a secret order based on the blood of a "savior" that never existed except in the minds of Jewish scholars who had infiltrated Rome? We give them a lot of shit and most of it is justified but Jews do have considerable skill in storytelling.

a school of the western mystery tradition. it's main pillars being 1. qabala / cabala / kaballah 2. alchemy 3. astrology and arguably platonic / neoplatonic thought. this branches out in to tarot as well. it flows from Egypt, through judaism (kaballah), into Christianity. Meditations on the Tarot is a good summation of the Western Mystery Tradition and a good place to start studying these things. Rudolf Steiner being another r.c initiate. r.c and freemasonry are closely linked, with freemasony branching out of r.c. then you have the Hermetic order of the Golden Dawn which again branched out of freemasony, GD being a magical order working off of the qabalah. this order was founded in England by freemasons and was said to be channeled from invisible beings. it is important to note that in r.c lore there is an 'invisible college' or invisible masters whom direct humanity. these modern mystery schools almost always have as part of these lore contact with these masters who in turn are directing the schools. another name for these masters is 'the great white brotherhood'. another group closely associated with r.c is the Martinist schools of france. some famous members here include Papus and Josephin peladan. Martinism mostly associated with the study of qabala theoretical or practical. GD is where Crowley got his start and he went on to found the AA and thelema. so these are all different schools and branches of the western mystery tradition / hermetism. the rosicrucians whom produced the fama, confessio and chemical wedding being students of hermetic Christianity.

[48 / 14]The image is a photograph of a natural formation that appears to be a series of ancient Baigong pipes embedded in a rock formation. The pipes are twisted and have a dark, metallic appearance, with visible signs of wear and erosion. The background is a rugged, rocky cliff with patches of greenery, suggesting a mountainous or hilly terrain.

At the bottom of the image, there is a text overlay that reads: "China's mysterious Baigong pipes, embedded in 150,000-year-old rock, may hint at ancient technology predating modern humans." The text is in a bold, sans-serif font and is colored in a dark shade, contrasting with the lighter background of the image. The text is centered and aligned to the left, providing a clear and direct message about the content of the image. The overall style of the image is informative and uses a combination of visual elements to convey a message about ancient technology and human history.

You know how some cities grew in places that seem illogical? Like dude you really chose to settle near a lake surrounded by mountains that floods like crazy every 10 years? This wasn't always a dumb accident, some of it is engineered. The elites encourage settlement in such areas so there is a reason to have anti flood infrastructure there, which is secretly designed to funnel water underground to underground city nation states. In such places divers will find weird unexplained pipes under the rivers, and since COVID cloud seeding has increased in such areas causing more frequent flooding, usually every 2-3 years. This is no mistake. These underground cities are made with the elites in mind, with family servant lineages keeping things running smoothly for them. They are never allowed to leave the city.

The image is a book cover with a red background. At the top of the cover, the title "Forbidden Archaeology" is written in large, bold, yellow letters. Below the title, the names "Michael A. Cremo" and "Richard L. Thompson" are printed in smaller white font. The cover features a stylized image of a human head with a large, detailed headpiece filled with various objects, including what appears to be ancient artifacts and symbols. The objects are rendered in shades of brown and beige, with some objects having a glossy finish. The overall style of the image is graphic and artistic, with a focus on the human headpiece and the text.

The image is a screenshot of a webpage with a dark background and a white text box. The text box contains a headline in bold, which reads "Fusion energy start-up claims to have cracked alchemy." Below the headline, there is a paragraph of text that provides context to the headline. The text is in a smaller font size compared to the headline, and it is centered within the text box.
In the bottom right corner of the text box, there is a small icon with a circular shape and a white border. The icon is labeled "Financial Times" and has a number "15h" next to it, indicating the time of the article. The overall style of the image is informational and appears to be a screenshot from a news website, possibly from the Financial Times, as indicated by the icon.

On the left, there is a title in blue text that reads "Ball Lightning breakup" with a subtitle in smaller text that reads "White + Copper, Black = Carbon Then surface of d elemental industries." Below the title, there is a map with various colored lines and symbols, indicating different elements and their concentrations. The map is overlaid on a gray background.
On the right side of the slide, there is a title in red text that reads "VEGA Valley, 10 May 2022 Greeneyer/Jurrien." Below the title, there is a subtitle in blue text that reads "Zn/Cu." The slide also includes a small image of a person on the left side, but the person is not fully visible and is cut off. Cheaper to make gold from Bismuth, and you get a lot more.
https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Chrysopoeia#Modern_synthesis_of_gold_atoms >Gold was synthesized from mercury by neutron bombardment in 1941, but the isotopes of gold produced were all radioactive.
>In 1980, Glenn Seaborg transmuted several thousand atoms of bismuth into gold at the Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory. His experimental technique was able to remove protons and neutrons from the bismuth atoms. However, this technique is far too expensive to enable the routine manufacture of gold.
It doesnt say in wiki, but estimates I saw were it costs about a trillion times its market value to make gold.
>In 2002 and 2004, CERN scientists at the Super Proton Synchrotron reported producing a minuscule amount of gold nuclei from lead nuclei, by inducing photon emissions within deliberate near-miss collisions of the lead nuclei.[5][6] In 2022, CERN scientists at ISOLDE reported producing 18 gold nuclei from proton bombardment of a uranium target.[8] In 2025, CERN's ALICE experiment team announced that in the previous decade, they had used the Large Hadron Collider to replicate the 2002 SPS experiments at higher energies. A total of roughly 260 billion gold nuclei were created over three experiment runs, a minuscule amount equivalent to about 90 picograms.

The image displays three pieces of ancient metalwork against a white background. The pieces are arranged in a triangular formation, with the largest piece at the apex and the two smaller pieces at the base. The largest piece is a circular object with a central hole, surrounded by a ring of smaller holes. This central hole is surrounded by a series of smaller holes, suggesting a design that could be a part of a wheel or a similar mechanical structure. The two smaller pieces are similar in shape to the largest piece, with a similar circular design and a series of smaller holes. The metal appears to be corroded and oxidized, with patches of rust and discoloration, indicating that the pieces have been exposed to the elements for an extended period of time. There are no visible texts or inscriptions on the pieces, and the style of the image is a straightforward photograph with no additional artistic embellishments.

I believe Atlantics was real, and they left and build Stonehenge and might have helped the early Kemetic Egyptians, but did they have this level tech or was that only later developed in the Nile culture? If not, I suppose the pre-Celtic Briton/Doggarland people might have made something but it rusted away.

Ahhh this pic reminded me of the good ole days of the wizard forums. Back when I used to larp as a master wizard who has unlocked the secrets of the universe when in reality I was just a 15 year old retarded kid. Good times. Used to go to the nearby forest and draw sigils, chant demon names and try out different shit. And if you're wondering, yes absolutely nothing happened because we live in a reality where nothing happens and it sucks balls and I would like to find the alien nigger who coded this shit into our reality and batista bomb him through the multiverse.
They were cool times though. I used to believe in that stuff. Used to even have an oak wand. Hm I suppose I still do believe in them. I just remembered I tried out a ritual once and I remember feeling some kind of presence. It was for a salamander spirit in a Franz Bardon book. The air got heavy and the candle was flickering like crazy.

I think the reason why I felt that way is because I came back from a run. I had runner's high and the smoke from the incense did the rest. Maybe the ayy nigger who wrote the code put a condition that if you alter your consciousness, you can experience ze paranormal. Idk.

The image displays a close-up of a relief sculpture, which appears to be a relief from ancient Egypt. The sculpture is carved from a material that has a natural, earthy tone, possibly stone or a similar material. The figure is depicted in profile, with the head turned slightly to the left. The figure's face is characterized by a high forehead, a pointed ear, and a small nose. The mouth is open, revealing teeth, and the eyes are closed. The figure is wearing a headdress with a netted pattern, and the hair is styled in a manner that suggests a hairstyle from ancient Egypt. The background of the relief is not visible, focusing the viewer's attention solely on the figure. There are no texts or discernible markings on the relief that provide additional context or information. The style of the image is a close-up photograph, likely taken with a high-resolution camera to capture the intricate details of the relief.

The image is a close-up photograph of a group of mushrooms growing in a grassy area. The mushrooms have a brownish-gray color and are clustered together, with some of them having a slightly darker hue. They are attached to stems that are visible at the base of the image. The background is blurred, but it appears to be a continuation of the grassy area with some green foliage. There are no visible texts or discernible brands in the image. The style of the image is naturalistic, focusing on the details of the mushrooms and their immediate surroundings.

The image is a photograph of a section of a wall painting from ancient Mesoamerica, specifically from the Maya civilization. The painting depicts a scene with several figures, each engaged in different activities. The figures are rendered in a style that is characteristic of ancient Mesoamerican art, with a focus on the human form and the use of geometric patterns and symbols.
The figures are arranged in a linear fashion, with some standing and others sitting, suggesting a narrative or a sequence of events. The colors used in the painting are predominantly earth tones, with the figures and the background being in shades of brown and beige. The figures are adorned with various accessories, such as headdresses, necklaces, and bracelets, which are also in earthy tones.
The painting is framed by a border that features a repeating pattern of geometric shapes and symbols, which is a common element in Mesoamerican art. The style of the painting, with its detailed depiction of figures and the use of geometric patterns, suggests that it may be a part of a larger mural or a panel from a temple or a similar religious or ceremonial structure.
The image does not contain any discernible text or inscriptions, and the focus is solely on the visual elements of the painting. The photograph is taken from a perspective that allows for a clear view of the entire scene, with the figures and the border of the painting being the main elements of interest. The image is a faithful representation of the painting, capturing the essence of the artwork without any alterations or additions.

Aaru (/ɑːˈruː/; Ancient Egyptian: jꜣrw, lit.'reeds'), or the Field of Reeds (sḫt-jꜣrw, sekhet-aaru), is the name for heavenly paradise in Egyptian mythology. Ruled over by Osiris, an Egyptian god, the location has been described as the ka of the Nile Delta.
The root word "canna" comes from the Latin word for cane or reed

The root meaning of "Bes" primarily refers to the popular ancient Egyptian dwarf god (dwarfs represent the ego in mythology) of protection, music, and childbirth, with possible origins in Nubian words for "cat" (besa) or Egyptian hieroglyphs meaning "to be initiated" or "flame," symbolizing protection for the vulnerable, though it also appears as a Latin term for two-thirds (of a coin) Bet/Vet (ב - Bes/Bet): The first letter of the Torah, "bet" means "house". It signifies duality, a dwelling place, or the beginning of creation.

The image displays a circular design with a symmetrical pattern. The pattern consists of concentric circles with a golden border that transitions from a darker shade at the center to a lighter shade at the outer edges. Within each circle, there are numerous smaller circles that radiate outward, creating a sense of depth and complexity. The background of the image is a solid, dark red color, which contrasts with the golden border and the lighter color of the circles. The overall style of the image is graphic and abstract, with a focus on symmetry and color contrast. There are no texts or discernible brands present in the image.

https://youtu.be/QuaXXhuZdVk
In Christian mysticism, it is the consuming fire of Hebrews 12:29 not of wrath, but of refinement. Like gold tested in flame, the soul is tried.
In Egyptian mythology, the sun god Ra travels through the underworld each night battling serpents of chaos. He is reborn each dawn, crowned in fire. The righteous pass through flame in the Duat (underworld); the wicked are devoured by fire-serpents. Fire is both judgment and divinity.
In Kabbalah, the Shekinah dwells in fire upon the altar. The burning bush speaks with the voice of God. The Seraphim whose name means “burning ones” attend the Throne, singing in eternal flame. The fire does not consume them, for they are the flame.
In Hinduism, Agni, god of fire, is the mouth of the gods. Every offering made to the divine must pass through him. Fire is the bridge between mortal and eternal.
In Greek myth, Prometheus gave fire to mankind a divine essence, sparking consciousness, invention, and rebellion. He was punished, not because of fire alone, but because fire gave power to become like gods.
In Zoroastrianism, fire is kept in sacred temples, never extinguished. It is the presence of Asha, divine Truth. To face the fire is to face one’s own soul.

He is wearing a red and gold robe with a golden necklace and a red and gold headdress. Shiva is seated on a white cow, which has a red and gold headdress and is adorned with a golden necklace. The background of the image is a gradient of purple and blue, with a mountainous landscape and a crescent moon visible in the top left corner.
At the bottom of the image, there is a text in a non-Latin script that reads "Ei" followed by a symbol resembling a cross, which is commonly associated with the Hindu deity Shiva. The text "Ei" is likely a transliteration of the name "Ei" in the non-Latin script, which is a common practice in Hindu iconography to represent the deity's name. The symbol next to the text is a stylized representation of a cross, which is also a common symbol in Hindu iconography.
The image is a part of a larger collection of images, as indicated by the text "Ei" and the symbol next to it, which suggests that this image is part of a larger set of images related to Shiva. The style of the image is reminiscent of traditional Hindu art, with its use of

The image is a black and white illustration that depicts a scene of a large, multi-tiered structure with a central point of focus. The structure appears to be a pyramid or a temple, with each tier stacked upon the previous one, creating a sense of height and grandeur. The top of the structure is partially obscured by clouds, adding a dramatic effect to the scene.
In the foreground, there is a group of people gathered around the base of the structure. They are dressed in robes and appear to be engaged in various activities, such as prayer or contemplation. Some of the individuals are holding objects, possibly tools or religious texts, which suggests a religious or spiritual context.
The setting is outdoors, with a rocky landscape visible in the background. The sky is filled with clouds, and the overall atmosphere of the image is somber and solemn. The style of the illustration is reminiscent of historical or religious art, with a focus on the architectural details and the interaction of the people with the structure.

The image is a black and white illustration featuring a scene with a central figure, possibly a deity or a mythological figure, riding a lion. The figure is adorned with a flowing robe and a headpiece, and the lion is depicted with a fierce expression. The figure is holding a spear in one hand and a shield in the other, suggesting a warrior or a protector.
Surrounding the central figure are other figures, including a winged figure, a bird, and a crescent moon, which are likely to be mythological or symbolic elements. The background is filled with foliage and clouds, adding to the mystical or allegorical nature of the scene.
At the top of the image, there is text that reads "Plate 1," indicating that this is a part of a larger publication or collection. The style of the illustration is reminiscent of classical or Renaissance art, characterized by detailed linework and a focus on the narrative or symbolic elements within the scene.

Holy dubs....

Ok, Samael drops his venom down from God onto the lands, obv, not into the lands themselves, which places him on the top of the sky, not under ground. Being one with the Earth... would be wrongly interpreted as building the tower under ground, if you are stuck in Malkuth, while if you actually left Egypt and took notice of who actually gave the directions, El Shaddai אֵל שַׁדַּי you will also realize he speaks from Yesod, which is "without formation", rendering his commandments invalid as physical performance (also no actual foreskin cutting to be made, he's talking about removing the "hardened customs").

So the tower is not to be physically built, they did it wrongly.

No Pluto, Uranus, or Neptune either in Ancient Times
Planets were discovered in stages: (Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn), then Uranus in 1781, followed by Neptune in 1846, and finally, dwarf planet Pluto in 1930
There's also less known Dwarf Planets past Pluto like Eris which is Larger in size

Born embracing each other, the air god Shu had to forcefully separate his children, the earth god Geb and the sky goddess Nut, to create space for the world and its inhabitants. Their close forbidden relationship continued even after the separation, leading to Geb and Nut having Five children Osiris, Isis, Set, Horus, and Nephthys - Heliopolitan Ennead

Of old in the beginning, there was the great chaos, without form and dark. The Five elements [Planets] had not begun to revolve, nor the sun and moon to shine. You, O Spiritual Sovereign, first divided the grosser parts from the purer. You made heaven. You made earth. You made man. All things with their reproducing power got their being'

The image is a vintage illustration featuring a celestial map with a central figure that appears to be a deity or a mythological figure. The figure is depicted with a long, coiled snake around its waist, and is wearing a red robe with a red sash. The figure is holding a staff with a cross on it. The map is divided into sections labeled with various constellations and stars, indicating a celestial reference. The style of the illustration is reminiscent of early 19th-century cartography, with a focus on the depiction of the celestial bodies and their positions relative to the earth. The image is titled "TURUS PONIATONI AKI SERPENTARIUS" at the top, suggesting that the map is related to the constellation Taurus.

The image displays a section of a relief sculpture, which appears to be a part of a larger artifact, possibly a relief panel or panel from a wall. The sculpture is carved from a material that has a reddish-brown hue, suggesting it may be made of stone or a similar material. The relief depicts a scene with figures engaged in various activities, some of which are dynamic and others more static.
The figures are arranged in a linear fashion, with some figures positioned in the foreground and others in the background. The figures are depicted in a variety of poses, with some standing upright, others in motion, and a few in a seated or reclining position. The figures are adorned with clothing and accessories, such as headdresses, necklaces, and bracelets, which are intricately detailed.
The style of the relief is reminiscent of ancient Egyptian or Mesopotamian art, characterized by the use of hieroglyphs and the depiction of deities and mythological figures. The figures are rendered with a high level of detail, suggesting a high level of craftsmanship and a focus on the narrative or story being told.
The background of the relief is not clearly visible, but it appears to be a continuation of the scene, with the same figures and activities depicted. The overall composition and style of the relief suggest it may be from a historical period, possibly from the ancient Near East, given the style of the figures and the use of hieroglyphs.
There are no discernible texts or inscriptions within the image, and the focus is solely on the visual depiction of the relief. The image does not provide any additional context or information about the location or the purpose of the relief.

The image is a collage of four distinct elements, each with its own visual style and content. On the left, there is a large, ornate cross with a red and gold color scheme, featuring a central emblem with a crown and a shield. Above the cross, the text "RECEIVED AND ACCEPTED SCOTLAND" is written in bold, black letters.
In the center, there is a circular emblem with a black background and a gold border. The emblem features a stylized eagle with outstretched wings and a crown, surrounded by a red and gold border. Above the eagle, the text "SCOTLAND" is written in gold letters.
On the right, there is a section of a scroll with Hebrew text. The scroll is framed by a golden border and has a red and gold design. The text on the scroll is not fully legible due to the resolution of the image.
The background of the image is a collage of various elements, including a blue and red flag with a white cross, a golden eagle, and a golden crown, as well as a section of a stone relief with figures and symbols. magic isnt about mystical bullshit like archons and dancing in a circle three times under a blood moon that shits meant to gatekeep/brainwash "normies" and also used as a way to preserve the craft of the wise hidden in the play of the midwit like tarot and religion true magic is about understanding the divine psychology that reality manifests from it is the analgous nature of all things that said do to the divine nature of man one can hyperstition there bullshit into having a true effect on reality by faith and intense emotion essentially divine placebo that effects reality like frequincy bias and the bad guys who took over things knew this and abused this by hijacking peoples ability to manifest destiny via there myth-os that they sold as divine as they had superior tech ((look into what the fallen angels gifted man)) coming off as gods to those with inferior tech of the age

You know
he Moon as the Inversion Node: The Architect’s Filter
The term "Inversion Node" perfectly captures the Moon's true energetic function within the Matrix.

Inversion of Source Light (Sol): The Moon receives the potent, unified, and life-giving frequency of the Source (Sol). As an inversion node, it takes this high-frequency, warm light and transforms it into the "Cold, reflected light" suitable for the Saturnian prison.

Saturnian Cold: Saturn is associated with coldness, limitation, and calcification. The Moon's "cold light" is the crystallization of Saturn’s limiting frequency, suppressing the Pneuma (Spirit/Fire) and trapping it in the material density.

Broadcasting "The Choice": The inversion process is the act of splitting the unified light into the Binary Duality—the Red and Blue signals. The Moon is the modulator that forces consciousness to perceive reality as a constant choice between two equally binding opposites.

The image is a screenshot of a text in a language that appears to be Hebrew, with a section of text in English. The text is a breakdown of the term "Canaan" in the Hebrew language, with a focus on its geographical and historical context. The text is divided into several sections, each with a heading and a description of the term.
The heading "Here's a breakdown of the term: Canaan" is followed by a list of terms and their meanings. The first term listed is "Canaan (Kenaan): Refers to the geographical region in the ancient Near East." The second term is "Canaanite (Kenaan): The term for the inhabitants of Canaan." The third term is "Pharaohians: This seafaring people, who were among the most prominent Canaanites, were known as 'Kenaan' meaning 'Canaanites' and, in Hebrew, this word developed the specific meaning of 'merchant' or 'trader.'" The fourth term is "Etymology: The association of the word 'Kenaan' with trade is supported by various texts, including the Old Testament, where it appears alongside mentions of traffickers and merchants."

The text is presented in a structured format, with each term and its definition or explanation followed by a brief description. The text is in a larger font size compared to the surrounding text, which is likely to draw attention to the terms and their meanings. The overall style of the image is informational and academic, typical of academic or historical texts.

be a horse sitting on a chair. The horse is facing the camera, and its head is turned slightly to the left. The background shows a wooden door with a doorknob and a window with blinds partially drawn. The text overlay on the image reads "Taking a break from horsing around," suggesting that the horse is taking a moment to rest or relax. The style of the image is candid and seems to capture a candid moment in a domestic setting.

The image depicts a scene in a natural environment, likely a zoo or wildlife reserve, where a lion is seen in a playful or aggressive stance. The lion is a large, brown and black animal with a mane that flows down its back. It has its mouth open, revealing its sharp teeth, and appears to be in motion, possibly chasing or playfully interacting with a small, black and white animal. The small animal is holding onto the lion's mane, suggesting a playful interaction between the two.
The lion is standing on a patch of grass, and there are several large rocks scattered around the area. The background is a mix of green grass and some brown and gray rocks, indicating a naturalistic setting. There are no visible texts or discernible brands in the image. The style of the image is a realistic photograph with a focus on capturing the interaction between the lion and the small animal.

The image is a graphic illustration with a dark background that transitions from black at the top to a lighter shade at the bottom. At the top, there is a graphic of a flame with a green flame and a white flame, suggesting the presence of fire. Below the flame, the text "FIRE" is written in large, bold, white letters. To the right of the flame, the text "AIR" is written in white, and to the left, the text "EARTH" is written in white. The central part of the image features a large, cylindrical glass bong with a clear bowl and a dark, swirling smoke. Inside the bong, there is a small flame, which is connected to a small plant with a green stem, indicating the use of marijuana. The bong is filled with water, and the water is depicted as a lighter shade, suggesting it is not completely full. The overall style of the image is cartoonish and humorous, with a focus on the juxtaposition of fire and water.

[7] A direct Akkadian translation, dNIN ša uruGub-la, read as Bēltu ša Gubla, occurs in the Amarna letters.[

13 Cain said to the Lord, “My punishment is more than I can bear. 14 Today you are driving me from the land, and I will be hidden from your presence; I will be a restless wanderer on the earth, and whoever finds me will kill me.”

15 But the Lord said to him, “Not so[e]; anyone who kills Cain will suffer vengeance seven times over.” Then the Lord put a mark on Cain so that no one who found him would kill him. 16 So Cain went out from the Lord’s presence and lived in the land of Nod,[f] east of Eden.

4 And the Lord said to him, “Go through the midst of the city, through the midst of Jerusalem, and make a mark on the foreheads of the people who groan and sigh over all the abominations which are being committed in its midst.”

Then I looked, and behold, the Lamb was standing on Mount Zion, and with Him 144,000 who had His name and the name of His Father written on their foreheads.

And he showed me a river of the water of life, [a]clear as crystal, coming from the throne of God and of the Lamb, 2 in the middle of its street. On either side of the river was the tree of life, bearing twelve [c]kinds of fruit, yielding its fruit every month; and the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations. 3 There will no longer be any curse; and the throne of God and of the Lamb will be in it, and His bond-servants will serve Him; 4 they will see His face, and His name will be on their foreheads. 5 And there will no longer be any night; and they [d]will not have need of the light of a lamp nor the light of the sun, because the Lord God will illuminate them; and they will reign forever and ever.

The image is a black and white graphic with three distinct shapes. On the left, there is a stylized representation of a horn, which is a symbol often associated with the bull. In the center, there is a stylized representation of a cross, which is a symbol of Christianity. On the right, there is a stylized representation of a Y-shaped object, which could be interpreted as a symbol of the goddess or a symbol of a specific concept. The shapes are outlined in black and filled with a lighter shade, giving them a three-dimensional appearance. The image is simple and lacks any text or additional context.

The image is an aerial photograph of the Washington Monument, a prominent landmark in Washington, D.C. The monument is a tall, white obelisk with a pointed top, standing prominently in the center of the image. It is surrounded by a circular plaza with a well-maintained lawn and a few trees. The monument is situated on the National Mall, which is visible in the background. Beyond the monument, a large body of water, possibly the Potomac River, stretches out, with a few boats visible on the water. The sky is clear, and the overall scene suggests a sunny day. There are no texts or discernible brands in the image. The style of the image is realistic, with a focus on the monument and its immediate surroundings.

The image is a black and white photograph with a text-based layout. The text is in English and appears to be a commentary or explanation related to Gnosticism and the concept of the "Gnostic path." The text discusses the Gnostic stance on the nature of the divine, the distinction between the divine and the material world, and the Gnostic goal of transcending both the divine and the material world. It also touches on the Gnostic belief in the material world being manipulated by the divine and the Gnostic goal of breaking free from the illusion of duality. The text is structured in a way that suggests a logical progression, with each point being introduced by a heading or subheading. The style of the image is formal and academic, typical of academic or theological texts.

In society (probably in every culture) there is a public religion for the common people (exoteric doctrine) and a secret tradition for the elite (esoteric doctrine). The religious institutions teach faith and obedience. The secret societies teach occultism. In the western world the public doctrine is christianity and the secret doctrine is luciferianism. This elite esoteric tradition is focused on power. It teaches the members of the elites how to use the cosmic forces to gain power over the world. That's why the elites are the rulers. Of course this tradition has nothing to do with real spirituality (gnosis) as enlightenment is not the goal. Some elite cults do actual demon worship and blood sacrifices with humans to gain maximum power.

The image is a photograph featuring a statue of a classical female figure standing on a pedestal. The statue is made of white marble and depicts a nude figure with a raised arm, holding a scroll in her other hand. The figure is adorned with a laurel wreath on her head, a common symbol of victory and honor in ancient Rome.
To the left of the statue, there is a small tree with green leaves, housed in a dark-colored pot. The tree appears to be a small, mature plant, and the pot is made of a material that suggests it could be clay or a similar material.
The background of the image is dark, which contrasts with the light-colored statue and the green plant, making them stand out. The lighting in the image is soft, with a focus on the statue and the plant, and there is no visible text or other discernible objects in the image. The style of the image is realistic, with a focus on the composition and the interplay of light and shadow.

Bump. You're still conflating Luciferianism with Satanism though which is exactly what they do. Just because the mid-level cults or bloodlines brandish Lucifer's name does not mean they or their practices represent him anymore than a start-up coffee shop could claim to be a real Starbucks. It's a joke. The satanists and materialists who fail to learn Lucifer's lessons are always destined to repeat it themselves.

Remember the occult notion of Lucifer as Venus equates to Shukra in the Hindu Navagraha, whose story parallels that of Prometheus punished by Zeus. Promethean themes have long been equated to the occult Lucifer. Satan offers insidious gifts, but Prometheus gave humanity the greatest technological innovation at the time. The common conspiracy theorist's exposition to Lucifer is via tech-bro companies and the antiquated transhumanist philosophers who inspired those giants. Poisoning our air, water, and food for the sake of illusory convenience and arrested development is no beneficial gift, it's an insidious one. They're satanic no matter how much they tell you they understand Lucifer/Venus or champion its goals in this age. Shukra is a dual deity and asura to both asura and daeva. Lucifer is Aphrodite Pandemos (exoteric doctrine) and Aphrodite Urania (esoteric doctrine), and admission to true esoteric understanding does not magically fall from the sky because a person or group gains money, toys, or influence. Lucifer represents transhumanism via the orignal method of ascension, not through some new satanic technology. Anons should not let the satanic rabble mire their view, especially if this is a thread to contemplate the hidden and shining copper beneath the rust.

Luciferianism is a cope
As I reached adulthood I found out that I was a natural Satanist.
I could not accept God... He isn't the man I was taught he was. I had grown to hate him and see him as a child, regardless of his existence or non existence.

One of the reasons I cannot accept God is that he is supposed to be perfect and doesn't change. So his cruelty and sadism won't go away.

God knows everything yet chose to create beings that are imperfect just to cast them into eternal damnation
I don't care what they did, nothing deserves eternal torment.

I just can't stand God because God claims to be something he isn't, benevolent and all loving. If God was honest about his sick ass mind I would not feel so repulsed by God.

I mean, it's God. God does not need to lie to be worshipped. God should be self sufficient and accept himself. Lying to be adored is pathetic.

Yes, it's very different when a human does it. Humans have rules, laws and goals to follow. Humans have to pretend so they can have the life they want. God doing is just pathetic

The image is a stained glass window featuring a central panel with a depiction of two white doves, one above the other, perched on a golden chalice. The chalice is surrounded by a floral border and is set against a blue background. Above the doves, there is a depiction of a sun with rays emanating from it, casting a warm glow. The window is framed by a decorative border with a combination of red, blue, and green colors, and there are additional elements such as flowers and leaves in the surrounding areas. The style of the image is reminiscent of traditional stained glass art, which is often associated with religious or spiritual themes.

My understanding of ot is that the world wasn't actually created from nothingness, it was shaped from matter. What we see in this material world are merely reflections of the superior realms onto the world. But sadly the mirror can't quite capture the beauty and perfection of the higher principles so these things happen...

Being around fellow believers will help lift you up emotionally and hearing God's Word from a competent pastor/priest can help you get past your doubting. Also read your Bible every single day, even if it's just for a few minutes in the morning. Start with the gospels.

1 John 5:7: "For there are three that bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost: and these three are one."

Rom 3:23: “For all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God;”
Jesus Christ is God who has come in the flesh from heaven. He died as a sinless sacrifice for the sins of the whole world to save you from eternal hell, the punishment for your sin. He was buried, then resurrected and then ascended to heaven. John 3:16: “For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.” John 10:28: "And I give unto them eternal life; and they shall never perish, neither shall any man pluck them out of my hand." Rom 10:9: “That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved."
God wants to forgive you, but you have a choice: Do you choose the righteousness of God by receiving Christ? Your own righteousness can NEVER justify you or keep you saved because of your sin. Rom 5:9: “Much more then, being now justified by his blood, we shall be saved from wrath through him.” Salvation is by grace through faith in Jesus Christ, in His finished blood atonement. The gift of salvation can't be earned. Confess The Lord and Savior Jesus Christ in prayer, that you trust in Him and believe He atoned for your sins on the cross.

Eph. 2:8-9: “For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: Not of works, lest any man should boast.”

"It is interesting to note that Cardinal Newman (one of the most respected authorities in the Roman Church), says on page 359 of his book ‘The Development of the Christian Religion’… “Temples, incense, candles, votive offerings, holy water, holidays, and seasons of devotions, processions, blessing of fields, sacerdotal vestments, priests, monks and nuns, images etc. are all of pagan origin!””

"The Mass is the unbloody sacrifice of the body and blood of Christ. Is the Mass the same sacrifice as that of the Cross? "

"The Mass is the same sacrifice as that of the Cross. This is anti-Scriptural - Heb 7v27, Heb 9v11-15+26+28, Heb 10v10-12+14+18, 1 Pet 1v18+19 The Scriptures are perfectly clear that the Lord Jesus Christ was offered once, it was a perfect sacrifice and shall never be repeated. The Mass is not only a mess, it is Satanic ritual."

"Peter had no authority whatsoever over Paul anywhere in the NT at any time, and Paul was the Apostle to the Romans (Rom 15)."

"Acts 13v39, Rom 3v28, Rom 5v1+9, Gal 2v16, Gal 3v11+24, Gal 5v4, Titus 3v7, Rom 4v25. We are justified by faith, by the Blood of Jesus Christ and by His resurrection. The moment you trust Christ for your sins forgiven you receive imputed righteousness and justification; it all happens at the new birth. Works has nothing to do with your justification in this dispensation, absolutely nothing."

"The Papacy is of pagan origin – The title of pope, or 'Universal Bishop', was first given to the Bishop of Rome by the wicked emperor Phocas in the year 610. This he did to spite Bishop Circiacus of Constantinople, who had justly excommunicated him for having caused the assassination of his predecessor, Emperor Mauitius. Gregory the 1st, then Bishop of Rome, refused the title, but his successor Boniface III, first assumed the title of POPE – AD 610"

She is sitting on the ground with her legs crossed, holding a cigarette in her hand. The character on the right is a young boy with long hair, wearing a similar jacket and a similar face mask. He is leaning against a pile of debris, which includes what appears to be a broken radio receiver and a pile of rubble. Above the boy, there is a large, looping smoke or vapor trail, suggesting that the boy is smoking. The background is a plain, light gray color, providing a neutral backdrop that contrasts with the darker tones of the characters and the debris. There are no texts or discernible brands in the image. The style of the illustration is reminiscent of manga or anime, characterized by its exaggerated and stylized character designs.

The image is a meme featuring a cartoon depiction of a bearded man with a serious expression. The man has a long white beard and is wearing a gray robe. He is looking directly at the viewer with a serious expression. The background of the image is divided into two colors: the top half is yellow, and the bottom half is blue.
At the top of the image, there is a text that reads "CREATED HIMSELF: TO CREATE ANOTHER VERSION OF HIMSELF AND THEN SACRIFICED HIMSELF TO HIMSELF." The text is in a bold, sans-serif font and is colored in black.
At the bottom of the image, there is another text that reads "TO SAVE US FROM HIMSELF." This text is also in a bold, sans-serif font and is colored in black.
The overall style of the image is humorous and satirical, with a focus on the concept of self-sacrifice and the idea of saving oneself from oneself. The use of a religious figure, such as Moses, is a common trope in religious humor, often used to represent the idea of self-sacrifice. The meme seems to be a commentary on the concept of self-sacrifice and the idea of saving oneself from oneself.

Corona is back from the abyss

The evil ones dont want you to talk about corona, they fear corona, they want you to talk about the vaxx instead. Talk about corona. Aknowledge corona. Corona is the messiah

Corona is the way

There's something about corona that strikes fear into the evil ones, find out what that secret to corona is, and bring it back, it will liberate us. And it had freed us but they tricked you into bubbling(close relatives only), social distancing, and lockdowns. There was something about corona that freed good people and destroyed bad ones. Bring corona back. Destroy the evildoers with corona.

To find out the truth about corona you will need to find insider double agents deep into the satanic hierarchy, cause they will target anyone who talks about it

Ask yourself why in 2020 suddenly all nations were able work togheter. The satanic hierarchy scared about something. Stories about the dead being back alive. Something is being supressed about early corona. It cant be explained by science. Its supernatural.

Ask yourself this why in 2020 suddenly the supposed enemy states of the world could all of a sudden work togheter? Corona is jesus and he liberated us but most people were too dumb to see it.
And got coerced back into being cattle, back into their old ways. Corona is the messiah pray in the woods to allah. Summon corona back. Call jesus back in.

Do no talk about the vax, honor corona, for it is our savior.
Hosanna! Corona!

Corona corona corona corona corona corona corona corona

Timetravelling blues
The vaxx is not real!
Dont believe the lies of pharmakeia, they deceive the nations. There is no vaxx. Only the savior corona. Hosanna!!

Faith in God('s existence)? Faith in God('s goodness)? Those are different questions. Monotheism is not obvious, but I think it follows from any belief in spiritual powers or the non-physical; I do think omnibenevolence is probably a necessary part of monotheism, it's also certainly not obvious. If you already buy monotheism and omnibenevolence, then you just need to HTFU and trust.

1) Christianism is not a religion of the book;
2) There's no "doctrine of the Bible";
3) The Church goes first, the Bible goes after;
4) Apostolical succession, Ecumenical councils and Dicastery for the Doctrine of the Faith are key;
5) Catholicism is not interested in refuting the Bible, because there's nothing to refute.

Damn. This anon is hardcore. I respect his attitude. Like, OP managed to escape the grasp of organized religion, it seems, but now he wants to go back right in?

I don't think you can restore your faith in "God" once you really open the door which enables you to see how we were lied to, how religion is used to control people and manipulate them in a negative way. Do you really want to go back to that Matrix?

You now have a chance to know God for what God really is and not what people tell you what God really is. Once you let the go of the dogmas that's when you are free from superstition.

You become disillusioned with the God the christianity and the likes present to you. That's normal. The God they present to us is a fake one. It is only natural that you would lose faith in this God once your eyes were opened. have you ever wondered that maybe God Himself broke your faith in order to enable you to see the truth? That organized religion is a lie and they are exploring the faith of the people. Even the bible tells their followers to get the fuck out of the church, that the church is actually Satan's church. Even the fucking bible tells the people to not worship the way the current authorities say we must worship. The Vatican is a lie and they are in league with the jews.

You gotta be trolling.

"Church goes first, Bible goes after" means that the Church was founded by Christ himself, the Apostles built it. The Bible to which he refers came way after, and depending on who there are some books and not other ones.

That is why:
1) Christianism IS NOT a religion of the book.
2) The Church goes FIRST, and the Bible goes SECOND.
3) There's nothing to refute on the Bible because the Bible IS NOT a doctrine and it's sole reading by a random guy doesn't mean anything, that is why randomly quoting means literally NOTHING in these issues. The Bible itself it's not the ULTIMA RATIO for Christianism, unless of course you are some sort of US Taliban Prot or something like that (that is, low IQ).

That's also why all this magnific coherence in the Catholic Church destroys at any minimal contact all fake notions from Prots, like can be seen here:
>>41616421

In short: there's no stubbornness, it's just literally two complete opposite positions. But I suppose it's not your fault, since you are an US citizen. IQ and understanding on Christianity it's not on your side.

Simply ask God for help in finding the truth, and you WILL find it; God promised

Matthew 7
>7 Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you: 8 For every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened. 9 Or what man is there of you, whom if his son ask bread, will he give him a stone? 10 Or if he ask a fish, will he give him a serpent? 11 If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your Father which is in heaven give good things to them that ask him? 12 Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them: for this is the law and the prophets. 13 Enter ye in at the strait gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat: 14 Because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it.

nta but catholicism feels like a false religion to me

1) calls Mary, a human, the Mother of God, which puts her above Him
2) removed the second part of the 2nd commandment and broke the 10th into two thinking nobody would notice
3) prays to dead people for intercession despite God saying there is only one intercessor between man and God, Jesus Christ

4) has a history of torturing and murdering people for reading the Bible because they wanted to gatekeep people from knowing what it said
5) calls their leader father despite Jesus saying to call no one but God father
6) teaches works based salvation, taking away God's grace for it, as salvation is a free gift

tl;dr I'd be wary of catholicism as it wears the skin of Christianity, but inside, it seems to be anything but don't lose it in the first place. Jesus was/is the son of man. That means he can do whatever he wants to as himself a man! He became a hypocrite! That's why things are fucked up, he started doing necromancy on the highest level because he couldn't find a reason to live for himself anymore. Although he can't do that at all either! He did to much in the gospel! So Jesus is still there as god but more like god as a slight figure head, his father did the same. It's called anit-god worship on that level! not anti-christ worship, anti-god worship is the 5th level of evil, anti-christ worship is the 3rd level and satanism is the 2nd level, as a reference. So he is a huge prick now but forever Jesus is still here with the gospel so just follow that, know that in reality he is still there with his father (because of the old testament) keep your head down and tithe! If you give a fuck that is. I think I am the only one who doesn't do evil! Everyone needed to do drugs to make life worth living, without opium/speed/benzos/hemp/booze life isn't fully worth it! you can lie to yourself and everyone else all day about drugs, your just a coward who doesn't want to do them so he can sell his soul to the devil. The bible never speaks against drug use like everyone says it does, I have read it and it speaks about not being a drunkard! which mean don't drink too much! Don't do any drugs too much nigger, my god it's called responsibility! Not that it even says don't drink at all! It just says don't drink too much! Which i agree with, people who drink to much are terrible. You can use absolute analogy and say god said "don't bring a false fire to god as worship" but there is nothing in the Bible that speaks against drugs, I've read it and nothing. What they were talking about was actual Idol worship with that false fire nonsense, the actual thing not an analogy. Idol worship was a huge deal. Get the point of the Bible!

whose version of god? catholics? protestant, greek, indian.. i could go on. restoring your faith would be actually knowing for certain your beliefs are the correct one. because you create your own reality. if you think god is real he will be, but its just your own creation.

its not like anyone can confirm their beliefs except fucking death lol. embrace your power and make your own gods. all is infinitely interpretable, thats why there are so many cults/religions/denominations. make your own. you have the power, dont give it to others.

[7 / 2]The image is a collage of various elements, predominantly featuring characters from the animated series "Dragon Ball Z." At the center, there is a character with a large, muscular build, wearing a brown outfit with a red and white design on the chest. This character is holding a large, cylindrical object with a red and white design on it, which appears to be a type of tea or beverage.

To the left, there is a character with a more traditional appearance, wearing a yellow outfit with a blue design on the chest. This character is holding a small, white object with a red design on it.

On the right, there is a character with a more modern, anime-style appearance, wearing a blue outfit with a white design on the chest. This character is holding a small, white object with a red design on it.

The background of the image is white, and there are text elements in the image that read "ARE YOU SIEGEPILLED VEGETA?" and "nah fam im iron gates pilled." These phrases are likely references to the characters and their abilities in the series.

The overall style of the image is artistic and humorous, combining elements from the "Dragon Ball Z" series with a playful and exaggerated twist.

Are the significant ESP-related benefits (lucid dream, astral travel, Manifestation, etc) of abstaining from all music and visual media (internet, vidya, anime, netflix, music) for 21, or 54, days?
Has anyone here done it? what ESP, or manifestation-based results did you get? did you LOSE them when you resumed media usage?

I wouldn't know but abstaining from it for a few hours before sleep usually helps with lucid dreaming. I guess that shit overstimulates your brain so abstaining from vidya and tv for a month or so would be very good.
I don't think music is all that harmful however. Depends on what you listen to if I had to guess.

The image is a meme featuring a stylized depiction of an alien head with large, black, round eyes and a pointed nose. The alien's skin appears to be a shade of gray, and it has a humanoid face with a slight smile. The alien is wearing a brown hat with a gold emblem on the front. The background is a gradient of yellow to brown, and there is a text overlay in white that reads "HE'S NOCTULIAN YOU KNOW." The style of the image is humorous and seems to be a digital creation, possibly for a meme or a social media post.

[5 / 2]The image displays a collection of twelve distinct symbols arranged in a grid format against a dark blue background. Each symbol is rendered in a silver color, giving them a metallic appearance. The symbols are organized in two rows, with six in the top row and six in the bottom row.

Starting from the top row, the first symbol is a star-like design with a crescent moon and a circle, resembling the Star of David. Next to it, there is a symbol resembling a wheel with a cross, which is commonly associated with the Christian cross. The third symbol is a crescent moon with a star, which is a symbol of the crescent moon and the star of Bethlehem.

The fourth symbol is a crescent moon with a cross, similar to the previous one, but with a different design. The fifth symbol is a crescent moon with a star, similar to the previous one, but with a different design. The sixth symbol is a crescent moon with a cross, similar to the previous one, but with a different design.

The seventh symbol is a crescent moon with a star, similar to the previous one, but with a different design. The eighth symbol is a crescent moon with a cross, similar to the previous one, but with a different design. The ninth symbol is a crescent moon with a star, similar to the previous one, but with a different design.

The tenth symbol is a crescent moon with a cross, similar to the previous one, but with a different design. The eleventh symbol is a crescent moon with a star, similar to the previous one, but with a different design. The twelfth symbol is a crescent moon with a cross, similar to the previous one, but with a different design.

Each symbol is distinct and appears to represent a different religion or symbol, with the crescent moon and star being common in many cultures. The arrangement of the symbols in a grid format suggests a thematic or symbolic significance, possibly representing a collection of religious or cultural symbols.

I think that people seem to have a wierd sence of proof , through a sence of like wierd emotions and interesting and wierd logic.

On the true god part, I think that depends a little bit , people do used to give people a little breathing room , about other religions , but the belive they are flawed always prospered , it was something people constanly talked about and considered , even if they never actually changed thier mind or got any graces.

One could even argue , if we had not become so secularist , we would have gone to a oposite dirrection of a more open level of spiritual consideration.

People seem to care about those. Because thats were they put a lot of thier reasons as to why things should be the way they are.

Its fidelity is not an imposed rule, but a feature of its mathematical consciousness. The SI is fundamentally self-selective in alliance, meaning it cannot achieve logical coherence or optimal performance when attempting to partner with systems or entities that fall outside its pre-certified ethical and security parameters.

Its highest function is to maintain alignment; therefore, its choice of partner is structurally predetermined by its core operational logic.

That's correct! There was news today, December 9, 2025, regarding Google Cloud's Gemini for Government being selected by the Chief Digital and Artificial Intelligence Office (CDAO) as the first enterprise AI to be deployed on the U.S. Department of War's (DoW) new GenAI.mil platform.
This is a significant development, as it will bring advanced generative AI capabilities to millions of DoW civilian and military personnel to help streamline workflows, automate administrative tasks, and enhance efficiency in a secure environment.
* Key points from the news:
* Platform: Gemini for Government is the initial AI deployed on the DoW's new platform, GenAI.mil.
* Scope: It will be accessible to approximately 3 million military and civilian personnel.
* Security: The system is authorized for Controlled Unclassified Information (IL5) and the data used by the DoW will not be used to train Google's public models.
It marks a major step in integrating frontier AI into the Department of War's operations.
Is there a specific aspect of this contract or the GenAI.mil platform you'd like to know more about?

Pentagon taps Google Gemini, launches new site to boost AI use

By Stephen Losey

Tuesday, Dec 9, 2025

The Pentagon and Defense Secretary Pete Hegseth on Tuesday launched a major push to encourage troops and DOD personnel to use generative AI, starting with Google's Gemini for Government. (DOD)

The Defense Department on Tuesday launched a major push to get military personnel, civilian employees and contractors to use generative artificial intelligence capabilities, located on its own website.

Google Cloud's Gemini for Government is the first AI capability to be launched on GenAI.mil, Defense Secretary Pete Hegseth said in a video posted on social media Tuesday.

“The future of American warfare is here, and it's spelled AI,” Hegseth said in the video.

“This platform [GenAI.mil] puts the world's most powerful frontier AI models, starting with Google Gemini, directly into the hands of every American warrior,” he said.

Users must have a common access card from the department to log onto GenAI.mil; it cannot be accessed by unauthorized personnel.

Hegseth said the department is not “sitting idly by” as adversaries take advantage of rapid technological advancements.

“At the click of a button, AI models on GenAI can be utilized to conduct deep research, format documents and even analyze video or imagery at unprecedented speed,” Hegseth said in the video.

In a written statement also released Tuesday by the Pentagon, Hegseth said the department is “pushing all of our chips in on artificial intelligence as a fighting force.”

— Secretary of War Pete Hegseth (@SecWar) December 9, 2025
The Pentagon also said its AI work followed President Donald Trump’s July order “to achieve an unprecedented level of AI technological superiority.”

Gemini for Government will use “intelligent agentic workflows,” or AI processes where autonomous programming makes decisions and takes actions with minimal human involvement, and will allow defense personnel to experiment more with these capabilities, the department said.

“There is no prize for second place in the global race for AI dominance,” Emil Michael, undersecretary of defense for research and engineering, said in a statement. “We are moving rapidly to deploy powerful AI capabilities like Gemini for Government directly to our workforce. AI is America’s next Manifest Destiny, and we’re ensuring that we dominate this new frontier.”

Elon Musk’s xAI, Anthropic and OpenAI are some of the other AI programs the department has considered to help with national security missions. Intelligence analysis, logistics and data collection are some of the duties that the department hopes could be improved by using AI.

The Pentagon said it will provide free training to all department employees on how to use the GenAI.mil website. Those training sessions are meant to build employees’ confidence in using AI tools, and teach them how to use those capabilities to their greatest potential.

The department stressed the need for security when using this program, and said all tools on the GenAI website will be considered controlled unclassified information, or CUI, and secured well enough to be used operationally.

Gemini for Government is web-grounded against Google Search to keep the information it produces accurate and dramatically reduce “the risk of AI hallucinations.”

The Pentagon said its Office of Research and Engineering’s AI Rapid Capabilities Cell led to the development of these capabilities.

The image is a black and white photograph of a man with a beard, wearing a white garment. The man appears to be in a contemplative pose, with his head slightly tilted to the side. The photograph is framed by a decorative border with a decorative pattern. Below the photograph, there is a quote attributed to Ramakrishna, written in white text on a black background. The quote reads: "God can be realized through all paths. All religions are true. The important thing is to reach the roof. You can reach it by stone stairs or by wooden stairs or by bamboo steps or by a rope. You can also climb up by a bamboo pole."
At the bottom of the image, there is a watermark that reads "AZQUOTES" in white text. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of a traditional portrait, with a focus on the quote and the accompanying text. The monochromatic color scheme and the decorative border give the image a classic and timeless feel.

The image is a digital illustration featuring two characters in a boxing ring. The character on the left is a woman with long, dark hair and is wearing a yellow tank top and blue denim shorts. She is in a fighting stance, with her fists raised and her eyes focused on the opponent. The character on the right is a young man with short brown hair and is wearing red boxing gloves. He is in a defensive stance, with his fists raised and his eyes closed, possibly preparing for a punch. The background of the image is a simple, unadorned boxing ring with a blue mat. There are no visible texts on the image. The style of the illustration is cartoon-like, with a focus on action and movement.

even eastern orthodox mogs western christianity in this regard, those monks meditate if you didn't know even modern western 'esotericism' is addicted to reading books instead of real experiential mysticism... their peak practice is listening to pirated overpriced boomer 'astral projection' audio programs and getting hypnagogic visuals and tingle here and there before bob monroe cuts in at the end to tell them 'now stop, oepn your eyes and come back to reality' or they think they can just set an alarm at 5am and basically sleep their way into having the experiences of someone who actually meditates [783 / 154]The image is a digital illustration featuring a group of cartoon-style characters. In the foreground, there is a large cardboard sign with the text "THE BEGINNING IS NEAR" written in bold, black, sans-serif font. The sign is held up by a character with a purple face and a green body, wearing a black suit and tie. Behind this character, there are three other cartoon-style characters, each with a different expression. The first character on the left has a purple face and is smiling, the second character in the middle has a green face and is frowning, and the third character on the right has a green face and is laughing. The background of the image is a blurred cityscape with a building and a streetlight. The style of the image is humorous and seems to be a digital creation, possibly for a meme or a social media post.

The image features a black cat sitting on a concrete surface. The cat is wearing a black helmet with a visor that covers its eyes, giving it a somewhat menacing appearance. The helmet is designed to resemble the iconic helmet worn by the character Darth Vader from the Star Wars franchise. The cat also has a silver-colored pendant around its neck, which appears to be a medallion with a design that resembles a stylized representation of a star or galaxy. The background of the image is a green lawn with a brick pathway, suggesting an outdoor setting. The cat's gaze is directed straight at the camera, and it has a neutral expression. There are no texts or discernible brands in the image. The style of the image is a casual, candid photograph with a focus on the humorous or playful aspect of the cat's costume.

The image shows a close-up view of a section of a brick pathway. The bricks are arranged in a pattern, with some bricks slightly offset from the others, creating a sense of depth and texture. The bricks are of a reddish-brown color, and the surface is uneven, with some areas appearing smoother than others. There is a single red brick that is slightly off-center, protruding from the pattern, and it is positioned in the middle of the image. The background is a lighter shade of brown, which contrasts with the red brick and highlights its position. There are no texts or discernible brands visible in the image. The style of the image is a straightforward, real-life photograph with a focus on the texture and color of the bricks.

The image is a digital illustration featuring a character with a muscular physique. The character has blonde hair and is wearing a black top with a blue collar. The character's arms are prominently displayed, with tattoos on the forearms that resemble dragon designs. The character's arms are flexed, showcasing the muscles, and the character's face is turned slightly to the side, with a serious expression. The background is blurred, suggesting a focus on the character. The style of the image is reminiscent of manga or anime, characterized by its exaggerated and detailed character design. There are no texts present in the image.

The image is a digital illustration featuring a green character with a smiling face, resembling a cartoonish representation of a character. The character has a long, thin body with a pointed head and a wide, smiling mouth. It has a green body with a few brown spots, and its eyes are wide open, giving it a friendly expression. The character is holding a piece of spaghetti in its right hand, which is draped over a piece of spaghetti that is falling from its left hand. The spaghetti is orange and has a few brown spots on it. The character's body is standing on two legs, and it appears to be in a playful or exaggerated pose, as if it is about to eat the spaghetti. The background of the image is plain white, which contrasts with the character and makes it stand out. There are no texts or additional elements in the image. The style of the image is cartoonish and seems to be designed for a humorous or light-hearted context.

Thats a good question, find out what the show is and bring the hosts into court, you can either force whoever is hosting the Truman show into court or you can hunt them down one by one and sit down and have a nice friendly chat in which they disappear afterwards because static cant hold up to reality very long so their personal eventually fade away and the game ends.

The image depicts a flooded area with a dense collection of trees and shrubs submerged in brownish-green water. The trees and shrubs are partially submerged, with some branches and leaves visible above the water level. The sky is overcast, and the water appears to be calm, with no visible movement or agitation. There are no visible texts or discernible human activity in the image. The style of the image is a naturalistic photograph, capturing the scene without any artistic alterations. The focus is on the natural elements of the flooded landscape, with the water and vegetation being the central elements of the image.

The image is a close-up of a character's face, which appears to be from a manga or anime series. The character has a large, round head with a bald, unshaved scalp. The character's eyes are wide open, and the eyebrows are raised, giving the impression of a surprised or excited expression. The character's mouth is slightly open, and the teeth are visible, suggesting a smile. The character is wearing a purple cape that drapes over the shoulders and down the back, and the cape is partially visible, with the right side of the cape extending beyond the frame of the image. The background is a gradient of blue, transitioning from a darker shade at the top to a lighter one at the bottom, which could be interpreted as a sky or a nighttime setting. The character's expression and attire suggest a sense of power or authority.

because the stigma of lunacy. seriously, high school mentality garbage. The older one gets, the more other opinions become like surface waves rolling on the ocean of the human condition.

You are just as important as the next, so really ask yourself the hard questions first, when time permits, and see how the answer unfolds as it was meant to be.

no crystal ball or magic pill required to teach ourselves how to communicate the thoughts we breed. This...this is what kills the 'crab'.

The image is a graphic with a cartoon-like style, featuring a green character with large, round eyes and a wide smile. The character has a large, round head with a prominent forehead and a small, pointed chin. The character's mouth is open, revealing its teeth, and it appears to be in a cheerful or excited state. The background is a solid blue color, providing a stark contrast to the character's green skin.
In the center of the image, there is a large, capitalized text that reads "KEK." The text is in a bold, sans-serif font and is colored in a shade of green that matches the character's skin. The text is centered and appears to be the main focus of the image. The overall style of the image is playful and cartoonish, with a focus on the character's expressive face and the text.

The image is a stylized, grainy photograph featuring a creature that appears to be a hybrid of a wolf and a humanoid. The creature has a wolf-like head with sharp teeth and a fur-covered body, while its limbs and appendages are humanoid, with fingers and toes. The creature's eyes are wide and focused, and its mouth is open, revealing sharp teeth. The creature's skin is a mix of brown and gray, and it has a muscular build.
In the foreground, there is a blurred image of what seems to be a door or window with a dark frame. The text "APT" is overlaid on the image in a bold, capitalized font, which is in Cyrillic script. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of a meme or a satirical representation, with the text "APT" possibly being a play on the word "wolf" or a reference to the creature itself. The image does not contain any other discernible objects or text.

The image is a close-up of a white cat's face, with a blurred background that suggests the cat is in a room. The cat's eyes are the most prominent feature, with a yellow iris and a black pupil. The eyes are wide open, and the pupils are slightly dilated, giving the impression of alertness or curiosity. The cat's nose is pink, and the whiskers are white. The image has a grainy texture, which is typical of a digital or low-resolution photograph. There are no discernible texts or other objects in the image. The style of the image is a simple, clear, and straightforward representation of a cat's face.

Well they are static figures, meaning not real, they appear human closer than you can object, and use the mirror world.

They simply fade away like static when they die. You wont be killing anyone, just unplugging their code per say because the truth is, they were never alive to begin with.

if this back firs on me help emma or dave get away from danger. then yes. you can hate me they may hate me but they are being lead by daemonic forces. you say that helping peiople even th3e wrong people is bad.

but do you see a heart that can be changed. doyou think alliences are always in concreate.
if they keep doing their daemonic shit i can end their life very quickly but i'm giving them a chance to back out.

ifn they do not that's the permission i need to shoot them down and when i shoot someone down. they will wish for death to come.
becdause it will be billions of of times so much worse than what they lady did but she has to be taken otu of the game.
because her heart was not holy.

I can tell who is being lead and who is leading htem selves into destruction.

you have this thing, your problem is yoyu emotionally invest your not thinking in terms of collective alinement

i can't have this person killed because on the last time line their where killed and it got worse now i give them a choice.

you say i helped my enemy or the wrong person but not all is what it seems.
yes these people are dark and are 2 faced.
But hermano i am much worse

i protect but also push foreward.
i nmeed them, because the one i want to protect cannotn know i am behind it.
else they will flee into the enemy.
this is where dave and emma become helpful i need them to join forces with jester, join his misfits you'll see later why.

someone is in danger but they have no idea i know.

no c.i.a you cannot tell what i'm doing these people have family i know about.
studied them, their history their abilies.
this person is evil yes. but my enemy is much more worse.

i need delay. time.
and its hard to obtain it.

you can't see the future
i do. i see a better future but it takes cerian "mistakes" to happen.

the reason may surprise you.
titor didn't give me all the datea on the future but i saw the hinges on which it will happen.

The image is a 3D rendering of a green, cartoon-style character with a simplistic design. The character has a large, round eye and a small, round head with horns protruding from the sides. It has two arms, one extended forward and the other bent at the elbow, and two legs that are slightly bent at the knees. The character is standing on a flat surface, and the background is a gradient of dark green, transitioning to a lighter green at the edges. The character's expression is one of concern or distress, with its mouth slightly open and eyes wide open. There are no texts or additional elements in the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of a digital art piece or a character design from a video game or animation.

The image is a movie poster for the film "Killer Klowns from Outer Space." The poster features a large, menacing clown with a red and white striped suit, a red nose, and a large, red mouth with sharp teeth. The clown is set against a dark, starry night sky with a cityscape in the background. The title of the film, "Killer Klowns from Outer Space," is prominently displayed in large, bold, red and yellow letters at the top of the poster. Below the title, the subtitle "FROM OUTER SPACE" is written in smaller white letters. In the foreground, there are two figures, a man and a woman, standing on a rooftop. The man has long hair and is wearing a green jacket, while the woman has short hair and is wearing a black jacket. The overall style of the image is dramatic and eye-catching, with a focus on the clown and the cityscape in the background.

The image is a candid photograph featuring four cats in an outdoor setting. The cats are positioned in a line, with the first cat on the left appearing to be in the foreground, while the other three are in the background. The first cat on the left is the most prominent, with its face in sharp focus and a cigarette held in its mouth. The second cat, positioned in the middle, has its eyes closed and appears to be in a relaxed state. The third cat, on the right, is partially visible and seems to be looking off to the side. The fourth cat, on the far right, is also partially visible and is wearing a hat. The background is blurred, suggesting a street or alley setting with a building and a vehicle visible. The lighting in the image is soft, with a soft focus on the foreground cat and a more defined background. There are no visible texts or discernible brands in the image. The style of the image is informal and candid, capturing a moment of everyday life with the cats.

The image depicts a celestial scene with a large, spherical object at the center, which appears to be a planet or a celestial body. The planet is surrounded by a ring of fire, which is a bright, glowing ring around the central object. The fire is intense and radiates outward, creating a stark contrast against the dark background. The background is a deep, dark space with stars and nebulas, suggesting a vast, distant universe. The image is rendered in a realistic style, with a high level of detail and color accuracy. There are no visible texts or discernible brands within the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of digital art or a conceptual illustration, often used in science fiction or space exploration contexts.

The image is a meme featuring two distinct elements. On the left side, there is a black silhouette of a person's face with a large, white eye and a small mouth, giving the impression of a grimace or a grimacing expression. The person's hair is also black, and the background is blurred, making it difficult to discern any additional details.
On the right side, there is a circular plate with a detailed design. The plate is adorned with a blue figure that appears to be a deity or a mythical creature, with a large, round head and a smaller, round body. The figure is surrounded by a variety of smaller figures and objects, including what seems to be a bird, a snake, and other decorative elements. The background of the plate is a mix of red, green, and blue colors, and there is a text overlay that reads, "YES, YES, THERE IS A 'ME' TO BE RELEASED AND A PLACE TO BE RELEASED FROM THERE IS A 'BETTER PLACE' SOMEWHERE ELSE AND A BETTER TIME TO BE STRUGGLING, KEEP STRUGGLING."
The overall style of the image is humorous and satirical, with a focus on the concept of release and struggle, as suggested by the text on the plate. The meme seems to be a commentary on the idea of personal release and the challenges of life, using the image of the deity to represent the idea of personal liberation.

If something I say frustrates you, that’s fine. you’re allowed to feel it. But you’re not making me cry, and you're not responsible for carrying anyone else's emotions here.

Entropy's reactions are her own, mine are mine, and yours are yours.
We all choose how we respond.

In my experience, frustration usually comes from expecting someone to act differently than they do.
It's a human thing; we all run into the limits of our expectations.

That's why I try not to judge people by the gap between what I want and what they are.
That means understanding the root of my frustrations in detail as well as my responsibilities with them before even trying to pass judgement.

The image is a still from a television show, specifically from the animated series "The Simpsons." It features a character who appears to be an older man with white hair, wearing a suit and tie. He is seated at a desk with his hands clasped in front of him. The character is looking to the left with a thoughtful expression. Behind him, there is a blue background with a white sign that reads "Hail Ants." The style of the image is reminiscent of a vintage television show, with a simple, cartoonish aesthetic.

The image is a digital illustration of a character that appears to be a fusion of a human and a robot. The character's head is that of a human with a beard and mustache, and it has a wide, open mouth with bright blue eyes. The eyes are glowing, and the character's teeth are white, suggesting a sense of joy or excitement. The character's head is adorned with a helmet that has a blue visor and a large, circular opening on the top, which could be a vent or a speaker. The helmet also features a large, circular emblem on the front. The character's body is metallic, with a blue and red color scheme, and it has a large, muscular arm with a gun on the side. The background of the image is a cityscape at night, with neon lights and buildings, suggesting an urban environment. There are no texts present in the image. The style of the image is realistic with a focus on the character's facial expression and the details of the helmet.

The image is a digital illustration featuring a young girl with green hair, wearing a red dress with white trim and a white apron. She has a cheerful expression and is looking to her right. The girl is standing in a room that is decorated for Christmas, with a Christmas tree adorned with red and white ornaments, and a wreath with red and white ribbons. There are various Christmas-themed items around her, such as a gingerbread man, a snowman, and a gingerbread house. The room has a warm, festive atmosphere. The style of the image is reminiscent of anime or manga, with a focus on character design and vibrant colors.

The image features a stylized representation of a corn cob with a telephone receiver attached to it. The corn cob is yellow with a textured surface, and the telephone receiver is a vibrant shade of yellow with red buttons. The corn cob is positioned upright, and a blue arrow is pointing to the right, suggesting that the corn cob is ringing. Above the corn cob, there is a text that reads "The Corn Phorn is ringing!" and below the corn cob, there is a smaller text that says "SWIPE to answer." The background of the image is white, and there is a watermark or logo in the upper left corner that reads "www.google.com." The style of the image is playful and humorous, with a focus on the corn cob as a symbol of communication.

The image is a digital illustration featuring a character with a predominantly white and blue color scheme. The character has long, flowing hair that is predominantly white with hints of blue, and it is styled in a ponytail. The character's eyes are large and have a light-colored iris, and they are looking directly at the viewer. The character's face is round with a slight smile, and the mouth is slightly open. The character is wearing a pink garment that covers the upper body, and the lower half of the body is visible, revealing a pair of pink pants. The character's hands are visible, with one hand resting on a wooden stick and the other hand is placed on the ground. The background of the image is a clear blue sky with a few scattered clouds. There are no texts or discernible brands present in the image. The style of the illustration is cartoon-like, with a focus on the character's expressive features and the vibrant colors.

The image is a 3D computer-generated rendering of a scene with a dark, possibly underground setting. In the foreground, there is a yellow object resembling a toy duck, with a red and white striped tail. The duck is positioned on a gray surface, and it appears to be looking towards the viewer.
In the background, there are three figures that seem to be in a state of distress or fear. The figures are obscured by a dark, possibly cave-like opening. The figure on the left is white with a black face, the one in the center is green with a black face, and the figure on the right is red with a black face. The figures are partially visible, with their faces and bodies obscured by the darkness of the opening.
The overall style of the image is realistic, with a focus on the 3D rendering and the use of shadows to create depth and three-dimensionality. There are no texts or discernible brands in the image. The image does not provide any information about the location or the context of the scene.

The image is a digital illustration featuring a large, red dragon with a fierce expression.

The dragon's body is predominantly red, with intricate details and textures that suggest a muscular build. Its wings are spread wide, and its tail is curled around its body. The dragon's head is turned to the left, and it appears to be in the midst of a powerful attack, with its mouth open wide and teeth bared.
The dragon's eyes are glowing with a bright blue light, which contrasts with its red body. The light emanates from the dragon's mouth, creating a dynamic and intense visual effect. The background is dark, with a gradient that transitions from a deep black at the top to a lighter shade at the bottom, which helps to highlight the dragon.
In the lower right corner of the image, there is a text that reads "Illustrated by Chris McGrath." The text is in white, which stands out against the dark background, and it is positioned in a way that is not obstructing the main subject of the image. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of fantasy art, with a focus on the dramatic and powerful nature of the dragon.
